Sullivan Quits Navy Post in Row Over Carrier

Aims Angry Blast At Johnson for Calling Halt on Ship Construction

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

John L. Sullivan quit as Secretary of the Navy yesterday after firing an angry blast at Defense Secretary Louis Johnson for canceling construction of the Navy's super-aircraft carrier.

He charged that Johnson had acted "arbitrarily" in halting work on the huge flattop without consulting him or other Navy chiefs. The action, Sullivan declared, was "unprecedented" and its consequences could be "tragic."

The Navy chief's resignation was submitted in a formal though friendly letter to President Truman, which did not mention his quarrel with Johnson over the carrier. Mr. Truman accepted it in a letter couched in the same vein.

Lets Loose in Letter

But the auburn-haired Irishman from New Hampshire really let loose in a letter to Johnson, released at the Pentagon at the same time as his resignation was announced.

He declared that top Navy men consider the abandoned carrier "indispensable" to national defense and declared it has twice been approved by the President and Congress.

His chief quarrel with Johnson, however, Sullivan made plain, was the manner in which the Defense Secretary had overriden the Navy. He said Johnson had asked for his opinion on continuing the work on the USS United States, April 18—the day its keel was laid—but had then cut him off, saying he would discuss it with him later.

Five days later, Johnson ordered the carrier abandoned while he was out of town, Sullivan said.

"Deeply Disturbed," He Says

"I am," he wrote, "very deeply disturbed by your action, which so far as I know represents the first attempt ever made in this country to prevent the development of a powerful weapon."

He added that he is convinced that the action will be followed by a renewed effort to "abolish the Marine Corps and to transfer all naval and Marine aviation elsewhere."

"Of even greater significance"

British Steamship Breaks Apart on Maiden Voyage

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, April 26 (AP).—The damaged British Royal Mail liner Magdalena broke apart in Guanabara Bay while being towed toward Rio de Janeiro today and all but the stern section sank.

Prompt rescue work held down casualties among the 237 crewmen. It appeared not a man was lost, although some suffered cuts and burns.

The 350 passengers had been taken off yesterday after the 17,500-ton Magdalena, winding up her maiden voyage in the South Atlantic, ran aground outside the bay.

The Magdalena had passed through occasionally heavy swells at the entrance to the bay and was heading for the dock with an escort of five tugs and a destroyer when the end came.

Launches and motorboats skittered like waterbugs when the hull groaned and broke open.

The ship carried 3800 tons of general cargo, including oranges and Argentine beef.

Text of Sullivan's Letter To Defense Chief Johnson

The text of Secretary of Navy John L. Sullivan's letter yesterday to Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson follows:

ON Saturday, April 23, without discussion with the Chief of Naval Operations, without consultation with the Secretary of the Navy, you directed the discontinuance of the construction of the USS United States, the construction of which had twice been approved by the President.

This carrier had been the subject of intensive study in the Navy Department since it was first proposed early in 1945 by the late Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, whose combat experience had convinced him of the necessity.

In a hearing with the Director of the Budget on December 16, 1947, with the approval of the Chief of Naval Operations and the Chief of the Bureau of Ships, I volunteered to surrender 307 million dollars which was the cost to complete the approved construction of other vessels, to insure that funds would be available for the USS United States. Its construction was explicitly approved by the reports of the Armed Services Committees of the Senate and House on June 2, 1948, and June 9, 1948, respectively.

In the naval appropriatior act for the fiscal year 1949 the appropriation for the first year of construction of the USS United States was approved by the Congress. Again on December 17, 1948, in a conference with the Secretary of Defense and the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, with the approval of the Chief of Naval Operations and the Chief of the Bureau of Ships, I abandoned construction of other vessels in the amount of 57 million dollars to assure the continuance of the carrier and other vessels.

Additional funds for the continuing construction of this vessel in the fiscal year 1950 were included in the budget message which the President sent to the Congress on January 3, 1949, and were included in the National Military Establishment appropriation bill passed by the House on April 13, 1949.

PROFESSIONAL naval men, charged with the task of planning for a navy adequate to the defense of America believe that the construction of the USS United States is so indispensable to the continuing development of American sea power that they have twice sacrificed other substantial construction because of the carrier's highest naval priority.

On Monday, April 18, while discussing a variety of subjects with you, the question of the continuance of work on the USS United States was raised, and my opinion was asked. I started to give my opinion, but before I had talked more than a minute you advised me that you had another appointment and would discuss this matter with me at a later date. The following day I sent you a very brief memorandum touching on only one phase of the justification of this carrier. In this memorandum I referred to my desire to resume the discussions that had been interrupted the previous day.

I heard nothing about this again until Saturday, April 23, when in Corpus Christi, Tex., I was advised by long distance telephone that you had sent me a memorandum directing the discontinuance of construction.

I AM, of course, very deeply disturbed by your action, which so far as I know represents the first attempt ever made in this country to prevent the development of a powerful weapon. The conviction that this will result in a renewed effort to abolish the Marine Corps and to transfer all naval and marine aviation elsewhere adds to my anxiety.

However, even of greater significance is the unprecedented action on the part of a Secretary of Defense in so drastically and arbitrarily restricting the plans of an armed service without consultation with that service. The consequences of such a procedure are far-reaching and can be tragic.

In view of the foregoing I am sure you will agree with me that no useful purpose can now be served by my remaining as Secretary of the Navy. I have accordingly submitted my resignation to the President.

I deeply regret the circumstances that lead to my departure from the National Military Establishment at such an interesting and crucial period of its development.

Sincerely,

Shanghai Showing Signs of Panic as Possibly Decisive Battle Impends

Shanghai, April 26 (AP).—Chinese Communist columns, boasting they had overwhelmed two government armies, wheeled west of Shanghai today toward Hangchow and a possibly decisive battle.

(The United Press, quoting an announcement by Shanghai garrison headquarters, said the Nationalists had abandoned Soochow, vital transportation center 50 miles west of Shanghai. The government had rushed 30,000 troops there Tuesday to reinforce two divisions defending the city.—Editor's note.)

Shanghai, which remained calm when the Reds broke the Yangtze River line, began to show signs of panic. Business was almost at a standstill, the money market was chaotic.

Nervousness increased as the United States and Britain moved heavier naval units out of the Whangpoo. They were anchored in the Yangtze to the north to avoid possible involvement in any fighting.

Hangchow May Be Last Stand

More than 250 Americans and other nationals were getting out. Many more elected to stay. United States Economic Cooperation Administration headquarters packed up to move to Canton, now serving as the Nationalist capital.

(The Communist radio in Peiping announced that lives and property of foreign nationals would be protected.)

Red columns, according to the Communist radio, captured Ihing and Chingtai, about 80 miles west of Shanghai. This would indicate they were halfway from the Yangtze to Hangchow, 85 miles southwest of Shanghai.

Hangchow may be the site of a last-ditch government stand on the populous eastern seaboard.

13,000 Reported "Wiped Out"

A Communist broadcast heard in Shanghai said the "bulk" of the government's Twentieth and Ninety-ninth armies were "wiped out." It asserted more than 13,000 troops were "wiped out" and an equal number captured.

No news came out of Nanking. Associated Press Correspondent Seymour Topping indicated he was confined to his house by Communist guards.

United States Consul John Cabot estimated 100 Americans had boarded United States naval vessels here for removal in an emergency. Most of them were women and children. That still would leave 2400 Americans in Shanghai.

Another group of Americans is expected to board the President

Miss Coplon's Lawyer Hints At Romance

Marital Interest In Gubitchev Implied As Counsel Questions Prospective Jurors

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Judith Coplon's lawyer hinted yesterday that she had a romantic interest in Valentine A. Gubitchev, 32, a stocky, married Russian engineer, and planned to marry him after a divorce.

The suggestion of wedding bells came from Attorney Archibald Palmer as a jury was being chosen for the 27-year-old girl's espionage trial.

Miss Coplon, a suspended Department of Justice analyst, is charged with taking and copying Government documents to aid Russia.

Gubitchev, a suspended member of the United Nations staff, is charged jointly with her in New York with a conspiracy to commit espionage. After being in custody since early March, when he and Miss Coplon were seized on a New York street, the Russian finally was released yesterday in $100,000 bail. The money was posted by the Soviet Embassy.

Five U. S. Workers On Jury

One condition of his release was that he remain away from piers and airports and that he not leave the jurisdiction of the court which granted bail.

The jury selected for Miss Coplon's trial on a separate indictment here in District Court is made up of eight men and four women, five of them Government workers.

The story of how Miss Coplon met Gubitchev in the first place is one that has never been disclosed.

That romance is to be woven into the defense was implied in questions put to those in the jury panel by Attorney Palmer.

He wanted to know if they had any religious scruples against divorce, if they made a distinction between the Russian people and the Russian government, and if they would be prejudiced against an American marrying a foreigner.

Judge Questions Pertinence

Judge Albert L. Reeves asked Palmer if these questions were pertinent to the trial.

Palmer said that they would be pertinent, but he didn't elaborate. Earlier, however, he made it clear that Miss Coplon had no intention of denying that she had been in Gubitchev's company.

"We do not deny there was a social relationship," Palmer said. "Judith Coplon will take the stand and admit all these things. She was with him (Gubitchev) many times."

Miss Coplon, who sometimes is referred to by Palmer as "little girl," took a keen interest in the selection of the jury, and apparently had considerable to say about those finally chosen.

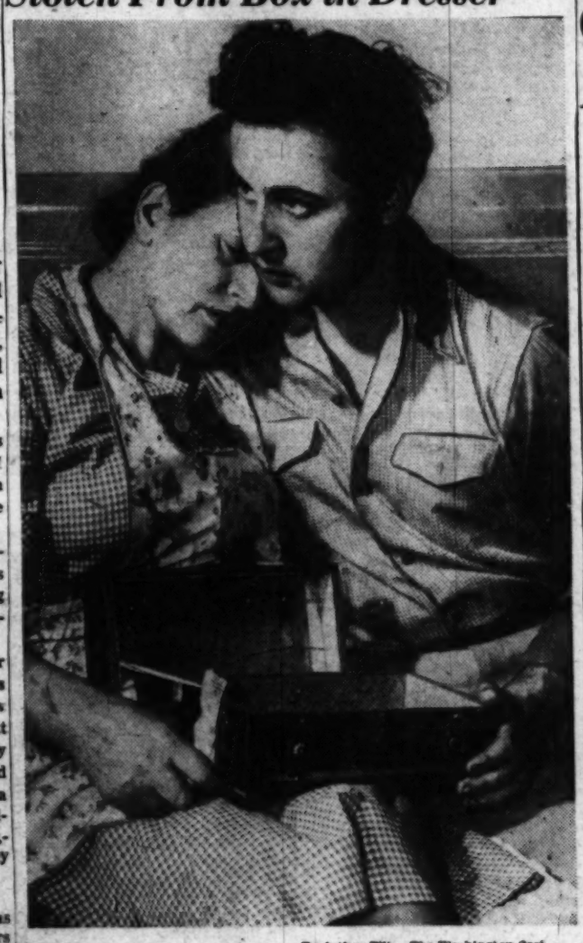
Planned to Retire

Grocer's $13,000 Life Savings Stolen From Box in Dresser



By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

A GREAT SORROW—Mrs. Alexander Tacconelli, holding the empty cedar box from which $13,000 life savings were stolen, sobs on the shoulder of her son, Rico Tacconelli, in their home, 2614 10th st. ne.

The $13,000 savings of a grocery operator and father of six, who had planned to retire this year on the money, were stolen yesterday from a box which his wife kept in her dresser drawer.

Mrs. Alexander Tacconelli, 50, said she kept the money in the box rather than bank it because the banks pay such low rates of interest. Her words were scarcely audible between the sobs that shook her as she lay on her bed in the home at 2614 10th st. ne.

The money represented 15 years' savings. It was in 13 bundles of $1000 each, mostly in $20 bills, in a small jewelry cedar box. The bottom of the box still bears the penciled price: $3.50.

So flimsy was the box—locked with a baby-size lock the key to which Mrs. Tacconelli kept trustfully under her mattress—that the thief was able to pry it open with Mrs. Taconelli's finger-nail file on her dresser.

Mrs. Tacconelli intended, she said, to take the money to the bank Monday to buy bonds. When she returned from mass Sunday she went to her room, closed the door, got out the box and gave the money a final count. Her children, including two Government-employed daughters, knew she kept "a little" money in the cedar chest but had no idea how much.

But Monday her husband was not well so she stayed over bank-closing time helping him at their small store at 908 Rhode

Jessup Talks With Malik On Germany Are Divulged

State Department Taken by Surprise At Tass Disclosure Of Negotiations

Resolved on New State

WEST GERMAN state will be established regardless of whether Russia lifts blockade, General Clay says. Chronological review of cold war in Berlin. Both on Page 3.

Ready to Meet

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

The United States, Britain and France yesterday said they were ready to meet with Russia in a new attempt to settle the cold war battle over Germany if the Soviet blockade of Berlin is first lifted in accordance with Russian reports.

This announcement by the State Department marked the most optimistic statement on German agreement since the breakdown of Big Four talks last summer, but officials cautioned that it is solely a preliminary action.

If the Soviet position is the same as that stated Monday night by the Russian news agency, Tass, said the State Department, "the way appears clear for a lifting of the blockade and a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers."

Meet Today

United States Ambassador-at-large Philip C. Jessup will meet, possibly today, with Jacob A. Malik, Soviet representative to the United Nations, to present to him "a more detailed formulation" of the attitude of the Big Three on the German question, for it appears there are "still certain points requiring clarification."

Tass, in its report climaxing weeks of reported exchanges of "peace feelers" between Russia and the western Allies, said that if a date can be set for a Big Four conference of foreign ministers, Russia will lift the blockade of Berlin if the Big Three raise their counterblockade at the same time.

The Tass statement disclosed that talks between Jessup and Malik have been under way since February 15.

Omission Deliberate

They were touched off by a telegraphic interview last January 30 between Premier Joseph Stalin and J. Kingsbury Smith of the International News Service, in which Stalin made no mention of the dispute over Berlin's currency—one direct factor in the East-West break on Germany.

Omission of that subject was immediately noted here, and Jessup, it was disclosed yesterday, was directed to approach Malik and determine if the omission was deliberate. He was told it was; that the Russians felt it was something which could be "discussed," and this led to later conversations and the present Russian offer.

Government officials made it clear yesterday that they have not "bargained away" the Big Three

Jewish Appeal Drive Here Nets Million

More than one million dollars was pledged or contributed by some 310 business and professional men as the Greater Washington phase of the United Jewish Appeal was launched last night.

Goal of the local drive, which opened with an advance gifts dinner at the Shoreham Hotel, is $2,500,000. Overall-goal is 250 million dollars.

Prominent members of Washington Jewry, whose individual pledges ranged up to $175,000, were warned that it is up to American Jews to determine "if the gates of Israel shall be kept open, how many shall enter and how many must be abandoned in 1949."

The admonition came from Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, director of European operations for the Joint Distribution Committee, a UJA agency.

Goal of 250,000 Set

He said a minimum of 250,000 Jewish refugees must be brought into the new state of Israel in the current year, from DP centers in Central Europe, from the countries of Eastern Europe and North Africa.

Some 700,00 Jews now in Israel, Dr. Schwartz said, have the right now to say:

"We fought the war, we gave our sons and daughters, we are bearing heavy economic burdens. Can't we now call upon the Jews of the world, particularly of the United States to help put an end to the helpless homeless wandering of the Jewish people?"

Dr. Schwartz said "attention has been spotlighted on the DP camps, but not enough light has been focused on the plight of Jews elsewhere—especially the 600,000 in eastern Europe, the 900,000 in Moslem countries."

Stresses Dollar Need

More than 50,000 are now living in makeshift camps in Israel, he said.

Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, chairman of the local advisory committee, said the UJA is "what the prophets of Israel would ask of the generation of today—stand together to rescue the weak and innocent."

"It is necessary more today than ever before that we have Jews who do not fear they will provoke anti-Semitism by supporting Palestine."

Col. Benjamin Ourisman, special gifts chairman recalled that UJA was founded in 1939 "on the eve of the most disastrous events in Jewish life."

"In 10 years it has written a record of achievement which is a glowing testimonial to the leadership, generosity and wisdom of the Jewish communities of the United States."

Joseph Cherner, general chairman of the Greater Washington drive, presided. Rabbi Isadore Breslau, associate drive director, made the appeal for pledges.

Scheve Admits Using Gun in Gambling Row

Phone Ban Up Today

Couldn't Stand Scolding

Joseph H. (Big Joe) Scheve admitted in District Court yesterday he had cracked Robert Ricker on the head with the butt of his loaded pistol, but pleaded self-defense.

Scheve is on trial for assaulting Ricker with intent to kill, and assault wth a dangerous weapon. With his son, Theodore, 30, of 2521 34th pl., se., Hyman Rosen, 40, of 1616 Isherwood st., nw., and Herman "The Judge" Kadan, Scheve is also charged with running night-long crap games in the basement of Kadan's home, 2730 Woodley pl., now.

All Defendants Take Stand

All the defendants took the stand in their own defense yesterday, but their attorneys, Charles E. Ford and Clifford Allder, restricted their testimony to the assault charges.

The jury trial continues today.

Scheve said he used his loaded pistol on Ricker only after Mrs. Ricker had "belittled and berated me and pounded my chest with her fists" for five hours and Ricker had attacked him. Mrs. Ricker, whose whereabouts is unknown, has been described as weighing 100 pounds. Scheve weighs more than 200 pounds.

He said Ricker had attacked him and Mrs. Ricker had scratched his nose with her nails, when he tried to brush the woman aside and leave the Kadan home. He said Mrs. Ricker had belittled his lack of education in comparison with her own college degree.

The fight occurred at approximately 8 a. m., January 6, five hours after Ricker's wife appeared at the Woodley pl., address and demanded $850 of the $7500 she said her husband had lost there gambling.

Direct Examination

Ricker, who did not testify yesterday, said Monday he had lost the money shooting dice with the defendants in about 30 visits to Kadan's home from October to January.

Under direct examination, Scheve told the court:

"I had made 15 or 20 attempts at leaving during the five hours she (Mrs. Ricker) had been there. Always she stood between me and the door. If I tried to get by her she would pound me on the chest with her fists.

"Finally I got aggravated by her belittling of my education and the verbal and physical punishment I had been forced to take, and I pushed her aside. She stuck her hands out and her nails cut my

$65,000-a-Year Lobbyist Involved

Judge Says Parting Couples if They Don't Sleep Together Would Mean Divorces for Half of Washington's Population

Suit Is Withdrawn When Court Frowns

Half the people in Washington would get divorces if decrees were granted merely because husbands and wives didn't sleep together, Judge F. Dickinson Letts declared yesterday.

The pronouncement was made by the District Court jurist during trial of an absolute divorce suit brought by Purcell L. Smith, a $65,000-a-year power lobbyist here. He is president of the American Association of Electric Companies.

When the judge showed disfavor toward any action based only on failure of husband and wife to share the marital bed, Smith quickly consented to dismissal of his suit.

The action was based on the theory of a five-year voluntary separation, but the evidence showed that until 1947 Smith lived with his wife, Elizabeth, in the same home and carried forward all outward semblance of married life.

Judge Letts, who is married and was celebrating his seventy-fourth birthday, then commented:

"If I were going to divorce people because husbands and wives did not live in the same bed, I would have to divorce half the people in town."

The judge admitted that divorce could be granted where the parties continued to live under the same roof but not where they eat at the same table and share virtually all the marriage relationships except sex experience.

MRS. ELIZABETH SMITH
Want a "happy home life"

Smith, who is 55 and now resides at the Metropolitan Club, said on the witness stand that he lived with his wife and three children until 1947 but that sex relations ceased in 1942.

Mrs. Smith did not take the stand, but in challenging his suit, she signed an affidavit stating that she persists in trying to patch things up to get a "happy home life."

She lives in what she termed a "simple suburb" home at 4834 Langdrum lane, Chevy Chase, Md. Their two sons are at Lawrenceville School and the daughter attends Potomac School.

Since the estrangement, Mrs. Smith said, she has been receiving $6000 a year from her husband, but she contended this amount was insufficient.

In dismissing the divorce suit, the maintenance and support funds were by agreement raised to "something more," according to Smith's lawyer, Justin Edgerton.

Smith testified that they were married in 1929. Since 1938, he testified, "acrimonious arguments" have occurred and in 1942 he realized he had "lost my love for Elizabeth."

A two-hour discussion ensued one night in which they agreed to keep up the "semblance of a united home for appearances and for the children's sake," he said.

In 1943, she went to California, he said, and for a time she wavered between filing for a divorce or maintaining the status quo. They lived in various parts of the country from then on, but in 1945 began sharing an apartment at the Wardman Park.

"The tension and strife became intolerable," he said. "It was quite different from really being married."

After Smith moved to the Metropolitan Club, he was invited by his wife to a conference at the Carlton Hotel. There she attempted a reconciliation, he said, in the presence of a clergyman.

But she once came to his office, Smith said, and was agreeable to a divorce.

"If it would make me happy, she said, she wouldn't stand in my way. She realized that the history of our relationship made a course of reconciliation repugnant to both of us."

Questioned by Spencer Gordon, Mrs. Smith's attorney, the husband admitted that most of the time since 1942 he and his wife shared the same rooms, but he denied that there were moments of "tenderness and good feeling."

"Life with Mrs. Smith was just one long wrangle . . . The atmosphere was strained," Smith declared.

Endurance Fliers Come Down After Record 6 Weeks

Fullerton, Calif., April 26 (U.P.)—Bill Barris and Dick Riedel came down to earth today in their light plane for the first time in six weeks with a new world's endurance flight record of 1008 hours and 2 minutes.

They stepped shakily out of their little monoplane while 10,000 persons who crowded the Fullerton airport cheered. They landed at 11:45.50 a. m. PST (3:45.50 p. m. EDT).

It was the fourth time they had tried to break the 10-year-old record of 726 hours.

"We both feel fine," Barris said as he stepped out. Both were so tired they had to be helped as they walked.

The plane bore scars where gasoline cans banged against the side as they were handed up from a speeding jeep four times a day during the past six weeks. Since they took off from the Fullerton airport 42 days ago, they had flown more than 75,000 miles. They used 6500 gallons of gasoline.

Attlee Pledges Steps To Protect Britons

Meeting Here

Prelates Ask Jerusalem's Safeguarding

Members of the American Roman Catholic hierarchy yesterday called for internationalization of Jerusalem and continued aid to Palestinian refugees.

"We feel it necessary at this time to insist that the internationalization of Jerusalem be implemented," they said, urging Americans to obtain assurances from the United States Government and the United Nations that "the original commitments as to Christian rights in Palestine will be carried out."

The statement was issued by the Administrative Board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference after its spring meeting at 1312 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Religious Stake

The statement pointed out that when the General Assembly of the United Nations voted for the partition plan for Palestine in November, 1947, "the Christian world did not oppose this decision because it did safeguard our religious and humanitarian stake in the Holy Land.

Under the United Nations partition plan for Palestine, the city of Jerusalem was to be designated a special international enclave administered by the Trusteeship Council.

On April 24 President Chaim Weizmann of Israel said his country was ready to accept "fullest international safeguards" for immunity and protection of Jerusalem's holy places. Dr. Weizmann also stated that the Jewish nation expected the international community to understand "the direct and inescapable responsibility which Israel bears and exercises in the daily life and administration of Jewish Jerusalem."

The bishops mentioned neither the Jews nor the Arabs.

The statement appealed to Americans "to continue what has already been an overflowing bountiful campaign of mercy." We are further moved by a sense of elementary justice to point out, completely in accord with the United Nations decision, that the end of all this misery can only come when the refugees will be permitted to return to their homes."

$16 Million For Relief

President Truman approved a joint resolution authorizing a 16-million-dollar contribution to the United Nations for relief of Palestinian refugees on March 24.

Pope Pius XII has issued several encyclical letters on the Palestinian situation. In the most recent, April 15, he proposed internationalization of Jerusalem, full protection of Christian rights in the Holy Land, and a just settlement of the refugee situation.

The statement was signed by Edward Cardinal Mooney, Archbishop of Detroit; Samuel Cardinal Stritch, Archbishop of Chicago; Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York; Francis P. Keough, Archbishop of Baltimore; John T. McNicholas, Archbishop of Cincinnati; Robert E. Lucey, Archbishop of San Antonio; Richard J. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston; Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington; John Mark Gannon, Bishop of Erie; John F. Noll, Bishop of Fort Wayne; Karl J. Alter, Bishop of Toledo, and Michael J. Ready, Bishop of Columbus.

Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia, and Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter of St. Louis, were not present.

London, April 26 (AP). — Prime Minister Attlee promised parliamentary critics today Britain will "take every possible step" to protect British subjects caught in China's civil war.

The shelling of four British warships on the Yangtze River by Communist artillery last week set off a debate in Parliament. Conservative Leader Winston Churchill and many other legislators attacked the Labor government.

Labor members drowned out some questions with shouts that "the Tories (Conservatives) want war."

Churchill told Commons the Yangtze incident was an atrocious outrage. He said the government had thrown the whole burden of responsibility on British naval commanders in China and should have aircraft carriers there for "effective power of retaliation." He demanded "effective steps to make sure we are treated with respect in the future."

A Foreign Office spokesman disclosed before the debate that China's Nationalist government warned Britain two months ago it was unable to guarantee the safety of ships on the Yangtze.

Attlee said Britain's policy still is one of nonintervention in China's affairs, as decided by the Moscow agreement of December, 1945, among Britain, Russia and the United States.

The Prime Minister insisted that procedure in sending the sloop Amethyst into the battle zone last Wednesday was "correct." The Amethyst was disabled by Communist guns while moving up the river to relieve the destroyer Consort as a supply ship and protector of the British embassy at Nanking. Three other warships that sought to aid the sloop were damaged and forced back.

Casualties are 42 dead and 53 wounded, Attlee said. The Admiralty announced later four men are missing also.

Churchill asked why Britain had not asked Chinese Communist military officials for permission to send the ship.

Attlee said the Communists rejected repeated attempts to establish "day-to-day working arrangements." He reported Communist officials turned down requests that they cease firing on the Amethyst.

Britain has announced she is sending aircraft carriers, submarines and other naval vessels to strengthen her China fleet.

Attlee did not say what other steps the government may take.

Syria Warns Trans-Jordan Off Territory

Damascus, Syria, April 26 (AP).—Premier Husni Zayim ordered Syria's border with Trans-Jordan closed today, and issued a defiant challenge to King Abdullah.

The premier announced he is recruiting additional troops to strengthen the Syrian army, warned Abdullah against any attempt to annex Syrian territory, and said that far from any part of Syria joining Trans-Jordan, Abdullah's kingdom "will sooner or later join our republic."

"It seems" said Zayim "that my unexpected visit to King Farouk (of Egypt) worried certain Arab countries, who were under the false impression that I undertook the coup in Syria to afford them a new crown."

King Abdullah is known to have ambitions to rule a greater Syria.

Zayim, who recently overthrew the government of President Shukri Al Kuwatly, said of Iraq:

"We wish the Iraqis all happiness and prosperity." He said Syria had no conflict with them. But he warned against "some fishermen in troubled waters attempting to put difficulties in our way when they think pressure will compel us to fall in their traps."

The ruler of Iraq, like Abdullah, is a member of the Hashimite family.

Israel Seeks Inflation Curb

Tel Aviv, April 26 (AP).—The high immigration rate to Israel brought sweeping government proposals today to combat the high cost of living, including rationing of all essential foods.

The program includes austerity features such as the introduction of standard meals of a daily nutritional value of 2700 to 2800 calories—about the same as in England in 1944.

Production of luxury goods would be prohibited for domestic use, but encouraged for export. Clothing, shoes, furniture, household goods and other essentials would be produced on a standard "utility basis," with maximum prices fixed.

Lynn Reports Orderly Vanished With $100

David Lynn, Capitol architect, protested to police yesterday that it cost him an extra $100 to undergo a minor operation.

He said he gave an orderly at Doctors' Hospital a $100 bill and asked him to have it changed so he could pay his private nurse. He hasn't seen the orderly since, he said.

Troopship Sails North

The Eldorado, flagship of Vice Admiral Oscar C. Badger, commander of the Western Pacific Fleet, sailed north from Shanghai on the Whangpoo River to the greater safety of the Yangtze.

It was followed by the troopship Chilton, which carried all but a handful of a Marine battalion which has been living aboard. A few Marines remained behind to guard the consulate and Navy shore installations.

The British cruiser London, shelled by the Communists last week, and the British destroyer Constance followed the United States ships out of Shanghai waters.

Ship Lines on Schedule

Chinese Airlines still ferried refugees to Canton, Formosa and Hongkong. American lines were maintaining scheduled flights to the States. Ship lines of all nations went ahead with planned arrivals and departures as though nothing was happening.

Meanwhile, the Shanghai garrison tightened its "peace and security" measures. All persons were ordered off the streets by 10 p. m. and special curfew passes were canceled.

The garrison also announced it had begun rounding up suspected Communists among Shanghai's students. It said two Chinese "rumor mongers" had been executed for "spreading false reports."

Flow of U. S. Cotton To Shanghai Cut

By The Associated Press

The United States cut off the flow of American-aid cotton to Shanghai yesterday in the expectation that China's great port city will be taken over by the Communist armies whenever their leaders give the word.

Seventeen cotton-laden ships bound for Shanghai were ordered diverted to Japan.

Shipments of American rice which for months have helped feed Shanghai's millions are continuing, but it is uncertain for how long.

Economic Cooperation Administration officials said deliveries of food and other supplies to Shanghai will cease automatically when the Communists take over.

Congress ordered that the remaining 54 million dollars of China Aid Funds should be used only in non-Communist areas.

USE OF THE DADO

Customers are continually asking about Dadoes—and how they can be used. Like baseboards, wood dadoes were once purely functional and may still combine functional with decorative qualities. A dado is simply a low paneling running around the walls of a room, from 2 feet 3 inches high to 3 feet—usually up to the line of the window sills, designed to protect perishable wall finishes from injury. It also provides a useful base for mural decorations by lifting the pictures above too much interruption from pieces of furniture placed against the wall. They may also be purely decorative bands of paint, wallpaper or other finishes. Sometimes the dado cap or chair rail is merely a flat board or a molding, or even a narrow trimming border applied at the dado height to break up a too high wall.

A really protective dado of wood or some other substantial material is specially useful in halls, children's rooms, bathrooms—wherever wearability is important.

We would enjoy discussing your furniture and decorating problems with you. Drop in to . . .

State Department Plans to Keep 2 Posts Hoover Would Abolish

Two major State Department posts which the Hoover Commission recommended eliminating would be retained by the department under present reorganization plans, it was disclosed yesterday.

These are the jobs of counselor to the State Department, and Director General of the Foreign Service, according to testimony before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Appearing before the committee to urge legislation raising the number of Assistant Secretaries of State from 6 to 10, Secretary Acheson declared:

"A reorganization of the department in a mild sort of way is vital to provide greater facilities for doing the vast amount of duties which have come the State Department since the end of the war."

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has already approved the increased number of assistant secretaries, two of whom could be designated by Acheson as Deputy Undersecretaries.

In its broad recommendations for revamping the department, the Hoover Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government proposed the gradual amalgamation "over a short period of years" of the semiautonomous professional foreign service with the departmental service employes.

A starting version of this appears in present plans. Although the director general of the foreign service would be retained, the Secretary of State would be given complete authority over the foreign service and all other functions, delegating that authority as he sees fit.

Instead of its own budget, personnel and planning officers, the foreign service would use the facilities of the department.

The post of counselor, it was learned, is slated to be filled in the future by George F. Kennan, head of the department's top-level Policy Planning Staff. Kennan, described by Acheson at the hearing as "our most distinguished mind in the department," would then technically have a dual function, for he would continue to head the policy planning.

The post of counselor would give Kennan greater official stature in the department, and also a pay raise if the Administration plan for increasing pay of ranking officials receives congressional approval.

Charles E. Bohlen, present counselor for the department, is slated to go to Paris as Minister-Counselor of the embassy there. The Bohlen and Kennan changes are expected in June or July.

John E. Peurifoy, Assistant Secretary of State for administrative affairs, and primary drafter of the reorganization changes, told the committee that the new assistant secretaries will require no additional departmental funds, but their pay will be balanced off by a proposed reduction of "30 per cent" of the lesser divisional jobs in the department.

This is expected to eliminate "several hundred" present Washington jobs, possibly by July 1, it was said.

The proposed increase in secretaries brought from Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio) the comment that it "impresses me like a Central American army—all generals and no privates." He also expressed fear that the Foreign Service changes would leave that group open to "politics."

Most other committee members, however, indicated sympathy with the reorganization aims and Representative Ribicoff (D., Conn.) chided Acheson and Peurifoy for not seeking higher pay for department officials in responsible posts, saying, "Why don't you ask for something like a living wage? I think you'll find a lot of people ready to go to bat for you."

Questioning of Peurifoy by Ribicoff disclosed that while Peurifoy, like other assistant secretaries, receives a salary of $10,330 a year, several Foreign Service employes under Peurifoy get $13,500 annually. The answer to this, said Peurifoy, is to support the Administration bill for raising these assistant secretary posts to $17,500.

The reorganization hearing will continue today.

British Agree India May Fit In Association

London, April 26 (AP).—British and Dominion leaders were reported tonight to be agreed that a republican India can be fitted into their King-led Commonwealth.

Conference officials did not disclose immediately whether India will remain a full-fledged member, or whether it merely will have clearly defined associations with the others.

The officials described the five-day-old talks between the prime ministers of Britain and her dominions as "highly successful."

The conferees are drafting a statement defining the terms of association between the Commonwealth and those of its members which may decide to become republics. It probably will be made public Wednesday.

A decision of Commonwealth statesmen to move over and make room for a country which no longer will pay allegiance to Britain's Monarch would be historic.

West German State Plans to Be Pushed

Pact Offer Cited

Reds Seen In Peace Bid To East Zone

Berlin, April 26 (U.P.).—Russia has promised eastern Germans a peace treaty and cancellation of all reparations claims if they form a separate government for the Soviet occupation zone, usually well-informed sources said today.

The offer was made, presumably, as a backstop in the event new attempts at a four-power agreement on Germany fail and if, in any event, the Western powers insist on forming a separate Western Germany regime pending the signing of a peace treaty for all Germany.

Informants said the Russian treaty offer was given to the new foreign affairs committee of the German Communist Party through Walter Ulbright, who is called the brains of the Communist leadership.

Any official offer by Russia to cancel its reparations claims would have a big appeal for Germans. The Russian demand for 10 billion dollars in reparations has been one of the obstacles in the way of writing a four-power treaty for Germany.

Berlin, April 26 (AP).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay said today the Western Allies intend to see a west German republic established regardless of whether the Russians lift the Berlin blockade.

A similar stand was taken by British spokesmen in London and Lake Success.

The Russians previously have insisted on postponement of plans to set up the west German state as a condition for lifting the blockade.

A Tass announcement early today, however, indicated the Russians had dropped this condition—after Andrei Vishinsky succeeded V. M. Molotov as Soviet Foreign Minister.

Nevertheless, both Clay and Robert D. Murphy, former political adviser to the military governor and now head of the State Department's German division, took a wary attitude toward the Soviet offer to lift the blockade. This was in contrast to optimism expressed at the State Department in Washington.

Murphy saw the Russian move as an effort to swing German opinion away from the thought of forming a west German republic. He said he was convinced "the Germans will not be swayed."

Clay declared "it will have no effect whatsoever on the west German government. We are going ahead with our plans."

Murphy said he had heard about the Lake Success conversations between Soviet United Nations Delegate Jacob Malik and United States Delegate Philip Jessup about settling the Berlin dispute. But he said he thought they were of a "casual nature" and it would be typical of Moscow tactics to make the conversations seem more significant than they are.

He said the Russians should make a formal request for a Foreign Ministers' meeting if they mean it.

This "put it in writing" attitude was general among Western Allied officials in Berlin.

Brig. Gen. Frank Howley, American commandant of Berlin, said there was a possibility the Russians would use a four-power conference to stall and if it broke down "we'd be back where we were in 1948."

He said he doubted, though, that the Russians would reimpose the blockade once they lifted it.

"They tried blockade tactics once and it didn't work," he said. "They have been hurt more by it than we have. But they'd probably try something else."

Clay said the Russians could lift the blockade "in two hours" if they wanted to.

Other American sources said the airlift would keep right on, even if the blockade is lifted.

W. T. Babcock, deputy to Howley, said affairs of the city are so tangled by dual police systems, city governments, splinter political parties and feuding labor unions that "the only may to unravel Berlin" may be to place it under a United Nations commission.

"The only real way to dissolve the duality," he added, "would be for the Germans to have their own free elections and do it themselves. But the Russians know their Communists would get only 10 per cent of the vote or less and I'm not ready to believe they would permit that."

If the Russians are sincere, some officials said, they could start by resuming four-power action in the Allied Control Council. It is the Russian turn to preside. They could reinstitute the council by simply calling a meeting. The Russians walked out last spring.

Coordinator Collapses In Capital Site Battle

Bonn, Germany, April 26 (AP).—A battle over the site of West Germany's capital flared tonight after agreement between the Western Allies and German politicians on the outline of government.

The struggle among Frankfurt, Bonn, Stuttgart and Kassel became so tense that Emil Neujean, who coordinates claims of capital candidates, collapsed and was taken to a hospital.

"The enormous load of propaganda from the four cities finally crashed my nerves and I passed out," he said.

Costs Padded By Germans

Wiesbaden, Germany, April 26 (AP).—An American Military Government official charged today Germans are padding their accounts of the occupation costs.

The overcharges do not cost the United States taxpayer actual money because the Germans pay the occupation expenses in marks themselves. The swollen accounts misrepresent the cost to the German taxpayer, however, and might later be presented as an offset to Allied reparations claims.

Donald S. Spigler, military government financial adviser, said the overcharges were exposed in the state of Hesse. The total could amount to several hundred million marks if the practices discovered are general throughout the American zone, he said. The mark is valued at 30 cents.

One of the most common practices is to pay German owners of property requisitioned by the occupation forces both the normal rental value and additional compensation for profits they might have earned.

German Relief Truck Passes Border Blockade

Berlin, April 26 (U.P.).—A German truck carrying relief supplies was allowed to cross the blockaded border into the Soviet zone today, first that had done so since the beginning of the Western counter-blockade.

The truck carried relief packages from the West-zone Evangelical Relief Organization to Magdeburg in the Soviet zone.

German police reported to British officials that the truck was allowed to cross the border at Helmstedt.

Earlier, a Swiss train that was supposed to bring 10 tons of supplies to Berlin's Swiss colony arrived carrying only five Red Cross nurses in addition to its crew.

It was announced yesterday that the Russians had given permission for the train to pass through the Western occupation zones and the Soviet zone to Berlin despite the blockade. But a Swiss official said ruefully that at the last minute, the official permission did not arrive.

determination to continue plans for establishment of a separate state in Western Germany. The Russians, who have previously insisted on abandonment—or at least indefinite delay of the western German republic—have been given no commitment of any kind on this score, it was said.

It was seen possible that if a four-power conference on Germany develops, it could be held within 60 days, by which time the western German state will not yet have been established.

Officials Suspicious

The Big Three have stated that their agreement on western Germany in no way precludes four-power agreement for a government for all of Germany.

Behind the present Russian position, officials believe, are the success of the European Recovery Plan, the spectacular Berlin airlift, the drafting of the North Atlantic Treaty and the proposed military aid program for treaty members.

A strong reason for the cautious approach to the "new" Russian attitude is the suspicion among officials that it may be intended only to weaken American determination to carry through the Atlantic alliance and the supporting arms program, or to undercut efforts to create a West German government.

Counterblockade Effective

The counterblockade which the Western Allies placed on trade shipments to the Soviet zone of Germany, after the Russians completely barred all road and rail traffic to Berlin on June 26, 1948, are known to have seriously effected life in the Soviet zone. At the same time, the blockade has affected such countries as Poland, whose land trade routes to much of Europe pass through the Soviet zone.

The announcement made yesterday by the State Department, the first official admission by this Nation that secret talks have been conducted with Russian diplomats, traced the course of the exploratory discussions in a 1200-word statement.

Yesterday morning, Dr. Jessup, accompanied by Undersecretary of State James A. Webb, called on President Truman to present a first-hand account of the situation.

Asked for comment on the developments, Jessup said, "Things look hopeful," and quickly added, "I'm an optomist." He said, "The President has been informed of the steps which have been taken and has approved them.

State Department Surprised

The Monday night statement by Tass, it was learned, took the State Department completely by surprise, resulting in the hurried drafting of an announcement here.

Since the Berlin blockade, the State Department declared, "the three Western governments have consistently sought to bring about the lifting of that blockade on terms consistent with their rights, duties, and obligations as occupying powers in Germany."

In line with that policy, it was stated, the Big Three initiated talks in Moscow last summer. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, then Ambassador to Russia, headed the Western envoys who finally reached an "agreement" with Stalin on ending the Berlin blockade and counter blockade, and resolving the currency dispute.

Accords Collapsed

In place of the Western and Eastern currencies then being used in Berlin, the German currency of the Russian zone was to be used in all of Berlin under supervision of the four powers.

"Things look hopeful"

When it came to carrying out these accords through the four military governors of Berlin, however, the effort collapsed with the Russian representative raising numerous qualifications. An attempt to resolve the dispute in the United Nations Security Council, in September, 1948, similarly failed.

"Since that time," said the State Department, "the Western governments have looked consistently for any indication of a change in the position of the Soviet government, and have been anxious to explore any reasonable possibility in that direction through contacts with Soviet officials."

Malik Approached in February

That opening, said the statement, came with the omission of the currency question in the January 30, 1949, exchange with Stalin, and on February 15, Dr. Jessup approached Malik in New York and asked if this was significant.

A month later, on March 15, Malik had a reply that it was significant, and that it could be discussed by a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers, "if a meeting of that body could be arranged to review the whole German problem."

Jessup then asked if a lifting of the blockade could precede such a meeting.

"The information as to the Soviet government's attitude revealed in these informal contacts," said the State Department, "was immediately conveyed to the British and French governments."

On March 21, "Mr. Malik again asked Mr. Jessup to visit him," and reported that a mutual lifting of blockades could take place before the foreign ministers met.

This was discussed with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, who came here for the signing of the Atlantic Pact, and "an agreed position was reached among the three Western powers."

To avoid any "misunderstanding in the mind of the Soviet Union," Jessup on April 5 read to Malik a statement delineating the subjects under discussion:

"1. Reciprocal and simultaneous lifting of the restrictions imposed by the Soviet Union since March 1, 1948, on communications, transportation and trade between Berlin and the western zones of Germany and the restrictions imposed by the three powers on communications, transportation and trade to and from the eastern zone of Germany.

"2. The fixing of a date to be determined for a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

"The Western powers wished to be sure," declared the State Department, "that these two points were not conditioned in the understanding of the Soviet govenment on any of the other points which in the past had prevented agreement upon the lifting of the blockade. . .

"On April 10 Mr. Malik again asked Mr. Jessup to call upon him at that time and again stated the position of the Soviet government. From this statement it appeared that there were still certain points requiring clarification."

What these points are were not disclosed, but as a result of that meeting, "further discussions took place between the three governments, which have resulted in a more detailed formulation of their position, which will be conveyed by Mr. Jessup to Mr. Malik."

Date Is Significant

The March 1, 1948, date, in connection with lifting the blockade, has particular significance. After the Moscow "agreement" of last summer on ending the blockade, the Soviet military commander in Berlin declared it applied only to restrictions imposed since January, 1948, when rail and road traffic was blocked, and not earlier bans.

In their meetings here early this month, the Big Three Foreign Ministers reached agreement on an occupation statute for western Germany, fusion of their three occupation zones, and replacement of their military governors with a less-stringent Allied High Commission, once a federal republic is established.

Big Three orders to the German authorities to be elected to govern the west German republic, it was announced yesterday in a supplementary statement, "will be restricted to a minimum."

Draft Own Constitution

In the Soviet zone of Germany, the Russian-sponsored People's Council has dratfed a constitution of its own, "for all of Germany," and there is some speculation that if any real four-power accord on Germany is reached, it would result not in an immediately unified Germany, but some tie-in between east and west Germany.

The possibility of a conference with Russia did not appear to weaken most congressional interest in pending programs for a show of strength against Russia, as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee prepared to open hearings at 10:30 a. m. today on the North Atlantic Treaty.

Secretary of State Acheson, who will be the first witness at today's hearings, will discuss the relation of the pact to the arms program.

Czech Quits Finance Mission In U. S., Appeals for Asylum

By The Associated Press

A high-ranking member of a visiting Czechoslovak financial mission is reported to have broken with his Communist-run government and asked for asylum in this country.

It was reported yesterday by diplomatic informants. They said the official, Hugo Skala, quit his post last week a few hours after reaching American shores en route to Washington.

Skala was the No. 2 man in the Czech delegation sent here to try to reach a settlement on American property taken over by the government in Czechoslovakia.

The Czech Embassy, it was learned, has twice brought the case to the attention of State Department officials. At first, the embassy told the department it feared the man had been "kidnaped."

After Skala sent a formal letter of resignation to Czech Ambassador Valadimir Outrata, the embassy changed its tune and accused him of absconding with important documents.

Skala vigorously denies this and diplomatic officials familiar with the affair support him, terming the charges "typical Communist counteraccusations designed to cover their embarrassment."

The scheduled talks between the State Department and the Czech group have been upset by Skala's absence, since he was to be the chief Czech financial expert.

Diplomatic officials said Skala renounced his job shortly upon reaching New York after receiving a cable from his wife and son saying they had reached the American zone of Germany safely.

FBI Girl Describes Life as Communist

New York, April 26 (AP).—An attractive girl told a story before a Federal jury today of seven busy years as an FBI counter-spy in the Communist Party.

Angela Calomiris, a dark-haired photographer, was the latest Government surprise witness at the conspiracy trial of 11 top Communists.

In a soft voice she said she joined the party in 1942 and kept the FBI informed of what she learned "from the very day I joined."

She stepped lightly from the witness stand at one point and placed a finger on the shoulder of Gil Green, one of the defendants and one-time secretary of the Communist Party in New York State.

Miss Calomiris identified him as the man who welcomed her into party ranks seven years ago. She is about 25 years old now.

Under the assumed name of Angela Cole, she testified, she moved freely in lesser Communist councils, apparently a loyal, interested member who was entrusted with money and records of the party.

Smiling quickly and adjusting her black dress, she described herself as "a very active Communist" from the days when the party conducted many of its activities underground.

She went to Communist schools, she testified, as a preliminary to her advancement upward in party ranks.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina, weary and exasperated by weeks of legal quibbling, ruled that William Z. Foster, national Communist Party chairman, could testify by deposition.

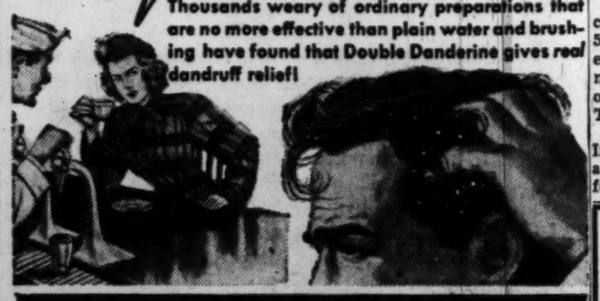
I HATE DANDRUFF!

Thousands weary of ordinary preparations that are no more effective than plain water and brushing have found that Double Danderine gives real dandruff relief!



Double DANDERINE GUARANTEES DANDRUFF RELIEF
Kills dandruff-causing germ*-on contact!

This refreshingly fragrant, easy-to-use dandruff preparation has given truly remarkable results—even in some of the most stubborn cases!

If you have dandruff—and have tried many preparations in a vain attempt to get effective relief—you'll be happy to know about Double Danderine. For as thousands have discovered, it really works!

Ordinary dandruff-combatting methods that simply remove loose dandruff don't give you effective relief. For they don't destroy the germ which authorities explain is the cause of the most common kind of dandruff. The truth is, they do no more than plain water and brushing will do! But Double Danderine actually kills this germ—on contact!

That's why we say Double Danderine guarantees dandruff relief. Try it. If you're not completely satisfied, return the empty bottle and your money will be refunded.

*Pityrosporum Ovale, the germ which leading authorities say is the cause of the most common kind of dandruff.

They claimed that in the girl's purse they found a package of typewritten summaries of confidential information.

Yesterday Attorney Palmer filed a motion for the return of the papers found in the handbag.

He said in his petition that Miss Coplon was "seized upon violently" by the FBI agents, who "grabbed" her handbag with its "private papers written and typewritten."

The petition listed other articles in the handbag, including $50 in cash, library cards for the American University and the District of Columbia Public Library, a Group Health membership card, a Department of Justice identification card, a "red address book," and a book entitled "All Thy Conquests" by Alfred Hayes.

Attorney Palmer, after filing his petition yesterday, asked Judge Reeves to instruct the prosecution to have the FBI agents in court this morning.

The first hour will be devoted to arguments on the motion for the return of the papers to Miss Coplon. Judge Reeves told the jurors that they would not be called into the box this morning until 11 o'clock.

Spy Hunters Draw Blank In Atom Quiz

By The Associated Press

Congressional spy hunters quizzed an alleged Red espionage agent and two atomic scientists yesterday without producing any evidence of questionable deals between them.

All of them, and a third scientist, will be questioned again next month by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

And until then the identity of "Scientist X" apparently will remain an official secret.

Appearing before the committee yesterday with uncertain results were:

Steve Nelson of Pittsburgh, a veteran Communist, and scientists Giovanni Rossi Lominitz of Fisk University at Nashville, Tenn., and Joseph Weinberg of the University of Minnesota. David Bohm, assistant professor of physics at Princeton waited all morning but the committee didn't get to him.

In a report last year, the committee accused Nelson of being a "Communist espionage agent."

It said that in March, 1943, he got a secret atomic formula from a "Scientist X" employed at the radiation laboratory of the University of California at Berkeley. It said he met two Russian diplomatic officials later and got 10 bills of unknown size from one of them.

The committee questioned Nelson last year and he declined to answer on grounds he might tend to incriminate himself. It also questioned "Scientist X." Because the scientist denied knowing Nelson or having given away any secrets, the committee kept his name secret.

Lominitz told newsmen he, Weinberg and Bohm were employed at the rediation laboratory at Berkeley during the war and were close friends.

The witnesses and committee members agreed that:

1. Nelson declined to say whether he knew Lominitz or Weinberg, again standing on his constitutional rights to refuse answers that might tend to incriminate him.

2. Lominitz gave the same reason for declining to say whether he knew Nelson, whether he is a member of the Communist Party or whether he ever recruited certain people into the party.

Committee officials said Lominitz told them he thinks "membership in the Communist Party doesn't constitute disloyalty."

Weinberg Nelson
Before House group

3. Weinberg didn't say flatly he never had met Nelson but testified that he didn't believe he had. He didn't refuse to answer a question on that point.

Nelson said the committee is just trying to "make some more spy headlines, to stir up war hysteria and try to get ratification of the Atlantic Pact in the Senate."

All four witnesses were accompanied by lawyers. Bohm was represented by Clifford J. Durr of Washington, former member of the Federal Communications Commission.

House Probers Criticized by Grand Jury

New York, April 26 (U.P.). — A Federal grand jury investigating Communist espionage charged today that publicity given to the House Un-American Activities Committee's spy hunts had hamstrung its work. It asked for secrecy in all future spy inquiries.

The grand jury, in a presentment handed up to Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan, also urged a tightening of espionage laws and elimination of the statute of limitations in espionage or treason cases.

"Having seen at first hand the difficulties in arriving at the truth concerning espionage violation when witnesses have been alerted by publicized charges and countercharges, the grand jury recommends that all investigating bodies conduct their inquiries into espionage in secret," the presentment said.

The grand jury action apparently grew out of the celebrated Alger Hiss-Whittaker Chambers testimony before both the House committee and a previous grand jury last fall, when both groups were vying for the same witnesses in their separate spy inquiries.

The grand jury asked for removal of the statute of limitation laws (three years) in regard to espionage cases. The present law notably in the case of Chambers, former spy courier who quit the Communist ranks in 1939, has considerably hampered the grand jury's work.

The presentment also urged that bar associations and similar groups investigate means to disbar lawyers who refused to testify before grand juries on the ground that they might incriminate themselves.

John Gilland Brunini, foreman of the grand jury and editor of Spirit, a magazine of Catholic poetry, told reporters that the grand jury did not seek to strip lawyers of their constitutional rights.

But he said that any attorney who refused to testify "is not of such integrity that all Americans have a right to expect of officers of the court." He refuses to mention the names of any lawyers who had refused to testify before the grand jury.

The grand jury received a setback in its work only yesterday when the United States Court of Appeals cleared William Rosen, a witness in the Hiss-Chambers case, of contempt charges for refusing to answer questions before the grand jury.

Rosen refused to reveal how he came into possession of an automobile once owned by Hiss, former State Department official under indictment for perjury, on the grounds that his testimony might tend to connect him with espionage law violations. The Court of Appeals agreed and said that conflicting testimony about the car by Hiss and Chambers before the House Un-American Activities Committee put Rosen in a "precarious" position.

Movement to Tighten Up Lesinski Labor Bill Develops Among Administration Democrats

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A middle-of-the-road movement to amend the Lesinski labor relations bill developed among Administration Democrats yesterday as the House opened general debate on possibly the hottest political issue confronting the Eighty-first Congress.

The move to tighten up the Lesinski bill, which repeals the Taft-Hartley Act and restores the Wagner Act with "improvements," was picking up strength in the cloakrooms, while the measure itself underwent five hours of listless debate on the floor.

Administration leaders in the House were publicly proclaiming that they had enough votes to beat down the Wood bill, a modified version of the Taft-Hartley Act, which is being sponsored by a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats.

Concessions Expected

But privately, some of the same leaders admitted they were prepared to accept—after token opposition—certain amendments to the Truman-indorsed Lesinski bill.

Some union legislative agents on Capitol Hill were also willing to admit that organized labor was prepared to concede on a number of provisions in order to win "substantive" approval of the Lesinski bill.

The so-called moderate faction of Administration Democrats and the Fair Dealers, however, fail to see eye to eye on the vital matter of how to deal with emergency strikes affecting the national safety and health.

The Lesinski bill approaches this problem with a 30-day voluntary cooling-off period and public opinion backing up the recommendations of a fact-finding committee. The middle-of-the-roaders want a tougher provision than this one. There's no telling at this time just what the House will do on this point.

After an hour's debate on the rule, which calls for eight hours' general debate on the Lesinski bill before action on any amendments, the House plodded through four hours of pro and con discussion.

Supporters of the Wood bill, which will be offered as a substitute for the Lesinski as soon as amendments are permitted, urged all members of Congress who had grievances against the Taft-Hartley Act to eliminate any inequities in the law through amendment of the Wood bill.

The coalition behind the Wood bill, led by Representative Sam McConnell (R., Pa.), who is directing the floor fight for it, argued that it would be virtually impossible to amend the Lesinski bill along the lines of Taft-Hartley.

The philosophies behind the Wood and Lesinski bills are completely different, succinctly observed Representative Howard Smith (D., Va.), a coalition enthusiast.

Representative McConnell brought up one new twist to an old argument. He said that by eliminating the anti-Communist oath for union officers, the Lesinski bill in effect would cut out the provision in the present law through which the Atomic Energy Commission has been able "to protect atomic secrets from Communist labor officials."

The reference was to an order from the AEC to General Electric Co to sever its contract with the extreme-left United Electrical Workers Union at its atomic laboratories.

Warns of "Weakening"

Representative John Lesinski (D., Mich.), chairman of the House Labor Committee, in the opening speech defending the Administration labor bill, declared:

"Weakening the rights of labor and taking away its strength to bargain collectively, as the Taft-Hartley Act does, is the first step away from democracy, and toward fascism, communism, or any other brand of totalitarianism . . ."

Lesinski reminded the House that President Truman and the Democratic Party had campaigned in 1948 on a repeal-Taft-Hartley platform.

Representative Ray J. Madden (D., Ind.), who led the unopposed floor fight for the rule, asserted that the Republicans could not "change the Taft-Hartley law merely by changing its name to the Wood bill."

"You cannot wrap limburger cheese in a beautiful pink, green and black paper and conceal the odor . . .," Madden said.

Four more hours of general debate will be carried on today, beginning at noon.

Stewart Advanced

Davis Named Head of Atom Labor Panel

Davis Stewart

New jobs for both

President Truman yesterday named William H. Davis to head a special labor relations panel to prevent work stoppages in vital atomic energy operations. Davis formerly headed the War Labor Board. Two other members will be named in a few days.

The panel was established on recommendation of a special commission, on which Davis served, which studied atomic energy labor relations for the President.

Mr. Truman said the panel will "settle only disputes affecting vital operations in atomic plants impossible to adjust by collective bargaining and through existing conciliation services."

"I am confident," the President said in a statement, "that labor and management will seek settlement of disputes in atomic installations by voluntary procedures and mutual agreement, and that they will call upon the panel only as a last resort."

Meanwhile, the Atomic Energy Commission announced appointment of James C. Stewart, project engineer for the Oak Ridge, Tenn., national laboratory, to be new manager of the Schenectady, N. Y., office.

Stewart will succeed Leonard E. Johnston who has been named manager for AEC's new reactor test station, to be located near Arco, Idaho.

Lucas Getting Checkup

Senate Democratic Leader Scott D. Lucas, Illinois, has gone to a hospital for a physical checkup but is expected to return to his Senate post in two or three days, his office announced yesterday.

Hoover Warns Against Raising Any Taxes; Attacks Truman's Social Security Program

By The Associated Press

Herbert Hoover warned Congress yesterday against boosting social security taxes, or any other taxes, until the Nation's foreign aid commitments can be reduced.

"Already our economy is up to the limit of endurance under this load," Hoover said. "I believe we should go slow, and hold further additions to this burden to the absolute minimum.

"When the cold war is over, we can afford many more domestic improvements."

Hoover outlined his views in a letter to Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) of the House Ways and Means Committee. Doughton had asked for Hoover's comments on President Truman's proposals for a vast expansion of the social security program.

Hoover also proposed a drastic change in administering social security. He said the idea of accumulating a trust fund as insurance against future benefit demand should be abandoned.

In its place, he suggested a "pay-as-you-go" basis—in which Congress would estimate social security costs each year, and fix the social security tax to pay for them.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, Social Security Commissioner, issued a statement saying that Hoover's letter "indicates a basic misunderstanding of our American social security system."

Under that system, Altmeyer said, contributory social insurance is the first line of defense against insecurity, and public assistance—that is, relief—is a second line of defense.

"The proposals of the Administration incorporated in the two social security bills pending before the Ways and Means Committee are based upon the belief that the American people want to be self-supporting, that they expect to pay for their own protection against such economic hazards as those of old age, premature death and physical disability,' and that they want to receive this protection without the necessity of submitting to a means test," Altmeyer said.

"Mr. Hoover's proposal is just the reverse. He proposes that we develop the 'State systems' based on need, by further Federal grant to provide more adequately for the aged and dependent actually in need."

Truman Cuts Foreign Aid Fund Request

President Truman yesterday reduced the price tag on his Foreign Aid Program for the next 15 months by $157,800,00.

He asked Congress for $5,272,200,000 instead of the $5,430,000,000 the lawmakers authorized. He said the cut was due to a "number of developments," including recent price declines.

Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman had promised Congress he would take every possible opportunity to reduce the cost of the Aid Program following commodity price reductions.

The House Appropriations Committee will be the first to tackle the cash request, which must be passed separately from the aid authorization bill which Mr. Truman signed a week ago.

President Truman urged that the money be "speedily appropriated." The committee had planned to meet on the issue yesterday, but postponed its session until today when it will hear from Charles Dewey, counsel of the Senate-House Foreign Aid Committee. Hoffman will testify later.

The President's request was divided into $1,074,000,000 for the three months ending June 30, and $4,198,200,000 for the 12 months beginning July 1. The authorization bill provided for $1,150,000,000 until June 30 and $4,280,000,000 for the following 12 months.

'Voluntary' Cuts

GOP to Bid For Economy By Directive

A GOP drive to avoid tax increases by forcing Government administrators to slash their own agency expenditures will be launched today during Senate consideration of the Labor-Federal Security Appropriation bill.

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) served notice he would try to amend the $2,396,337,265 measure by a directive to the Secretary of Labor and the Federal Security Administrator to cut five per cent from their uncommitted funds—which total an estimated one billion dollars.

Administration leaders predicted defeat for the economy move. Meanwhile the Democratic tax and spending leaders in Congress yesterday decided to skip any effort this year to set a ceiling on Federal spending for the next fiscal year, beginning July 1.

Under the congressional reorganization law, Congress is required to set such a ceiling by February 15. Congress, however, has already passed a resolution postponing the date until May 1.

Chairmen of the Senate and House Appropriations and tax-writing committees decided at a conference to back a resolution waiving the requirement until "further study."

Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) and Ferguson, both members of the Senate Appropriation Committee, told reporters the new GOP drive to put it up to Government administrators to cut their own expenditures was an attempt at a "scientific and intelligent appreach" to the problem of cutting Federal expenditures.

The Republican Senators maintained that it is impossible for appropriation committees of Congress to know where an agency's spending can actually be cut with the least damage. An agency head, on the other hand, they said, should be able to cut spending within his own department in the most efficient manner.

Under the new GOP plan, which Republicans intend to try out on all appropriation bills this session, only funds not specifically appropriated by law for some special purpose would be subject to the percentage cut.

The move is seen as growing out of the failure of the Republican-dominated 80th Congress to keep within the budget ceilings which were set under the Reorganization Act.

Some Democrats contend that establishment of budget ceilings is impossible before Congress acts on appropriation bills.

Republicans, in turn, have charged that the Democrats have no intention of complying with the law.

Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.) of the Senate Finance Committee said he expects to support the Democratic move to avoid setting a ceiling on federal spending this year but will confer with his committee about it today.

He said that Chairman Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) of the Senate Appropriations Committee and Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) of the House Appropriations Committee will introduce a resolution asking Congress to waive the requirement.

The Senate yesterday approved, subject to final passage of the Labor-Federal Security money bill, an amendment to spend 2 million dollars for building and equipping facilities for the National Institute of Dental Research at Bethesda, Md.

Arlington GOP Unit to Pass On Candidates

Arlington's Republican Committee will pass on all County Board candidates before they enter the GOP primary to be held in August, Committee Chairman Edgar W. Pumphrey said yesterday.

He said candidates must file petitions bearing signatures of 50 Republicans with the GOP committee by May 19 in order to enter the primary.

By May 28, Pumphrey said, the committee will have rejected any candidates found "not to be Republicans" or who are "not qualified for office."

Included among those to be eleminated, he said, will be hopeeliminated, he said, will be hopeing in an election.

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

This morning, I visited Mrs. Evans to see if she had any old clothes for next week's rummage sale. A few minutes after I got there, little Charlie Evans came running into the house with tears streaming down his face. He'd been playing ball and had hurt his finger quite badly.

Mrs. Evans' telephone party line was in use at that moment, but when she explained that she wanted to make an emergency call, the party who was talking gave up the line at once. Then Mrs. Evans called the doctor, who said he'd be right over.

To me, this example of telephone courtesy and understanding brought home the importance of sharing our party lines. I think that when everyone on the line is thoughtful, and considerate, it makes the service more useful and pleasant all the way around.

Key Officials Promoted in Reorganization In Montgomery; Hancock Made Finance Chief

Key Montgomery County officials were promoted yesterday in a fiscal reorganization move under the new charter.

Elevated to the $8500-a-year post of finance director was Alexander K. Hancock, an attorney and certified public accountant, who has been county comptroller for the past eight years.

Other appointments by Acting County Manager I. G. McNayr approved by the county council:

County Treasurer John B. Diamond, whose post was abolished specifically by the charter, to serve as chief of the division of revenue and disbursement at $5700 annually.

Supervisor of Assessments Wilton T. Allen as chief of the division of assessments, at $6000 a year.

Assistant Comptroller William Leizear as chief of the division of accounts at $5060 annually.

Hancock Diamond

All of the appointments, effective May 1, involve pay increases, except that given Diamond.

Hancock was jumped $940, Allen, $500, and Leizear, $660.

Appointment of the new fiscal executives virtually completes governmental reorganization under the charter. The final step is naming of department of public works officials. It is expected soon.

A native of Georgia, Hancock, who is 49, was admitted to the bar there in 1927. He was licensed to practice in Maryland in 1933, one year after he joined the Montgomery County government as county accountant.

Diamond, 67, is a native Montgomery Countian. He attended St. John's College in Washington, and Georgetown University. From 1930 to 1934, he served as a county commissioner. He was elected county treasurer in 1938, 1942, and 1946.

At the regular meeting in Rockville, the council made public its plans for the conduct of next month's legislative session to be held under the "home rule" charter.

The first two sessions will begin at 2 p. m. next Monday and Tuesday. Subsequent sessions will be held each Tuesday thereafter and as frequently as necessary, including the last two days of the month.

The council also created a hospital advisory committee consisting of outside experts who will serve without compensation to survey the need for more hospital facilities in the county.

Committee members are Dr. Mark V. Ciegler, medical director, United States Public Health Service; Dr. Janvier W. Lindsay, consultant in pathology at Garfield Hospital; Dr. George W. Bachman, senior staff member, medical economics, Brookings Institution, and Robert P. Bryant, executive secretary, Hospital Council for the National Capital Area.

GI Student Turns Down DAR Medal

The Washington Post
WARREN SILVER
"Hi Yo, DAR"

A Takoma Park, Md., Army veteran yesterday said he returned a good citizenship award to the Daughters of the American Revolution because of what he termed the DAR's "poor citizenship."

Warren E. Silver, 24-year-old Maryland University senior majoring in bacteriology, received the award, a bronze medal with red, white and blue ribbons, in 1943.

He was then a senior at Coolidge High School in Washington.

In a letter to the DAR, Silver wrote:

"For the past six years I have read the newspaper accounts of the resolutions adopted by the DAR Congress.

"With your nose turned high in the air, you have stated that you are opposed to immigration, to health insurance and to international trade and labor organizations.

"In brief, the DAR opposes cooperation with those abroad and assistance for those in the United States. These are not the actions of a good citizen.

"Since I am a good citizen, it is my duty to return your good citizenship medal as a protest against the poor citizenship your organization has shown."

The DAR refused to comment on Silver's letter. Silver lives at 7206 Trescott ave., Takoma Park, Md., and plans to do graduate work in bacteriology. He served 3½ years in the Army with chemical warfare units and participated in the Okinawa campaign.

$13,000 Taken From Family

Island ave. ne., around the corner from their home.

At 1 p. m. yesterday Ida, the 22-year-old daughter, returned from the store, where she helps out, to the house to find the front window pried open and her mother's upstairs room ransacked.

The thief appears to have been remarkably thoroughgoing. Besides the $13,000 he took another small cardboard "church" box of Mrs. Tacconelli's bearing the picture of St. Anthony and containing $3 in small change.

Mrs. Tacconelli said her 66-year-old husband had planned to sell his store and retire this year. The daughter, Ida, figured yesterday he would have to work at least eight more years now.

Except for a brief trip home, Tacconelli stayed at the store yesterday, as he does 18 hours a day, 6 a. m. to midnight, selling bread, 5-cent doughnuts and 10-cent beer.

"It's just like breath coming out of your body," he said, about the money. "You work hard, then it's gone."

Tacconelli came here at the age of 18 from the Abruzzi section of Italy. He worked in a West Virginia sawmill, then as a railroad hand and dishwasher, saving money to buy a delicatessen store. He had a place on 14th st. before his present one.

Pilot Killed In F-47 Crash

Anne Arundel County about four miles from North Beach.

From their planes, Lieut. Col. W. W. Millikan and First Lieut. Michael Encinias saw their comrade's plane crash to the ground and burst into flames. They continued to circle over the wreckage. Later, the North Beach fire department was sent to the scene.

It was reported the three planes were flying in formation at several thousand feet when Mercurio's plane suddenly nose-dived.

Back at Andrews Base, Mercurio's wife, Kathleen, and their two children, Joan, 4, and Susan, 2, were waiting for him to return.

They had accompanied him to the field for the night flying mission. The news of her husband's death was broken to Mrs. Mercurio at the field and she was accompanied home by Col. Millikan.

She accepted the tragedy with the stoic reserve which wives of fliers must have. An hour after she learned of the death, she telephoned her husband's employer and said:

"Buddy's been in an accident. No, it wasn't in the truck. It was in a plane—he's dead."

The employer is H. Graham Barbee, jr., of the Tuckman-Barbee Construction Co., of 1728 H st. nw. Mercurio was assistant general superintendent and expediter with the company and had been employed there since its origin in 1946.

Mercurio flew more than 60 combat missions in the European Theater during the last war. He piloted a Mustang (the F-51). He was attached to the 55th Fighter Group of the 8th Air Force. After his return to civilian life he couldn't shelve his love of flying so he joined the 121st Fighter Squadron of the District Air Guard as a pilot.

According to Lieut. Edmund F. Hogan, press information officer of the District Air Guard, Mercurio's wife, Kathleen, also took a deep interest in Air Guard activities and originated a news letter for wives of the Air Guard.

Prince Georges Won't Open School Budget

Letters protesting a $333,638 cut in the Prince Georges County school budget were reviewed yesterday by the Prince Georges County Board of Commissioners but the board said it could not reopen the county budget.

"The levy is already signed, the tax rate fixed," said Harry W. McNamee, board president.

The school board requested $2,333,638, which was pared to a flat two million dollars.

On other matters, the commissioners received a petition signed by nearly 600 residents of University Park, protesting location of the proposed cross-county highway through University Park. The petition protested the new highway created additional traffic hazard for elementary school children.

From the College Park branch of the American Association of University Women, the board received a letter urging appointment of Mrs. Emma D. Everson, College Park, to the county's proposed 4-member recreation board.

A letter from the Berwyn District Civic Association urging the commissioners to "make every effort" to request the University of Maryland to survey county governmental procedures also was received.

2 GIs Sentenced to Die For Slaying 2 Japanese

Sapporo, Hokkaido, Japan, April 26 (AP).—Two American soldiers tonight were sentenced to death by an Army court-martial for the Thanksgiving night murder of two Japanese. They are Pfc. Virgil L. Aikens, 21, of Highmore, S. Dak., and Corpl. Harold F. Seevers, 21, of Wade, Ohio.

The prosecution said the two ran amok with a pistol last November 25, killing two Japanese and injuring several others.

Dogs Confined After Attack On Girl of 5

Two small terrier-type dogs, believed responsible for an attack on a 5-year-old Wellington, Va., girl Monday, were confined for observation yesterday on the order of Fairfax County police.

The dogs, owned by Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Crowley of Holiday House, Wellington, are believed to be those that seriously injured Candice Temple. The girl is in Walter Reed Hospital as a result of the attack.

The hospital late yesterday reported the girl's condition "still serious, but very much improved." She was bitten on the ear, arms, legs and shoulders.

Police Lieut. Richard Utz said he located the dogs after making a thorough search of the area around the child's home. He reported he found evidence that the child was attacked near the Crowley home. Her description of the dogs corresponded with that of the Crowley pets, Utz said.

The girl had played around the Crowley home on previous occasions, police stated. However, the dogs never have been known to be vicious, their owners declared.

Bowles Gives Baldwin Job; GOP Angry

By The Associated Press

GOP leaders last night were reported angry over Republican Senator Raymond E. Baldwin's acceptance of a Democratic appointment to a high court post in Connecticut. Some said it might spell victory for Administration programs now closely contested in Congress.

Bowles

All expressed surprise over the news that he had been named to his State's Supreme Court of Errors by Gov. Chester W. Bowles, an ardent New Deal Democrat. Bowles will appoint Baldwin's successor in the Senate.

While they wished Baldwin well, personally, several GOP Senators frankly said that when he leaves here next December, it will add to their problems of trying to overcome the Democrats' present 12-vote margin in the 1950 elections.

Senator Brewster (R., Me.), co-chairman of the GOP Senate Campaign Committee admitted he was "somewhat disturbed at its implications." He told reporters "it means a shift in the political spectrum."

Brewster said Baldwin's exit "will come at a time when every vote will count—at a time when one or two votes could throw the balance."

He did not specify what legislation he was referring to, but it is generally understood that such things as the controversial health insurance program probably will not come to a vote until next fall or winter.

Baldwin is not scheduled to assume his court duties until December 16.

Publishers Discuss Rising Operating Expenses

New York, April 26 (AP). Mounting costs of operation and other postwar problems continuing to plague newspaper publishers despite record revenues were aired today by heads of smaller dailies in two convention sessions of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Arthur P. Irving of the Glens Falls, N. Y., Post-Star and Times told of one small daily that increased its revenue $260,000 for 1948 over 1947 but increased its net profit only $1034.

An informal poll of the heads of the smaller dailies revealed that 5 cents is almost the universal price of newspapers in small cities now.

Cranston Williams, ANPA general manager, told the publishers the newsprint supply, which was very tight a year ago, appeared to have come into balance with demand.

He told newsmen that not a single publisher present reported that it now was necessary to buy newsprint on the gray market.

Consumption of newsprint in the United States increased almost 400,000 tons last year as compared with 1947, Williams said, but increased supplies from mills in the South, Canada and the Scandinavian countries met the increased requirements.

R. M. Hederman, jr., of the Jackson (Miss.) Clarion-Ledger, said another striking development in the past year was the downturn in earnings of radio stations owned by newspapers. He said that at one of the meetings, 28 publishers said they operated stations but only 14 were making a profit. All 28 were profitable the year before, the owners reported.

Directors Elected

By Associated Press

New York, April 26 (AP).—Five directors of the Associated Press were reelected and a new director was elected yesterday at the annual meeting of members of the world-wide news-gathering cooperative.

Those reelected were: Arthur Hays Sulzberger, New York Times; James E. Chappell, Birmingham (Ala.) Age Herald; Paul Bellamy, Cleveland Plain Dealer; J. R. Knowlond, Oakland (Calif.) Tribune and O. S. Warden, Great Falls (Mont.) Tribune.

The new director is Benjamin M. McKelway of the Washington (D. C.) Evening Star. He succeeds E. K. Gaylord of the Oklahoma City, Oklahoman, who was renominated but withdrew.

Pine Rejects Drafts Of Telephone Order

District Court Judge David A. Pine yesterday refused to sign two "unsatisfactory" drafts of his order restraining the removal of Nathan Miller's telephone at 4923 LaSalle rd., Avondale, Md.

Pine disapproved of the wording of the order submitted by Miller's counsel, and also of an alternate draft submitted by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and United States Attorney George Morris Fay.

The judge ordered both sides to work out a satisfactory draft as soon as possible. A new compromise draft may be submitted to him this morning.

Miller's telephone is one of 324 Fay is attempting to remove on the grounds it is being used to violate District gambling laws. Fay and the telephone company were temporarily enjoined from removng Miller's telephone on April 14.

Judge Pine said the order submitted by Miller's counsel was too broad, in that it did not limit the injunction to the particular request made by Fay. Pine reiterated he had enjoined the telephone company from removing the telephone on grounds it was being used to violate District laws.

"I did not enjoin them from removing it on other grounds," he said.

He objected to the Government draft as too narrow, in that it did not contain a statement of irreparable damage, and did not contain the conclusion that there was no legal justification for the injunction because there had been no factual basis for the charge that Miller was violating District laws.

Meanwhile, the Public Utilities Commission announced yesterday the postponement of the public hearing on the right of the telephone company to restrict telephone service to lawful use, and its right to remove telephones on request of law enforcement authorities.

Harry and Bertha B. Katz, 3169 Walbridge pl. nw., petitioned the PUC to cancel or suspend the pertinent section of the telephone company's new tariff, on the grounds that it was "arbitrary and capricious." Fay seeks to remove the Katz telephone.

The hearing postponement was requested by John L. Ingoldsby, counsel for Katz, who has been busy preparing another case.

The new hearing will take place at 10 a.m., May 6, in Room 500 of the District Building.

'Revenge'

Spanked Boy Shoots Wife Of Teacher

Arthur, Ill., April 26 (AP).—A 16-year-old boy, spanked for passing notes, today shot and seriously wounded a country schoolteacher.

Mrs. Donahoo

Glen

Mrs. Nina Donahoo, 57, teacher at the White School near here, was shot in the groin by a .38-caliber automatic pictol bullet. She is suffering from shock and loss of blood.

Lloyd

Sheriff Glen W. Braden said Mrs. Donahoo was shot in "revenge" by one of two boys who were spanked by her husband yesterday. The husband, George W. Donahoo, is teacher at the nearby Maple Grove School, which the boys attend. He punished them after he caught them passing notes.

The boys, Lloyd Titus, 16, and Glen Phillips, 11, were captured under a bridge more than a mile from the scene. No charge was filed immediately.

Braden said both boys and another witness made statements that Titus fired the shot. The sheriff said the statements gave the following account:

The two boys were punished yesterday at the Maple Grove School. This morning they took the pistol from the home of Phillips' foster parents. They were taken by bus to the White School, where they usually transfer to the Maple Grove School in another bus.

The boys approached Mrs. Donahoo in the school yard and demanded her purse. They followed her into the building, where young Titus struck her on the head with the pistol and grabbed the purse as she fell. She followed them outdoors and Titus shot her as she attempted to retrieve her purse.

ACCUSED GAMBLERS—Herman (The Judge) Kadan (left), 46, owner of the house at 2730 Woodley pl. nw., and Theodore (Little Joe) Scheve, 30, of 2521 34th pl. se., leave District Court, where they are on trial for allegedly running night-long crap games at the Woodley pl. address nose. Ricked jumped on me and we wrestled.

Scheve Admits Using Gun

"Then I pulled my gun out my pocket and hit him."

Under cross-examination by Prosecutor Arthur McLaughlin, Scheve said he shifted the gun from his rear pocket to his front pocket before he had made his successful attempt to leave. He said he did not know how many times he had struck Ricker, except that it had been more than once. He said Ricker struck him "three or four times."

Denies "Protection" Statement

"I was scared of him," Scheve said. "He was younger and stronger, and I'm not as fast as I was."

Scheve denied telling the Rickers that he refused to be shaken down by tin-horn gamblers, because he "paid plenty for protection." Ricker had testified Scheve made such a statement.

In another surprise move, a Government witness repudiated a statement concerning the fracas which he had signed on the day it occurred.

He was Henry Eugene Liverette, a cab driver, who drove Ricker to the Woodley pl. address. Assistant United States Attorney McLaughlin entered as evidence Liverette's signed statement, which said, in part: "I had waited outside 2730 Woodley pl. for about 30 minutes when I noticed a big man come out. He was pulling the trigger and trying to fire an automatic pistol at the people I had just driven to this address. He kept on pulling the trigger as he went out, but near me the cartridge holder of his pistol dropped out. He got in a car and drove off." Ricker identified the "big man" as "Big Joe" Scheve.

McLaughlin Is "Surprised"

Under questioning by McLaughlin, Liverette testified that he could not identify Scheve, that he could not swear he saw a gun, and that he did not know what had dropped.

McLaughlin announced surprise, a legal maneuver whereby he gained the right to cross-examine his own witness. He then asked the cab driver if he had not spent Monday afternoon talking to Mrs. Kadan. Both Liverette and Mrs. Kadan denied this.

Rosen, the Kadans and Theodore Scheve all testified that Mrs. Ricker had created a scene early that morning in trying to get $850 from "Big Joe" Scheve. Under cross-examination they all said they had been threatened by Ricker and scared of those threats, but had not called the police.

Dr. Miles to Lecture

Dr. Walter R. Miles, Yale University professor of psychology, will address the regular monthly meeting of the District Psychology Association, scheduled for 8:15 p. m. today in Room 101, George Washington University School of Government building, 21st and G sts. nw. His topic will be "Infrared Radiation as Stimulus for Olfactory Behavior in Honey Bees."

Court Names Aide to Serve Writ on Bowie

A special process server was appointed yesterday at the request of James J. Laughlin to serve a subpena on Prince Georges County State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie.

Frederick G. Pence, a private detective, was appointed by District Court Judge McGuire, after Laughlin submitted an affidavit in which he stated:

1. Bowie is evading service of the subpena in connection with Laughlin's $208,000 suit alleging slander and malicious prosecution.

2. The marshal's office, ordinarily process servers for the District, has a "tremendous burden."

Laughlin claims Pence will have more time than the marshals to spot Bowie if he crosses the District line and thus becomes susceptible to service.

Bowie and Laughlin have been feuding in connection with the Prince Georges County grand jury investigation of gambling.

Bowie issued a body attachment against Laughlin calling for his reappearance before the grand jury with certain documents.

Laughlin retaliated by suing Bowie for $208,000, and then subsequently adding the grand jury foreman, F. Bowie Addison, as a defendant, and increasing the damages sought to $258,275.

Clergyman's Wife Found Slain

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MRS. JEAN G. HETENYI, her body pierced by two .25 caliber bullets, was found floating in the Genesee River, near Brighton, N. Y. Her fingerprints disclosed her to be the wife of the Rev. George Hetenyi, an Episcopal minister of Amherst. He is being questioned by police at Rochester

Cleric Held As Witness in Wife's Slaying

Rochester, N. Y., April 26 (AP). A clergyman was ordered held today as a material witness in the pistol-slaying of his 25-year-old wife, whose body was found in the Genesee River.

The Rev. George Hetenyi, 40, who has served as a supply pastor in western New York Episcopal churches, identified the body of the brown-haired woman as that of his wife. But he declared at a court hearing that he "didn't kill" her.

At the couple's home in Amherst, near Buffalo, police said they had discovered a bullet hole and stains that might be blood in the family car.

Justice Daniel J. O'Mara of the State Supreme Court set bail for Hetenyi at $50,000.

Hetenyi asserted that county authorities had tried to force him into "an extreme mental condition."

The Hungarian-born clergyman at first refused to view the body, which was at the morgue. After being brought here from Amherst, he broke a window and overturned furniture in the sheriff's private living room at the jail.

Sheriff Albert Skinner quoted the clergyman as saying he had last seen his wife Friday night when he took her to see a psychiatrist and then returned home with her. He asserted that she had left him for three or four days on previous occasions.

Ex-Officer Put Under Bond in Alleged Attack

Blackstone Smith, dismissed Brentwood, Md., police sergeant, yesterday was placed under $500 bond by the Prince Georges Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro to insure his appearance as a witness when wanted in the investigation into his claim that he was bound, gagged and gassed in his apartment last Saturday.

Smith was closeted for about three hours yesterday with State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie and Chief of Detectives Charles N. Thomson at the county courthouse. Both he and the officials refused any comment at the end of their sessions.

The former police sergeant has told police he was attacked by "at least two men" when he returned to his apartment at 4100 Utah ave., Brentwood, about 4 a. m. last Saturday. According to his account he was thrown to the floor, his feet tied with tape, his hands manacled behind him with his own handcuffs and a cotton gag stuffed in his mouth and bound by adhesive tape. He said he had no time to identify his assailants, who turned on four burners of the gas stove before leaving.

The alleged attack and the report of Smith's dismissal from the Brentwood police force followed his appearance last Wednesday before a Prince Georges County grand jury investigating gambling.

Brentwood officials denied that his discharge had anything to do with the gambling investigation.

Beard, 'Pickle Tycoon,' Sued On Bet Money

Sam Beard, the Mount Rainier, Md., pickle tycoon, was sued for $14,349 (and 5 cents) yesterday in District Court by Bernard P. Nimro, a lawyer and tax consultant who has had his troubles, too.

Nimrod's suit, filed by Attorney James J. Laughlin, charges that at periodic intervals (like when a hot favorite ran fourth at Bowie) Beard converted to his own use sums of money totaling more than $14,000 and belonging to Nimro.

The suit says a demand has been made for the money but that Beard won't return it.

"Mr. Nimro," said Laughlin, "is a lawyer and tax consultant who gave this money to Mr. Beard in connection with him (Nimro's) research in the realm of gambling, in an effort to eradicate same and make this a better world to live in."

Could this have been money lost in the form of bets to Beard?

It could have been, Laughlin conceded.

Well, what about the District law that permits a person to sue for recovery of gambling losses?

"It is not," said Laughlin, "our wish to embarrass Mr. Beard. We have charged only that he converted money belonging to Mr. Nimro to his own use.

"If he chooses to dispute the claim—if he asks for a bill of particulars—we'll answer him as a common gambler. We'll tell all about his gambling operations."

Nimro had some embarrassment of his own last year. He was convicted of embezzling $2628 from Loy W. Henderson, State Department official, and was sentenced to a term of from three months to a year in Lorton.

Court Upholds U. S. Eviction of Well-Off Tenants

Pittsburgh, April 26 (AP).—Public housing tenants can't expect Uncle Sam to remain their "angel for life," a judge ruled today in upholding plans to evict some 1500 families.

Judge Michael A. Musmanno, of Allegheny County Court of Common Pleas, issued the opinion upholding eviction actions of the Pittsburgh and Allegheny County housing authorities. The agencies said the tenants' incomes exceed the $3180 yearly maximum allowed for residence in the low-cost dwellings.

The agencies claimed some families had incomes as high as $9000 yearly. Evictions are under way against high-income tenants to make way for an estimated 30,000 low-income applicants.

Eberharter Named To Federal Bench

President Truman yesterday nominated Representative Herman P. Eberharter (D., Pa.), a strong administration supporter, to be Federal judge for the Western District of Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania Democratic leaders agreed on Eberharter for the nomination after considering more than a score of possibilities. Eberharter also had the backing of the CIO.

If confirmed by the Senate, he will succeed Judge Robert M. Gibson, retired.

Third Man Gets Chair for Rape

Martinsville, Va., April 26 (AP).—The third consecutive death sentence in as many trials was brought in by a Circuit Court jury this afternoon.

Booker T. Millner, third of seven men being tried separately under indictments for rape, was found guilty and his penalty fixed as the electric chair.

Previously juries had convicted Joe Henry Hampton and Frank Hairston, jr., for participation in the same assault and set their punishment at death in the electric chair.

The jury received the Millner case at 3:30 and deliberated an hour and 45 minutes before returning the verdict.

Millner, testifying in his own defense, denied an actual assault of Mrs. Ruby Stroud Floyd, although he admitted from the witness stand that he started to atttack her but when she pleaded with him not to do so he left the scene of the crime.

Previously Mrs. Floyd had identified Millner as one of those who twice assaulted her on the evening of January 8.

Lonely Heart's Son Admit Third Shooting

Dover, Del., April 26 (AP).—Robert Brennan, 15-year-old youth charged with murder in Delaware's "lonely hearts" killing, has admitted a third shooting, police announced today.

Robert's mother, Mrs. Inez Brennan, and he are jailed on murder charges in the shotgun slaying of Wade N. Wooldridge, 67-year-old Bedford, Va., farmer Mrs. Brennan met through "lonely hearts" letters.

Delaware State police reported Mrs. Brennan and the son signed statements saying Robert fired the shot that killed Wooldridge on Mrs. Brennan's orders. They also signed statements saying Mrs. Brennan killed Hugo Schulz, 61, Concord, N. H. Robert later made a new statement saying he killed Schulz, also at his mother's instruction.

Detective Wilfred Dube, in Camden, N. J., said today that Robert admitted shooting Mrs. Bessie Watkins of Laurel Springs, N. J., nearly two years ago intending to rob her. She was shot in the neck and later recovered. Police never solved the case.

River Study Planned By Resources Board

Capt. Granville Conway, transportation director of the National Security Resources Board, said yesterday a special task force will start mapping out a program of potential wartime mobilization in major American waterway areas.

If the United States goes to war the study force is expected to have garnered enough information to help organize temporary wartime control of inland waterway transportation.

Laurence C. Turner, president of the Great Lakes Towing Co., Cleveland, has been named chairman of the group.

Rep. Walter Lauds Fay, Denies 'Hill' Job Rumor

Representative Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.) yesterday complimented United States Attorney George Morris Fay for his efforts "to clear up a very stinking situation" in Washington.

At the same time, Walter denounced as "made out of the whole cloth" reports that Fay has been urged to accept appointment as chief counsel for the House Un-American Activities Committee, of which Walter is a member.

Fay flatly stated he has had "no conferences and no discussions" about such an appointment for him on Capitol Hill.

Sullivan Quits as Navy Chief

Sullivan Quits — Johnson Adamant

and concern to him, Sullivan continued, was "the unprecedented action on the part of a Secretary of Defense in so drastically and arbitrarily changing and restricting the operational plans of an armed service without consultation with that service."

"The consequences of such a procedure are far-reaching and can be tragic," the Navy chief added.

Johnson was in New York yesterday, but late in the day, his office issued the following comment from him on Sullivan's attack:

"I regret very much that my old friend and colleague, John Sullivan, has joined the aircraft carrier issue on personal grounds, and I believe that he too will soon regret his action of today."

Demands for Inquiry

The Navy Secretary's dramatic exit brought immediate Republican demands on Capitol Hill that the carrier issue be investigated. Previously, little opposition to the stop-work order had been voiced.

Senate GOP Leader Kenneth S. Wherry and Senator Styles Bridges, a ranking minority member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, both demanded that Sullivan be heard. Wherry declared the problem is a "major policy question which should be decided by Congress."

But the chairmen of the Senate and House Armed Services Committees, Senator Millard Tydings (Md.) and Representative Carl Vinson (Ga.), backed Johnson's action on the carrier. Both praised Sullivan's service, but were disinclined to have Congress review the whole matter.

Tydings said that Johnson had told him the decision to abandon the carrier was backed by the President and a majority of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and that "is good enough for me." Vinson told the House that while he has been a lifelong supporter of the Navy, he is convinced we must rely on land-based planes and land fighting in the future. We cannot afford the "luxury" of an experimental carrier that would cost as much as 60 B-36 bombers, the Georgian added.

Representative Harry Sheppard (D., Calif.), a member of the House Military Appropriations Subcommittee and a carrier supporter, said it would cost between 15 and 20 million dollars to stop work and cancel contracts on the vessel. Work has been under way for months.

Interservice Controversy

The question of building the 188-million-dollar flattop has been one of the most heated interservice controversies in years. Air Force chiefs contended that by building a ship that could launch large B-29 type A-bomb carrying bombers, the Navy was encroaching on its field of strategic bombing.

Navy officials insisted the super carrier was designed for general naval use, but looked upon the ship as their hope in keeping the Navy's place as a major defense arm. Since cancellation of the contract, many admirals have been gloomy over the future of the sea service.

Sullivan's letter of resignation and Mr. Truman's acceptance put no effective date on his departure. Later, the former told reporters he would leave the Pentagon in "a matter of days" to return to his law practice here and in Manchester, N. H.

No indication was given by the White House as to who will succeed Sullivan. For weeks, however, it has been reported he would leave the Government over differences with the new iron-fisted Defense Secretary, and Jonathan Daniels, North Carolina publisher and son of World War I Navy Secretary Josephus Daniels, has been prominently mentioned for the post.

The positions of Secretary of the Army, Undersecretary of the Army and Assistant Secretary of the Air Force also must be filled.

Va. Driver Permit Revocation Curbed

Richmond, Va., April 26 (AP).—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today held the State must prove definitely the public safety is involved to revoke the registration certificate and operator's permit of a motorist.

It remanded for a new trial the case of James T. Butler, from the Mecklenburg County Circuit Court.

Butler, charged with frequent violation of motor vehicle laws, appealed to the Circuit Court after the State Division of Motor Vehicles suspended his operator's license and registration certificate for 12 months.

In his appeal to the Supreme Court Butler contended the authority granted to the commissioner in the Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act of 1948 is an unconstitutional delegation of legislative power.

The Supreme Court's opinion held that any legislative enactment which contains no standards or guides for an administration official would be vulnerable.

Million Dollar Oil Verdict for J. A. Moffett Set Aside

New York, April 26 (AP).—A $1,150,000 verdict in favor of James A. Moffett, retired oil company executive, against the Arabian American Oil Co., was set aside today. Moffett's counsel said he would appeal.

Federal Judge Edward A. Conger, in granting a company motion, held that the services Moffett claimed to have given "are the kind the laws say may not be compensated for."

The company had contended that no man can make a contract to sell his influence with public authorities.

A Federal Court jury awarded Moffett the verdict February 15.

Moffett claimed he was retained in 1941 to protect the company's Saudi Arabian interests after King Ibn Saud threatened to cancel the company's concessions unless it paid him 30 million dollars.

Joseph M. Proskauer, who handled the case for the company, said the firm always has denied it made any contract with Moffett.

Dogs For Science

Some opponents of vivisection have misunderstood our April 20 editorial, "Dogs or Children," as advocating that personal pets be turned over to medical schools and laboratories for scientific experiments. Nothing could be further from the truth. Private pets are licensed in the District. Such licenses are supposed to guarantee that if pets are picked up they will be given proper care at the pound and returned to their owners. If this is not the case, then something is drastically wrong with pound administration.

What we do advocate is that a number of the 6000-odd stray and unclaimed dogs destroyed here each year anyhow be turned over to research institutions which now are forced to buy animals on a sort of black market. These are the dogs which otherwise would be heaped in a bin and killed by carbon monoxide fumes at the pound—with no veterinarian in attendance. The fate of animals used for scientific experiments is far more merciful. Medical laboratories operate under a strict code adopted by the American Medical Association. All but a small fraction of 1 per cent of the dogs are anesthetized during experiments and later painlessly put to death. Everything is done for the animals' comfort. There is no sadism, and the director of each institution is responsible for the propriety of all experiments.

A denial of animals for research would mean either that the benefits of scientific experimentation would be halted or that human subjects would have to be used for untried procedures. Experimentation on dogs has been instrumental in the discovery of the new cancer detection process, the blue baby operation and insulin, to mention just a few benefits. Locally it contributed to the perfection of a new treatment for dropsy at Howard University. Surely homeless animals used in this fashion to further human life serve a far higher purpose than those killed aimlessly at some dog pound.

The Silent Press

It has been as much of a shock to us as to any of our readers to see the evidence of political venality among a number of small-town newspaper editors and publishers in Illinois. At least 33 have been named who at one time or another during the ousted Green administration in that State were on the State payroll. Some of them may have performed certain services to earn their pay. In other cases checks paid out of the State's treasury were obviously compensation for sale of influence. One publisher received $850 as a "public works laborer." His paper is called the March of Progress! Several other editors and publishers received larger amounts as "messenger-clerks." Those carried on the payroll as "investigators" gathered in five-figure sums over several years.

The unethical conduct of the individuals concerned is obviously the first and foremost issue. Beyond that is a larger and broader concern: the reputation of the American newspaper press as a whole. For the fact that none of the culprits in this instance owned or operated large city newspapers is morally beside the point. And furthermore, the distinction, if any, will be missed by the ordinary citizen. Too many Americans have an almost innate distrust of the press as it is, and are always ready to gobble up any stray "proof" that all newspapers are venal.

As a matter of fact, the ethics of every member of the press are inevitably of concern to every other member. And this makes all the more infuriating the treatment of this story. It was broken in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News on April 14. Until The Washington Post heard about it, no other newspaper, so far as we can find out, at least none outside of the Illinois region, picked it up. Nor did either of the two chief wire services convey the story as far as Washington, if they carried it at all.

At best this looks like crass indifference to a particularly juicy bit of news. At worst it looks like a cover-up of scandal within the family. We cannot approve of either. The newspaper press, by virtue of the First Amendment, claims special status as a pillar of free and honest government. By the same token it has special obligations. Among these is the duty not to keep its own dirty linen from public view. Nothing can more surely damage the reputation of the American press for honesty and accuracy than failure to acknowledge promptly and openly its own faults.

Pact In Perspective

The start of public hearings this morning will give Mr. Acheson and other Administration officials a chance to put the North Atlantic Treaty in clear perspective. The Senate and the entire American public badly need a calm restatement of the case. Judging from some of the chatter that has come from Capitol Hill, one would imagine the treaty to be an act of charity by the United States. It is no such thing. It is genuinely an act of joint self-defense, made necessary by Soviet obstruction and by the danger of Soviet aggression against ourselves as well as others. It tells Russia very quietly, without bombast, that an attack against any of the Western nations will in all probability mean war against all. The treaty is thus designed to end the jitters that have been holding back Europe's economic recovery and, indirectly, our own. If it fulfills its peaceful purposes, the United States will benefit as much as any other signer.

The same two-way relationship exists in the military assistance program which Congress will be asked to approve later under the general sanction of Article 3 of the treaty. We hope Mr. Acheson will not retreat into legalistic hair-splitting if he is asked—as he is sure to be—whether the treaty commits us to provide military aid. The treaty is a serious commitment to help make our treaty partners ready to resist attack. The Administration will propose what kind of help, and how much, it thinks necessary; the final determination will be left to the "honest judgment" of Congress. Here again, as in the case of the treaty, our military help will not be an act of charity, but rather a recognition that the defense of other countries is vital to the defense of the United States. An authoritative Government spokesman said on Tuesday that the European treaty partners would provide for most of their rearmament through their own efforts. If we supplement their efforts with military equipment, raw materials or military missions, we shall also get tangible and intangible help in return—help in knowing, above all, that we have allies willing and able to resist an aggressor.

Mr. Acheson should not have to devote much time to military assistance in his statement today unless, of course, myopic Senators compel him to. It would be a pity if the strong, clear affirmation of the treaty were to be drowned out by clamor over the cost of military aid. The worth of this treaty cannot be measured by double-entry bookkeeping. Its value will be precisely what the Congress and the people of the United States choose to make it. There is a tide in the affairs of men which has led 12 nations to avow their common interest and common purpose. If the tide is taken at its flood, if the treaty is used to hasten a closer union of the countries involved, its ratification can be a turning-point in world affairs.

China And The West

What has happened to the British in the Far East is not of exclusive concern to the British. It is a Western concern. For six months past forewarnings of what might happen on the Yangtze to anybody who got in the way of the Communists have been advertised from the housetops. Premier Attlee admitted in the course of the China debate yesterday in the House of Commons that Nanking had warned the British that it could no longer guarantee safe passage of foreign vessels on the Yangtze. Yet the British refused to heed the signals. Still thinking in terms of the Arrow War, they sent some gunboats to Nanking on a provisioning errand to their nationals and ran into the very kind of thing that Lord Trenchard had grown old in warning them against—concentrated fire from shore batteries which he said was disastrous to seacraft operating offshore without aircraft. They suffered grievous loss of life.

It was almost another Singapore in the sense that diplomats and naval men still had their heads in the nineteenth century. Neither the new day nor the air age was in their minds. Mr. Churchill is breathing fire and brimstone in the House of Commons, but it is too late. In this matter the British are impotent—a situation that is highly disturbing, for the incident has worsened the position of all Westerners, with the Communists left cock-a-hoop.

Last November 23 we suggested that our policy-makers let go of Chiang's coattails and base a defense policy squarely on the Western interest in the Far East. At that time we pleaded—not for the first time—for the establishment of centers of security. We said it could be done only "in concert with the members of the embryonic Atlantic Pact." There was "a community of interest," we stressed later, on December 11, that must be safeguarded from the "mobsters." This we called the overriding consideration, a consideration far more important than "entanglement in the Chinese morass." But all that the foreign powers have done in the meantime is to watch the climax develop in China with the fascinated and paralyzed attention that Greek tragedies provoke. It was reported that the British in Shanghai even thought they could pick up American trade from the more panicky Americans.

What the Westerners have got to do now is to pick themselves up as best they can and get to work together in doing what they ought to have done six months ago, viz, determine the centers of security in the Far East which they will safeguard. It looks as if they are prepared to quit Shanghai, but centers are available in Formosa and Hongkong. The powers had better profit from the British lesson and send a man instead of a boy to do the job of protection.

Maritime Chairman

The fact that President Truman has not reappointed Vice Admiral William W. Smith as chairman of the Maritime Commission undoubtedly indicates that the Chief Executive has taken seriously some of the recent criticisms of the commission. The forbearance has been fortunate. Admiral Smith has been part of a majority of the commission that has seemed to view that agency's function as one of getting bigger and better subsidies for the shipping industry.

This majority recently perpetrated a singular piece of funny business. Vice Chairman Raymond S. McKeough, a former Congressman who has consistently opposed the narrow advocacy of the industry-minded majority, was in line to succeed Admiral Smith as acting chairman. Three days before Admiral Smith's term expired, the other commissioners suddenly discovered that Mr. McKeough had overrun his one-year elective term as vice chairman by several months. He was deposed. Now the Democratic National Committee reportedly is bringing pressure on the President to give the chairmanship to the member of the commission who has been the most unabashed spokesman for higher subsidies and geographical interests.

The Maritime Commission will not regain public confidence until it again draws a distinction between promotion of an adequate merchant marine and mere submission to commercial demands. The most logical way to restore this confidence is for the President to appoint a chairman who has shown an ability to place the public interest first. If Mr. Truman prefers not to draw such an appointee from within the commission, he could not improve upon the procedure he followed in the case of the Civil Aeronautics Board of drafting a top-level outside executive not committed to any one view. Detailed knowledge is far less important than an open mind. The long-run interest of the shipping industry, no less than that of the general public, lies in a Maritime Commission equipped to give fair but not favored treatment.

Truth From Moscow

Official faces must be red with embarrassment and newspaper faces with wrath and chagrin over the Tass disclosure that peace feelers on the controversy over Berlin have been going on since February 15. On April 19, General Clay in Berlin said he knew of no Russian feelers toward lifting the blockade. Next day an "authoritative" State Department spokesman said that "the reticence toward these rumors was in no sense a desire to be mysterious, but solely in order to avoid misleading the public." The following day the President said blandly that he knew nothing about any peace feelers. The fact is now given out that the feelers were discussed by the Foreign Ministers in conference in Washington a couple of weeks prior to the dementi of all three of these parties. The number of persons in lesser position who loyally echoed their superiors is too numerous to mention.

The result is, of course, that the American press has been all mixed up in its own comment on the peace feelers. This is why Tass is putting all of us right. The news agency not only gives the record of the conversations but says they were initiated by the United States seeking to elucidate the Stalin interview with Mr. Kingsbury Smith on January 30. This is a way of saying that the United States started the contact. Well, let the Russians have this satisfaction if they want to; the American people, thank God, are more interested in peace with justice than in prestige. The fact in history is that the starting point of the present negotiations seems to have been the January 30 overture by Premier Stalin.

It is to the Administration's credit that it did not stand on its dignity and refuse to take any notice of Stalin's unconventional approach. This is what we had been afraid of. Evidently it was at Secretary Acheson's instigation that Mr. Jessup asked Mr. Malik for elucidation of the Stalin point about Berlin that Mr. Acheson had already said was "interesting." The State Department in the statement appearing yesterday says there are still "certain points requiring clarification." Whatever they are, Tass ignores them, saying flatly that the only bar to the lifting of the blockade of Berlin is the fixing of a date for a Big Four meeting of the Foreign Ministers.

If this is substantiated by Mr. Malik in reply to a direct inquiry that Mr. Jessup will make of him tomorrow, then, as the State Department says, "the way appears clear." However, it is well to bear in mind that the only occasion for cheering is the nearing prospect that the heat will be taken off the cold war at its most sensitive point.

THE LANTERN

My neighbor down his barn-yard lane,
From supper-table once again
To close a gate, to milk a cow,
Walks with a dusk-lit lantern now.

His light along the meadow glows.
I see it twinkle as he goes
Among the fireflies, faint and far,
A candle-beam, an earth-bound star.

Robeson's Delusion

The recent statement made by Paul Robeson at the World Peace Conference in Paris "that the American Negro will never fight the Soviet Union," is a gross overstatement, indicative of a confused intellectual.

I take issue with Mr. Robeson's statement because of the following points: (1) No one person can represent the opinions of 15 million individuals; (2) The American Negro is as individualistic as any other American citizen and his opinions vary as the opinions of any other groups vary; (3) The American Negro, having been born, reared, and educated in Western civilization, thinks as any other person or group of people in Western civilization. The Negro knows America and does not know Russia. He is an American citizen, and his interest lies in the interest of America.

As a Negro, I realize the shortcomings of the actual practicing of the American ideals which I understand much more than I do Russian ideals and practices; but despite these shortcomings, I feel that the American Negro as any other American citizen will not only fight Russia but any other country that threatens the American way of life.

JULIUS W. HOBSON.
Washington.

Mr. Paul Robeson's remarks at the Paris Peace Congress are all a pipe dream. Or maybe he is smoking one of Mr. Joseph Stalin's pipes.

We American Negroes are proud of our country. In all wars against the enemy the Negroes have always played an important part in fighting for their democracy, and will continue to do so regardless of what we have suffered. This is our country and we will protect its rights.

Tax On Slums

One of the greatest causes for slums is the good return realized by owners. Considering the capital outlay, low taxes and virtual absence of upkeep, slum properties pay very good returns, often much higher than if the property were remodeled and kept up.

So why not a depreciated property surtax? Flat rate levies against properties for each item such as lack of plumbing facilities, electric light, heating, presence of outdoor plumbing facilities, rat infestation, etc. This surtax should be on an inverse depreciation principle.

Coupled with a rent control provision preventing such levies being passed on in the form of increased rents it would discourage slums from developing, encourage rebuilding and provide revenue to cover the expense caused by slums.

Three R's

According to a story in your issue of April 19, the fourth annual report of the teaching profession issued by the National Education Association declares that "the amount of time spent in today's school on the three R's is more than four times as great as it was a hundred years ago." (Italics supplied.)

This amazing statement apparently is the punch line of the NEA's report which is described by its executive secretary as an answer to critics "who fear that the course of education may be getting away from such essential learnings as reading, writing and arithmetic."

Such a statement, in my opinion, is an insult to the intelligence of parents throughout the Nation today who question, on very valid grounds, the effectiveness of the methods of teaching presently in vogue in most of the public schools of our country. Does the NEA hope to still the "fears" of today's parents by referring to teaching methods of a hundred years ago?

Postal Rates

Your issue of March 28 contained a letter from Edson C. Hill of Oxford, Ohio, concerning the continuous demands of the Postoffice Department that Congress increase postal rates.

Mr. Hill says, in substance, that the operation of the Postoffice Department is a public service, not a private enterprise. Consequently, a deficit at the end of the year is not necessarily to be condemned.

If the operation of the department results in a deficit, there are other ways of remedying this.

For instance, the Hoover Commission recommended that the Postoffice Department reduce operating expenses. Has Postmaster General Donaldson given serious consideration to reduction of operating expenses as a possible way out?

China Policy

The loss of the Nanking-Shanghai "heart" of republican China to communism is a fearful blow to democracy in Asia. From the great seaport link with Anglo-American cultural, economic and political influences, there radiated throughout the body of China the democratic aspirations of the large group of Chinese intelligentsia which peopled this vital arterial area.

At this tragic hour in American relationships with China, these cultural and educational ties—these emotional and spiritual bonds—are being sundered, perhaps irretrievably. Herein lies the greatest victory of the Russian world in Asia, namely, the coercion of the century-old affinities of Chinese leadership with America into the Communist orbit.

This coercion of the modern Chinese spirit into a Russian orientation may be undertaken with subtlety, but it will be accomplished with deadly certainty. If the mind and soul of China be Russianized, then indeed will China be lost.

Against this spiritual coercion of the Chinese, Americans must begin their fight now, without a moment's further delay. Ten such years of irresolution as permitted the march of another barbarism from Manchuria to Pearl Harbor, and the Russian tide will never be rolled back. A century of American influence in China is in fearful peril because of some juvenile departmental tactic of "wait and see!" ERNEST T. NASH.

"Dogs Or Children"

We congratulate The Washington Post on being a fine advertising medium through its April 20 editorial, "Dogs or Children." One hundred and fifty-five letters and phone calls from friends opposing the Miller vivisection bill, HR3248, are now on record. Only three supporters of this inhumane bill mailed us your editorial. One did not sign. Your editorial didn't hurt us.

ALMA T. OPAL.
President, Anti-Vivisection Society
Washington.

I, too, have a sentimental attachment for dogs, especially my own dog, and I also love children. But most of the dogs in the District pound are homeless and friendless, and there can be no bond of affection or sentimental attachment between them and their one-time owners, or they wouldn't remain there. It would seem to me, therefore, as a layman, that the arguments of the antivivisectionists are as devoid of sound logic and sentimental attachment for the animals that are sacrificed in the interest of science and for use as human food as is my own when I sit down to eat a fine juicy sirloin steak or a tasty lamb chop.

C. L. L.
Washington.

My conscience prevents me from subscribing to any such barbarous code of human behavior and I would be derelict in my duty to our loyal friends, the dog, if I did not answer his yelp for help and denounce vivisection with all possible vehemence. Therefore, I cannot permit myself to be a party to the dissemination of vicious propaganda directed against man's best friend—our pups. I trust my customers will appreciate that it is a matter of deep concern and principle to me in stopping the sale of The Washington Post.

WILLIAM D. GARVEY.

I find myself definitely on the side of those who favor use of pound dogs for medical research. If a crowd of stray dogs are walking their last mile, herded by the poundmaster into an air-tight and lightless room to be smothered by the fumes of a gasoline engine, I for one would be glad to see some of them snatched from this fate and given a few more days or weeks of life, to be put to death finally by the merciful ether of the surgeon, who was trying to discover a new treatment for some dread disease.

But I have been burned up by the contents of the April 22 letter by Mr. C. Bradford Mitchell, who relates some ghastly experiences with the present poundmaster or his subordinates. If a citizen can call the pound on two successive occasions, anxiously asking about a lost pet, and be told both times that the dog was not there when actually there all the time, I wonder if any of us can be at ease when the family dog walks across the line into the District. What business does the poundmaster have, picking up a dog that wears a tag? And isn't the tag evidence that he has picked up somebody's pet?

ERRETT C. ALBRITTON, M.D.
Chevy Chase.

The Washington Post should give the District roundmaster an opportunity to defend his administration against charges of this kind, but if none is forthcoming or if such defense is inadequate, vigorous steps should be taken to oust the present incumbent and obtain a poundmaster who hasn't gone stale on the job.

Refereeing Excise Battles

By Malvina Lindsay

Congressmen's Task

DISADVANTAGES of a lopsided Congress—one predominantly masculine—will be shown up when and if the impending battle over excise taxes breaks.

Not a woman sits on the Senate Finance Committee or the House Ways and Means Committee. Men in those groups, many of them elderly and supposedly remote from the nuances of perfume, lipstick, fur coats, earrings and handbags, will find themselves refereeing on the relative importance in the feminine economy of these so-called luxury items. And if the excise fight gets to the floor of Congress, one woman in the Senate and eight in the House, in a total group of 522 men, will vote on the issue.

Right now one battle line-up is fur coats, luggage, jewelry versus handbags (pocketbooks), billfolds, key cases.

Another is handbags and babies' dusting powder versus cabarets. The fur industry is especially concerned over a House bill which would reduce the 20 per cent excise on furs (also on jewelry and luggage) to only 15 per cent, yet repeal the entire tax on handbags (also billfolds and key cases).

Fur men maintain they should come first in tax relief because their industry has suffered most. But many women's organizations, including some labor groups—and not incidentally the National Authority for the Ladies Handbag Industry—are telling Congress that the entire feminine population, from Congresswomen to scrubwomen, carries a handbag, and that the tax on these falls especially hard on low-income groups.

The proposal of one Senator to reduce the excise tax on handbags and dusting powder 10 per cent with taxes on cabarets reduced 5 per cent also threatens to bring embattled women into action.

THE HANDBAG forces are trying to educate men members of Congress (as well as men constituents) to the fact that a handbag functions as a pocketbook, is not an overnight bag or a brief case — a masculine misconception said to have been originally responsible for the tax.

The fur industry, however, is ready to show that a fur coat is a winter necessity for most women, at least those living in the northern half of the United States, also that the bulk of its sales are in the lower-priced garments. The industry moreover insists that its loss in business because of the tax causes the Government to lose more in fur income taxes than it makes in fur excises.

Another front developing in the excise battle is over the double standard. Why, ask women (spurred on by the Toilet Goods Association) are lipsticks taxed when razor blades aren't? Why pay on cleansing cream when shaving cream is tax free? And the handbag bloc inquires as to why men's pockets (9 to 12 in each suit) don't bear a 20 per cent tax.

Jewelers, also are coming in on the fray to cite how the excise tax handicaps romance by running up the cost of engagement and wedding rings and wedding presents. Why should the gift of silver be taxed, they ask, when one of crystal, china or linen is tax free?

CONGRESSIONAL referees may have difficulty deciding whether excise taxes or tight money is cutting sales. In February, Internal Revenue Bureau collections on fur excises were down about 1½ million dollars. But collections on jewelry, toilet preparations and luggage were ahead of a year ago, and 1948 cosmetics sales have been reported as eight tenths of 1 per cent ahead of 1947. Yet jewelry and cosmetics both had earlier slumps.

Any industry will have a hard fight to get out from under an excise tax because of the threatened deficit in the national budget and President Truman's proposal for higher taxes. One House bill for cutting down excises would reduce taxes by 452 million dollars, it is estimated.

Since the war's end many bills have been introduced in Congress to repeal excises. These haven't gotten anywhere. But this time the industries, plus the consumers they have alerted throughout the country, are pushing for a showdown in the excise fight. But the most that can be expected might be some adjustment. For excise taxes have become a basic part of the national tax program.

Senatorial "Discovery"

It has been pointed out that the "discovery" made by the "slumming" Senators is a matter of long-standing and of much notoriety. The really shocking thing is that the senatorial mind is apparently put into action only when the horribles are paraded before it.

That there may exist the few slums which the Senators saw is a bad thing, but not one which of itself could require legislative correction on a broad scale: It is only because such conditions are extensive and because no general housing alternatives have been available to the people who reside in the slums that the legislation obligation arises. Since the facts have been made known to him for years it reflects on the caliber of the legislator to learn that his nose is more sensitive than his mind.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Withering Away Of Mr. Katayama

TOKYO.—The route to the official residence of the Prime Minister of Japan is lined with endless little boxlike structures, built higgledy-piggledy on the wasteland left by the American fire-bombs. The residence itself is a large, modern, depressing structure. Its present occupant, Shigeru Yoshida, is a tiny, old-fashioned, extremely cheerful man. His most striking characteristic is a smile which is apparently a permanent fixture of his face. The smile is very merry and seems to suggest that Mr. Yoshida is always on the point of sharing some enormous joke with his visitor.

Politically, Mr. Yoshida has some right to be cheerful. His conservative coalition commands a crushing majority in the Diet. Smiling, Mr. Yoshida explains that he is not a conservative at all. On the contrary, he is very liberal. Hardly anyone in Japan would agree.

Joseph Dodge, for example, is a former president of the American Bankers Association and is hardly a radical. He is the most important of the current crop of visiting firemen here. He has had the nightmarish task of badgering the Japanese government into adopting some kind of radical economic policy.

The economic policy eagerly proposed by the Yoshida government to Mr. Dodge would so arrange things that, in the name of a Japanese version of free enterprise, the industrial workers would be reduced to total misery. Mr. Dodge has firmly quashed this proposal.

Mr. Yoshida speaks with deep and sincere affection of the Zaibatsu, the interlocking family trusts which in prewar Japan constituted the greatest concentration of economic power in any country in the world. The Zaibatsu has officially been declared dead, although some observers claim to have detected a surprising vigor in the corpse. At any rate, if the political forces represented by Mr. Yoshida have their way, the Zaibatsu or something like it will certainly be revived. In a word, Mr. Yoshida stands for a diluted version of the old Japan.

SANZO NOZAKA claims to represent the new Japan. On his mission here home months ago, former Undersecretary of War William Draper met and talked to a number of Japanese political leaders. After the meeting, he remarked to an aide, "That man who sat opposite me was head and shoulders above the rest—real Prime Minister material. Who was he?" He was Mr. Nozaka, the most powerful of the Japanese Communists. Mr. Draper was intuitive. Mr. Nozaka is generally accounted Japan's cleverest politician.

The headquarters of Mr. Nozaka's Communist Party is like the headquarters of any Communist Party anywhere in the world. There are the usual posters displaying earnest, beautiful young people pressing forward into the new dawn, and the usual air of energy, bustle, confusion and conspiracy. Although he is not the titular chief, Mr. Nozaka, who has spent much of his life in Moscow and Yenan, is the real brains of the party.

He is a sleek, well-groomed man, with curious, heavy-lidded eyes and an air of sweet reason. All he wants, he says, is peace and rice for the Japanese masses. In the last elections in January, Mr. Nozaka's party tripled its vote and multiplied by eight its representation in the Diet. The party is still a small minority. But it is more and more the party of youth and the intellectuals, and it controls more than half the labor unions. Mr. Nozaka speaks with great assurance of the future.

NO SUCH confidence emanates from Tetsu Katayama, former Prime Minister and leader of Japan's non-Communist Labor Party, the Social Democrats. Mr. Katayama has a small, very black moustache, a curiously pointed head, a jet-black suit which appears to have been cut from a dyed army blanket, and an air of intense melancholy.

His melancholy is natural. His party, once the strongest in postwar Japan, was cut to ribbons in the January elections, withering away to Mr. Yoshida on the Right and Mr. Nozaka on the Left.

The squabbles and stupidities of the Social Democrats themselves contributed largely to their political destruction. But according to competent observers here, occupation policy also played a big part. Last summer, for example, a law was written in military government headquarters outlawing strikes and collective bargaining in the railroad, communications, tobacco and other government-run industries.

The American labor union men in headquarters (who eventually resigned on the issue) bitterly opposed the legislation, and so did the Social Democrats. However, the Social Democratic Labor Minister was handed the law with instructions to sponsor it. The face-losing spectacle of a labor party sponsoring such legislation helped to destroy the Social Democrats.

Thus, the two most powerful internal political forces left in Japan are represented by the aged, cheerful, Mr. Yoshida, the friend of the Zaibatsu, and the clever, confident Mr. Nozaka, the friend of the Kremlin. The Army officers who run Japan (except perhaps General of the Army Douglas MacArthur himself) seem blithely unconcerned by the withering away of Mr. Katayama. In fact, the destruction of any effective political force between the Communists and the extreme Right constitutes a failure which may well outweigh all the undoubted successes of the American occupation of Japan.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

IT IS now nearly three months since President Truman sent to the Senate the name of Mon Wallgren to be chairman of the National Security Resources Board. The Senate Armed Services Committee, by a majority of one, voted to keep the Wallgren nomination in the committee, which means that the full Senate cannot pass on it.

Childs

This has stirred the President's resentment. He has got his Missouri stubbornness up and, in effect, he has told those who inquire that he hasn't the slightest intention of withdrawing the Wallgren nomination. In fact, he will leave it before the Senate until the paper it is written on rots away.

The President feels, according to his close associates, that the action of the Armed Services Committee is not merely unfair but perhaps unconstitutional. When the law provides that a nomination shall be confirmed by the Senate, it means the whole Senate and not merely a handful of men on one committee.

It seems to me that this complaint has genuine merit. Whatever one may think of the Wallgren appointment, and I happen to think very little of it, the whole Senate has a constitutional right to approve or reject it. Instead, six Republicans on the Armed Services Committee, plus one Democrat, Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, have set up a roadblock to hold the nomination back.

IN RECENT years we have heard the Executive denounced over and over again for encroaching on the legislative branch of Government. But in the matter of presidential appointments it begins to look as though the Congress were determined by one means or another to sabotage the President's appointive power.

Another instance is the appointment of John Carson to be a member of the Federal Trade Commission. Before Carson could present his views to a Senate Committee, a well-planned smear campaign was directed against him with the connivance of certain Senators.

The National Security Resources Board has been without a full-time chairman for nearly four months, since the resignation of Arthur M. Hill, who was first head of the board. John Steelman, one of the President's advisers, has been acting chairman, but he has been able to give comparatively little time to the job.

During this period the staff of the board has pretty well deteriorated. Most of the top officials named by Hill have resigned and they have not been replaced.

Kenneth D. Johnson has resigned as general counsel. Vice Chairman Reginald Gillmor has resigned. So has E. T. Grether, director of the economic management division, who has gone back to the University of California as dean of the graduate school of business.

THE inquiring reporter is told that the board's remaining 250 employes—this includes stenographers and messengers—are still working on planning and coordinating other Government departments for a war mobilization plan. But without any active leadership at the top, it must be pretty academic.

When Wallgren was appointed, Steelman named to the board as $50-a-day specialists two men who had been associated with Wallgren when he was Governor of the State of Washington. These men, Jack Gorrie and Jack Ballew, stayed about six weeks. Then their initial contracts ran out and they departed. Ballew, who had been with the Plasterers' Union before he became Wallgren's budget officer, seemed to officials of the board distinctly unhappy in his role as a $50-a-day expert.

A former Wallgren associate, John Davis, is still with the board. He is said to be working on task force and organizational problems.

One reason for the resentment felt at the White House is the belief that those who set out to block Wallgren deliberately overemphasized the importance of the job. It was built up to tremendous proportions and then Wallgren was put alongside it and failed to measure up.

But as I see it, either it is a vitally important assignment—evolving an over-all plan for mobilization integrating business, Government and every element for possible war—or it is a $14,000 a year sinecure. If it is the former, then Wallgren's qualifications are dubious, or certainly they have not been made clear. If it is the latter, then the job had better be abolished. But the Senate is evading its duty in failing to pass on the Wallgren nomination.

Prelate Urges Catholic Youth To Spur Peace

Catholics do not start wars, but they are lacking in efforts to prevent them, the Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, declared here last night.

In his keynote address to the Second National Conference on Catholic Youth Work, he challenged those who influence American youth to see that the coming generation "explores and understands the great movements sponsored to promote conditions of a just world peace."

When wars come and "militarism takes over to save the day," he declared, "Catholics are called upon to do their part in the armed services."

Cites Red Infiltration

"In the efforts to avert war, however, and in the movements dedicated to fashioning some permanent form for a peaceful society, Catholics here in America are neither so numerous nor so well known."

Archbishop Cushing said it may be true that "peace movements are infiltrated with Reds, with pseudo-Liberals, with false humanitarians and with others of dubious principles and dangerous records."

But in the peace movement, he declared, are "the seeds of a growth which will one day fill the world and give to society its eventual order."

His address was a three-part plea for "factual, concrete and practical" instruction to Catholic youth.

Poverty Step to Sanctity

Besides indoctrination in the ways of peace, they should be taught "a Christian love for the poor" and the desire "to be closely identified with the Church," Archbishop Cushing said.

"Teach them how to make decent poverty a ladder to climb to sanctity," he added. "And let our young people, as they grow more successful, grow more and more sensitive to the problems of the poor."

With these attributes, they will be "fashioned in the image of Christ," he said.

The specific details of that image which call for emphasis may be guessed from the "trends of the times and the spirit of the age," he continued.

Deplores Spirit of Naturalism

"These include a desire for success and abundant opportunities for it; the prevalence of discord and the fear of war, and the spirit of naturalism and irreligion."

Archbishop Cushing, who recently issued the order stripping a Boston College Jesuit priest of his authority for condoning teachings at variance with Catholic doctrine, was the first speaker on the three-day program at the Shoreham Hotel.

Others include Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), who will address a luncheon meeting today, and Senator Frank Graham (D., N. C.), who will speak at 2:30 p. m.

Brotherhoods, 'Frisco' Drop Ban on Negro Train Crews

St. Louis, April 26 (AP).—Cancellation of an agreement to employ only white persons on train crews was announced jointly today by the St. Louis-San Francisco railway and four railroad brotherhoods.

The announcement was made as testimony began in a Federal Court suit by five Negro employes for an injunction to prevent alleged discrimination against Negroes. The suit also is for actual and punitive damages totaling $4,400,000 from 23 officers of the four brotherhoods.

The trial continued despite the announcement, and attorneys for the Negroes questioned the good faith of the railroad and unions in making the announcement at this time.

The plaintiffs charge the brotherhoods, through an agreement with Frisco in 1928, sought to replace Negroes with white employes. The action contends the agreement violated the Railway Labor Act and is contrary to the public policy of the United States."

The five Negroes claim they were listed as train porters but, in fact, performed duties claimed by the brotherhoods.

Psychologist Attacks Bias

The American Jewish Congress yesterday called for an unequivocal ban of racial segregation in every branch and at every level of the armed services.

Dr. Alfred J. Marrow, psychologist, told President Truman's Committee on Equality of Treatment and Opportunity that "halfway measures are inadequate and cause more harm than good."

Testifying on behalf of the Congress' commission on community interrelations, Marrow said a study, based on a poll of 849 social scientists, shows that segregation has an "adverse effect" on whites as well as Negroes.

Among the "bad psychological effects" listed in the study were "guilty feelings, disassociation of moral values, feelings of inferiority and insecurity, isolation, cynicism and various disturbances in the sense of reality.

Skimpy Public Aid Called Shameful To Washington

Washington is "a little ashamed" by being at the bottom of the list of large cities in per capita care of the aged, in poor relief and in funds for public assistance, the annual meeting of the family and child welfare section of the United Community Services was told yesterday.

Paul L. Selby, executive vice president of the National Consumers Finance Corporation told the meeting at the YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw., that the lack of funds could be solved two ways.

"Only a reasonable increase in appropriation to the Public Assistance Division, and only a little more heartfelt appreciation of the work of the private Red Feather agencies, expressed in large contributions from the public, would solve the serious problems arising from the current lack of funds," he said.

Mrs. Patterson's Wardrobe to Go On Sale Thursday

Clothes, hats and shoes once owned by the late Mrs. Eleanor Patterson will be sold at public auction at 11 a. m. Thursday at C. G. Sloan & Co., 715 13th st. nw., it was learned yesterday.

The lot, auctioneers say, includes seven racks of clothing, three tables full of shoes and one table piled high with hats. The clothing is a collection of period costumes, riding habits, slacks, dresses, slips and negligees.

The wardrobe was sold after Mrs. Patterson's death. Name of the present owner was not disclosed.

U. S. Soldiers Drowned In Japanese Reservoir

Tokyo, April 26 (AP).—A young United States soldier was drowned and a second narrowly escaped death in the waters of a reservoir near Yokota Air Force Base Friday, the army said today.

Corpl. John M. Hill, 21, son of Mrs. Mary O. Berb of 203 National ave., Phoebus, Va., was drowned when his canoe overturned.

A companion, PFC Vincent R. Hoy, Brooklyn, was rescued by a Japanese caretaker and PFC Michael A. Amoia, Washington, D. C. Hill's body was recovered Saturday.

New Envoy to Russia Coming to Washington

The 60-year-old admiral has been Ambassador to Belgium and Minister to Luxembourg since March, 1946. His successor has not been appointed.

Postlude

Watkins Brilliant in Recital Here

By Paul Hume

William Watkins, cowinner for 1949 of the National Federation of Music Clubs instrumental contest, played an organ recital last night in Calvary Methodist Church.

The organist of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church won national laurels last month in Dallas, Tex., coming out in first place over a large number of the Nation's younger musicians. Last night was his first concert in Washington since the contest.

Building his program around the breadth of Healy Willan's Introduction, Passacaglia and Fugue, Watkins gave plenty of evidence for the Dallas judges' decision. He is more than able to handle any requirement in organ literature. That is saying a great deal, for organ playing makes tremendous demands on the hands and feet of players.

Marcel Dupre's Variations on a Noel came from Watkins' hands with clarity, dazzling brilliance, and an assurance that utterly belies the fiendish problems involved. The staccato canon for organ by Robert Schuman sounded equally simple and was registered in appropriately sprightly fashion. The organ in the church limited the young artist in those larger works he programmed. Some music requires certain mechanical contrivances found only in the larger organs. But throughout the evening the recitalist made the most of the possibilities in the instrument at hand.

Watkins is an unusual artist, with a great start in his field. If he will spend a just proportion of time in highly rhythmic practicing of the classic works of the Bach Trio Sonata school and their forerunners, he should become one of the country's foremost organ exponents.

Classes of 20 Teacher Limit, Dr. Hager Says

No teacher should have a class larger than 20 pupils if she is to do an effective job, Dr. Walter E. Hager, president of Wilson Teachers College told representatives of District Parent-Teacher Associations yesterday.

The P-TA members toured the college, and conferred with Dr. Hager on recruitment of teachers and on teaching methods.

A teacher cannot do so many things well with the present teacher load of from 30 to 40 pupils, Dr. Hager said.

3 Takoma Aides Receive Medals

Three outgoing officials of Takoma Park, Md., received medals for "faithful service" at a dinner last night given by Mayor John C. Post and the Tokoma Park City Council.

Recipients of the medds were Lt. Col. William F. Fischer, USA, ret., retiring superintendent of public works; J. Wilson Dodd, retired city clerk and treasurer; and J. Douglas Bradshaw, who has resigned as corporation counsel to serve on the Montgomery County Council.

The dinner was held in Nelson's Restaurant, Carroll and Laurel aves., in Takoma Park.

The President's Calling List

Alexandria Urged to End Housing Unit

An Alexandria City Council member proposed last night that the body dissolve the Alexandria Housing Authority, which it created in 1939.

Councilman Leroy S. Bendheim, who made the proposals, suggested the city turn back to the Government all Federal built housing units within the Alexandria City limits.

Bendheim asked a legal opinion from City Attorney M. Pancoast on his proposal.

He said he made the proposal as result of what he termed the Government's failure to cooperate with the city in matters pertaining to the housing projects.

The council earlier had received a letter from the Public Housing Administration saying no Federal funds could be used to correct drainage conditions in a veterans' housing project.

Conditions at the development have brought numerous protests recently from occupants.

Bendheim charged the Government's failure to cooperate, coupled with the fact the city receives no income from the projects, would justify "any action that would dump the homes back in the Government's lap."

Developments under the local authority's control include two permanent low-rental developments and four temporary war-built sites, a total of 1166 dwelling units.

Pancoast said he would study agreements under which the housing authority was created to determine if it could be legally dissolved.

The council allocated $7500 toward a survey to determine the need of a sewage disposal plant in Northern Virginia.

The survey, proposed recently by the Northern Virginia Regional Planning Commission, would be financed jointly by Alexandria, Arlington, Fairfax and Falls Church.

Spaghetti Dinner Sunday

A spaghetti dinner will be given Sunday from 3 to 7 p. m. at Hurney Hall, 8th and N sts. nw., by the Mothers Club of the Immaculate Conception Academy.

Marshall Unit Asks Backing For Principal

A delegation of John Marshall School Parent-Teachers Association members last night asked the Arlington School Board point blank whether their school principal, Miss Mary Barbour, will be retained next fall.

The board replied that it had renewed her contract along with 377 other principals and teachers in the school system but that it was up to School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp as to whether she will be reassigned as the school's principal.

The P-TA has had several lively meetings recently in which members said they had heard Miss Barbour would not be retained.

The P-TA formally petitioned the board to keep Miss Barbour as principal.

J. W. Dixon, a member of the P-TA and vice president of the Old Dominion Citizens Association, then asked, and was granted, a closed conference with the School Board on the issue.

He told a reporter the 10-man delegation was "afraid Miss Barbour may not be reappointed to her post as principal, but may be downgraded."

Another delegation present at last night's meeting, from the Shirley Homes School P-TA, asked the board for a new school building in place of the temporary unit in the Government housing development which now serves as a school.

The board told the group that the new Hume School will be ready probably by next February and will accommodate most of the present Shirley Homes students.

The board approved a schedule reassigning junior high school students to different buildings for the 1949-50 school year and appropriated $480 for new sidewalks at the Dolly Madison Junior High School.

Attack Seen On 'Charitable' Tax Loophole

By S. Oliver Goodman

The Treasury is wheeling out its big guns in a drive to deny tax exemption to charitable foundations which operate competitive business; Washington controllers were told last night.

William E. Jetter, director of the Washington Tax Bureau of the Research Institute of America, pointed out that "the purchase and operation of manufacturing businesses by educational and charitable organizations is increasing to such an extent that the Government foresees a sizable loss of revenue unless the loophole can be closed."

An important test case to watch, Jetter said, is that involving a foundation which operates a spaghetti and macaroni factory for the benefit of the New York University School of Law. If this attack fails, Jetter added, the Treasury "will certainly ask for new legislation" to plug this type of revenue loss.

Despite the precarious tax position of foundations which operate competitive businesses, there are still definite tax-saving possibilities inherent in the use of such instruments, Jetter stated, and suggested methods in which foundations could be employed as an effective estate planning device.

H. Randolph Barbee presided at the session of the Washington Control of the Controllers Institute of America in the Carlton Hotel.

Business Outlook

Aided by Illinois Arithmetic, Avery Machine Carries Ward

By J. A. Livingston

CHICAGO, April 26.—The annual meeting of Montgomery Ward & Co. proves how powerless, how lackadaisical, American stockholders are—even the big sophisticated shareholders, like investment trusts. Sewell L. Avery, 75-year-old chairman of Ward's, controlled the session as easily as a well-oiled machine at a political or union meeting. The Communists could have done no better.

Livingston

What a commentary on American capitalism! Stockholders, in theory, are supposed to be proprietors of a business. They are supposed to guard jealously their hard - earned savings. They are supposed to question the stewards of their fortunes. But not in the Montgomery Ward auditorium last week.

Avery had just gone through a third upheaval in the company's management. Just a few days before the annual meeting, he had installed a new set of vice presidents. Yet no one asked Avery to explain the resignations. No one asked why George Whitney, president, and Harry P. Davison, vice president of J. P. Morgan & Co., the firm which persuaded Avery to take the Montgomery Ward chairmanship in 1931, had resigned from the board of directors. No one asked why in recent years, Sears, Roebuck & Co. had outdistanced Ward's in both sales and earnings.

AVERY dominated the meeting. Abraham S. Hart, son of one of the founders of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, suggested that Avery comment on newspaper criticism of his management. Avery parried by introducing his new vice presidents, and saying: "These men have the background and character that is secure. They have proved their ability. The things they're doing are not new to them. They just have wider scope." Most persons present were not aware that he had made an almost identical comment about his previous set of officers back in December.

W. McNeil Kennedy, at attorney, representing the Chicago investment counsel firm of Stein Roe & Farnham, declared that his clients were concerned over the "procession of managerial talent that has marched in and out of Montgomery Ward & Co. in the last few years. It is unbelievable that all of these men, many of whom hold positions of great responsibility in other large corporations, were lacking in ability or integrity."

Kennedy argued that Ward directors deprived stockholders of the "opportunity to voice their views in a clear-cut manner" by cutting the membership of the board from 12 to 9 "less than one month before the management sent out its proxy solicitation." That was the sole upraised voice. And no one followed up with questions.

POWERFUL investors contented themselves with gestures of protest. Massachusetts Investors Trust voted for directors other than Avery; Wellington Fund cumulated all its votes for one of the directors, David A. Crawford, president of the Pullman Co.; Stein Roe & Farnham refused to vote its shares at all. And most trusts, investment counsels, insurance companies and trust companies were even less militant. They went along with the management.

No one was willing to take the positive step of putting up an independent candidate for the board of directors. Yet, the Illinois law, which permits cumulative voting of shares, smiles on such candidacies. Four Ward directors were up for election. Massachusetts Investors, for instance, with its 104,000 shares, could have stacked 416,000 votes for one candidate. Obviously, if the trusts, investment council, insurance companies, and trust companies had been able to alight on a candidate, they might have been able to win a place for independent judgment on the Ward board, or at least have made a good fight.

As the board now is constituted, all members are friends of Avery. Some are actually beholden to him for financial and business favors. And the Avery proxy machine was able to turn to account the Illinois voting rule. He got 5,181,399 votes to 4,435,430 for the next director. His own shares were cumulated on himself, as were those of some other large holders. So, for the unsophisticated newspaper reader, the arithmetic was clear: Avery was vindicated, his critics rebuked.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, April 26 (AP).—Grain futures through the greater part of today's Board of Trade session. The sharpest advance came in deferred wheat contracts when traders received reports of dust storms in the Canadian grain provinces.

Corn had shown tendencies to advance earlier in the trading, largely because shorts were disturbed by a Government report that out of the largest holdings of corn on record, only 57 million bushels were in off-the-farm positions.

At the finish wheat was 1¼ to 2¼ higher, corn was ⅝ to 1 cent higher, oats were ½ to ⅞ higher, rye was 1¼ higher, soybeans were 2¾ to 3 cents higher, and lard was 20 to 48 cents a hundredweight higher.

New York Cotton

New York, April 26 (AP).—Cotton futures turned irregular today in active dealings.

Old crop deliveries rallied into new seasonal high ground on extensive covering in the May delivery and buying of July by shippers against sales of cotton to the Army, destined for Japan. Those deliveries later reacted sharply on heavy commission house and New Orleans profit-taking, in fluenced partly by the belief that practically all of the covering operations on the Japanese sales have been completed. Final prices were 80 cents a bale higher to 70 cents lower.

New Offerings

New York, April 26 (AP).—An investment banking group headed jointly by Lehman Bros. and Harriman, Ripley & Co., submitted an apparent high bid of 100 for 40 million dollars of electric plant revenue bonds put up for sale by the Los Angeles (Calif.) Department of Water and Power. The bid was for a combination of coupons at a net basis cost of 2.3573 per cent. Subject to award, the group plans a reoffering of the bonds, due May 1, 1955-89, from a yield of 1.25 per cent to a dollar price of 93⅛, according to maturity.

In other new financing transactions, securities totaling nearly 60 million dollars were offered to the public today.

They included 40 million of 25-year 3⅛ per cent debentures of National Distillers Products Corp., priced at 101.31 and accrued interest to yield 3.08 per cent; 166,500 common shares of American Research & Development Power Co., priced at $32.375 a share.

Mississippi River Fuel Corp. is offering 327,610 common shares to its stockholders at $27.25 a share on a basis of one additional share for each two shares held of record April 12. In addition, United Gas Corp. is selling to an underwriting group its entire holding of 305,688 shares of Mississippi River Fuel common and rights to purchase an additional 152,844 shares in accordance with the corporation's offering to stockholders. The underwriters are making an offering to the public at 30 a share, ex rights, of 435,282 shares.

Gas Light Charter Bill Returned to Senate Committee

A bill to authorize revision of the Washington Gas Light Co. charter was returned by the Senate to its District Committee yesterday.

Purpose of the move is to permit further study of the bill's possible effect on gas rates charged in Arlington County, officials indicated.

Senate District Committee Chairman McGrath (D., R. I.) obtained Senate consent to have the bill sent back to his committee, which reported it out April 8.

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) had blocked Senate action on the bill at the request of Arlington officials.

The bill would permit the Washington Gas Light Co. to merge with any of its subsidiaries, including the Rosslyn Gas Co. which serves the northern Virginia area.

Arlington County Board Chairman Basil DeLashmutt explained that the county Public Utilities Commission, through the county board, had asked Senator Byrd to make possible further study of the bill's effects on gas rate decisions for Arlington county.

The county wants PUC assurance, DeLashmutt said, that in any merger of the Washington and Rosslyn companies, the Virginia accounts will be so separated that the way will be left open as now for the county to take gas rate cases to the State Corporation Commission.

Meanwhile the Arlington County Board is seeking a Federal Power Commission inquiry into rates charged by the Washington Gas Light Co. to the Rosslyn company.

Greeks Launch Counteroffensive

Athens, April 26 (AP). — The Greek army has opened a counteroffensive to drive Communist guerillas out of the Grammos Mountain area on the Albanian border, a communique announced today.

Three weeks ago the guerillas began their biggest offensive effort since the purging of their leader, Vafiades Markos. A force of about 5000 men made the attack. They captured heights 16 miles inside Greece before they were stopped.

Press dispatches from the front said troops supported by artillery and planes were driving the Communists off 6000-foot heights around Pyrsoyanni, 16 miles north of Konitsa.

One on the Aisle—

Judith Anderson Bringing 'Medea'

By Richard L. Coe

GOOD NEWS—Judith Anderson will close her second year as "Medea" in a special performance Wednesday night, May 18, at the Sylvan Theater.

Seats for the engagement will go on sale Monday at the Willard Hotel ticket office. Prices will be $3.60, $2.40, $1.80 and $1.20.

This is the same production which recently played Ford's Theater, Baltimore, with Harry Brandon, Hilda Vaughn, Mary Servoss, Bruce Gordon and Frederic Worlock in the supporting cast.

Miss Anderson's success in Robinson Jeffers' adaptation of the Euripedes drama has made theatrical history. A sensation in its New York run, "Medea" has been on tour 37 weeks this season.

The Sylvan performance will be Miss Anderson's first as "Medea" in the open air; the sloping hillside of the Monument Grounds will be an apt and striking setting for a drama originally performed on the hillside of Athens in 431 B. C.

The possibility of rain has not been ignored. Should the 18th be rainy, the performance will be held the following night—or on the first clear night thereafter. Monday that week, Miss Anderson and her company will be playing at the University of Virginia and, on Tuesday night, at the celebrated Community Playhouse in chocolate-conscious Hershey, Pa.

Following her unique one-night stand, Miss Anderson will rest for a month at her California home and then fly out to Honolulu to present the drama during the last week in June.

The Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds has had a long, jagged career in the community. Before the war, there were regular weekly productions by local drama groups, attended by thousands. The Sylvan is under jurisdiction of the Office of National Capital Parks of the Interior Department, which has cooperated in this venture. About 2200 seats will be sold; on the grass behind the seats, it's most likely that thousands will again stake out points of vantage.

Playing the Sylvan is something of a challenge to Miss Anderson and her company. Exactly how settings and acoustics will be arranged remains to be settled; how the wind will be blowing will also determine whether you'll be hearing the planes land at the airport.

But you can rest assured that Miss Anderson's striking performance as the Chalcon princess will be an Event. The first view of professional acting this Capital of the western world will have seen in 42 weeks.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY today to the Playhouse . . . the 432-seat theater opened a year ago tonight with "The Search," and in the year only 14 films have held the screen . . . over 536,000 moviegoers have passed the wicket; six art exhibits have been shown in the gallery lounge and $31,000 has been raised at special benefit showings for several charities . . . If its first year is to be a criterion for the Playhouse future, the land is bright on 15th st. . . . congratulations to all concerned.

BOB HOPE CALLS to say that he'll be landing at National Airport from today's stop in Richmond on Thursday morning, hopping over to Vice President Barkley's office for a brief visit and then to the Mayflower where he'll say howdy to the press at 1:30 . . . thence Hope, Doris Day, Les Brown and their 51 companions on that chartered DC-6 will drift over to Constitution Hall to get set up for the 2½-hour matinee at 4:30 . . . which won't give the comedians much time for dinner . . . the night show goes on at 8:30 . . . tickets at the Willard.

THE FALLS CHURCH Community Theater will aid the American Cancer Society with two performances of "Guest in the House" Friday and Saturday nights . . . The Falls Church group acts in the Madison School on the Lee hwy. . . . Originally performed by the same cast last month, the drama was the group's biggest success . . . John Flynn directed a cast that includes Margaret Pitman, Lewis Danforth, Anne Paull, Ollie Smith, John Bold, Nancy Olmstead and Peggy Schreiner . . . Falls Church civic organizations are promoting the event and all proceeds will go to the drive against cancer.

GE Radiomen to Join BEW Local

Radio and television servicemen employed by the General Electric Supply Corp., 705 Edgewood st. ne., have voted to affiliate with Local 1423, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL).

William Humphrey, field examiner for the Baltimore office of the National Labor Relations Board, yesterday announced that of 16 eligible employes of the corporation, 12 cast ballots. All favored naming Local 1423 to represent them in collective bargaining.

The election was conducted by Humphrey Monday at the corporation's warehouse and service department, 1935 5th st. ne. The union will be certified as bargaining agent for the unit, Humphrey said, unless objections are filed within the next five days.

Woman's Corpse Found Tied With Tire Chains

Toledo, Ohio, April 26 (AP).—The body of a 32-year-old woman, bound with tire chains and wrapped in a mattress, was found in a quarry near here today.

Detective Capt. Ralph Murphy said there could be no question the woman was murdered. He identified her as Mrs. Marion Remington of Toledo, missing since April 3.

Murphy said the woman apparently was beaten to death.

Coleman's Homer Wins for Yanks Over A's, 5-4

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BOSTON, APRIL 26.—Not since the British were in these parts and making a nuisance of themselves back around 1775 has Boston had as public a topic as Ted Williams. In Boston, nobody is neutral about Williams. They like him or dislike him, both heartily.

It's been like that for most of 10 years, ever since Williams came out of Minneapolis in 1939 acclaimed as Mr. Hitter. In seven active years, he has proved he wasn't underrated by winning four American League batting championships, a whole lot better than par for the course, but somehow he didn't win all Boston to his side.

POVICH

You can get all shades of opinion except that of disinterest in Boston when Williams is the topic. He's terrific, he's a nice guy at heart, and the fans who boo him are unfair; or he's a self-centered individualist, no team player, has batting weaknesses, is plain stubborn, and has a mean streak.

Of that latter charge, there was some evidence a few years ago when Williams, enraged by the boos of the left field customers, fouled off a series of line drives to that section.

ONE OF WILLIAMS' self-admitted troubles is what he calls "my rabbit ears." He means he's long-eared with his auricular appendages picking up the uncomplimentary cracks like a radar screen. "If there are 10,000 fans cheering and one guy booing, I hear the guy who's booing," Williams has said.

The Boston fans are fed a daily diet of Williams copy by the city's sports pages. There are pro-Ted and anti-Ted blocs in the Boston press. He has his share of gee-whiz-whatta-guy commentators but fellows like Dave Egan and Austen Lake, a skilled pair of cutlass swingers who write vibrant essays for the tabs, figuratively undress Williams in print.

Right now, Egan is claiming that Williams is past his peak and no longer a shining asset to the Red Sox, and Lake is saying that he ought to be ashamed of himself for butting his head against the Williams shifts and refusing to hit the ball to left.

WILLIAMS HAS BEEN making a few timid attempts to hit to left field while the other clubs are over shifting for him, but he hasn't dropped anything safely yet. Casey Stengel of the Yankees defeated him by installing the most exaggerated shift to the right of all, three men playing between first and second base, and leaving the shortstop to cover all the left side of the infield.

Washington has been playing Williams with a slight shift to the right, but Connie Mack concedes him nothing, and the A's have been playing Ted straight away. Stengel and Lou Boudreau are convinced that they have the best defenses for Williams. In effect they are daring him to hit to left, and playing on his pride to make him hit to right. Williams still wants the high satisfaction of knocking the ball down the throats of the shifted infield, and that's what he has been trying to do, unsuccessfully. The Yankees pitched to his strength, giving him the inside ball he likes, and depending on their massed strength toward right field. Williams didn't hurt them in the recent series here.

IN THE SENSE that no clubs ever were forced into that sort of a shift even for such as the late Babe Ruth, it is a compliment to Williams' hitting ability that such extreme measures are needed to stop him. On the inevitable other hand, they are exposing him as a man with a weakness—inability to hit to left.

They never dared to play Ruth that way. He'd ram shots into left field on such an invitation and probably bat a cool .500. It was the Williams shift, instituted by Boudreau, that once prompted Babe to wonder out loud whether Williams was entitled to be called one of the great hitters, despite his lofty batting average.

"A great hitter should bat .500 if they play him that way," Ruth observed before he died. "It's like a fighter walking in with his chin out and his hands down, and inviting you to take a poke at him. It's your own fault if you don't connect. I wouldn't quite call Williams a great hitter. I'd have to call him a great right-field hitter, that's all."

Groth's Hit Gives Tigers Twin Sweep Over Chisox

Chicago, April 26 (AP).—Johnny Groth, 22-year-old Detroit rookie outfield sensation, swung an accurate bat at the start and finish as the Detroit Tigers toppled the Chicago White Sox 6-2 and then 7-5 in 10 innings in a doubleheader before 13,799 persons here today.

In his first turn at bat Groth singled, driving in two Tiger runs. In the first extra round of the second game, Groth's liner hit first base and bounced away for a two-run double that clinched the Tiger triumph

Hoya Hurdler Billy Mitchell Faces Brother in Penn Relays

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

AFTER MEETING everyone and his brother, Georgetown Hurdler Billy Mitchell finds himself just a stride or two away from the country's No. 1 spot.

He's going to face that brother—Indiana's Tom Mitchell—come Saturday at Philadelphia in the famed Penn Relays.

Then the quietly confident Hoya feels that he can go on to establish his claim to hurdling supremacy in the IC4-A and National AAU meets in June.

Billy, who didn't finish worse than fourth in the top indoor meets last winter, reached peak form in his last two starts. At Cleveland he raced a virtual deadheat with Harrison Dillard in a 45-yard event, losing by a hair.

Next night in Chicago at 60 yards, Dillard equalled the world's record, 7.1 seconds. A tenth of a second behind were Mitchell and UCLA's Craig Dixon, who was third in the Olympics. Though both were caught in identical time, Dixon was awarded the place spot.

THOSE HIGHLY creditable efforts have helped Mitchell shake off any also-ran complex. Starting has been his only weakness. Thus the outdoor distance of 120 yards is all in his favor. He feels that it gives him the opportunity to overcome the tenth of a second or so he's been losing at the post.

Interesting angle to the Mitchell duel Saturday is that Billy credits Tom, at 26, a year older, with getting him interested in hurdling when they attended Collingswood, N. J., High.

Tom did such a good job of coaching, Billy won the National Indoor Interscholastics in 1943. Both boys went to Indiana but the war interrupted their college careers. Billy served in the Pacific with the Marines; Tom was in the Army Air Corps.

Franklin Field, where Tom is defending champ, will be the site of the brothers' first outdoor meeting. Billy holds an indoor decision.

After being discharged, Billy transferred to Georgetown. An All New Jersey end at Collingswood, he played halfback for the Hoyas last year.

Chances are, though, Bob Margarita will have to count out Mitchell next fall. Billy says if he does well in the outdoor events this spring, he will drop football and concentrate on hurdling.

He also says, "I have a feeling this will be my year."

Tony Zale Quits Boxing

Chicago, April 26 (AP).—Tony Zale, former world middleweight boxing champion, announced today his voluntary retirement from the ring.

The retirement of the Gary, Ind., slugger, a veteran of 15 years in boxing, will cause cancellation of his return engagement with the new middleweight champion, Marcel Cerdan of France. This bout was scheduled for the Polo Grounds June 21.

Zale, who will be 36 next month, was champion from 1942 to 1948, with the exception of a brief period in 1947 when he lost the crown to Rocky Graziano.

Terps Swamp G.U. Trackmen

Maryland's track and field team won its fourth consecutive dual meet of the season yesterday as it swamped Georgetown, 88-38.

George McGowan scored the only Maryland double win by romping home in the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

Georgetown's Billy Mitchell set a Byrd Stadium record by traveling the 120-yard low hurdles in 0:14.5. The old mark of 0:14.7 was set by Woostra of Dartmouth in 1940.

Leahy Denies Rumor That He Plans to Retire

South Bend, Ind., April 26 (AP).—Frank Leahy, Notre Dame's head football coach, said today that New York columnists were mistaken in saying he plans to change jobs after two more seasons.

Leahy said reports that he would take a job with Fred Miller, Milwaukee brewer and former Notre Dame football captain, were "false."

"I'm thinking about nothing except our 1949 schedule at present," Leahy said. "Regarding my becoming an employe of Fred Miller, neither he nor I has ever mentioned the subject."

Rookie Also Halts Mack Threat With Fine Catch

New York, April 26 (AP).—Gerry Coleman, rookie infielder, climaxed a brilliant day at the plate today by homering in the eighth with a mate on base to give the New York Yankees a 5-4 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

Coleman previously had whacked out three singles. The recruit also starred in the field handling seven chances flawlessly including a fine catch of Ferris Fain's short fly that ended the game with two on.

Phil Marchildon started for the A's but after tossing two balls to the lead-off man, Coleman, in the first inning, retired complaining of a hitch in his arm. Lefty Alex Kellner took over and Coleman banged him for a single.

Bobby Brown batted for Page to start the eighth and bounced a single off third baseman Hank Majeski's glove. Coleman followed with his seat-smasher into the right field stands.

Frank Hiller worked the ninth for the Yanks and an error by Bill Johnson and Elmer Valo's single had him on the ropes but Coleman then made a nice catch on Fain's fly to end the game.

Webb to Visit Truman, Hope

Del Webb, coowner of the New York Yankees, will be in Washington today and tomorrow to see two old friends.

At noon today, Webb, accompanied by Manager Casey Stengel, will present President Truman with a gold, lifetime pass to Yankee Stadium.

Tomorrow Webb will cut up a few touches with another friend, Comedian Bob Hope, who'll be here for two shows at Constitution Hall.

Webb, who along with Hope and other celebrities will play in the National Celebrities Golf Tournament, hopes to lure Hope out to a golf course between shows Thursday to play nine holes.

"If I know Hope," Webb said, "he'll welcome the chance to go out and play a little golf between shows in spite of the terrific pace he's been following the past few weeks. Besides, he'll need the practice for the Celebrities Tournament."

Webb will send his private plane to California to bring Hope to Washington for the June 4-5 Celebrities Tournament at the Army and Navy Country Club.

Redskins' New Coach Learns 'T' Formation From Leahy

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

A VITAL preliminary to one of the most unusual schedules in Washington Redskin history will occur this week at South Bend, Ind. . . . There Rear Admiral John E. Whelchel, USN, awaiting retirement so he can take over the Redskin coaching reins, will get instruction in the T-formation from the master, Frank Leahy of Notre Dame . . . Arrangements for the three-day session were made last winter.

WHELCHEL WILL lead the Redskins into a tough, as well as unusual, 1949 season . . . In addition to their regular home-and-home series with the four other eastern division, National Football League teams, the 'Skins take on the Chicago Cardinals and Bears, the Green Bay Packers and the Los Angeles Rams . . . It's the first time since 1937 the Redskins have played the Rams in a league game in Los Angeles . . . A league rule had to be waived to allow for the L. A. game, since Washington has a standing exhibition date there . . . Left off this year's league schedule is a game with the Detroit Lions, who will be met in Denver in a pre-season clash.

The complete schedule:
EXHIBITIONS
August 26—Los Angeles Rams at Los Angeles (night).
August 30—Detroit Lions at Denver (night).
September 4—Chicago Bears at Memphis.
September 10—Chicago Cardinals at Birmingham (night).
September 18—Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee.
LEAGUE GAMES
September 26—Cardinals at Chicago (night).
October 3—Steelers at Pittsburgh (night).
October 9—N. Y. Giants at Washington.
October 16—N. Y. Bulldogs at Washington.
October 23—Eagles at Philadelphia.
October 30—Bulldogs at New York.
November 6—Steelers at Washington.
November 13—Eagles at Washington.
November 20—Chicago Bears at Washington.
November 27—Giants at New York.
December 4—Green Bay Packers at Washington.
December 11—Rams at Los Angeles.

Nats Face Yanks Here Tonight

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

BOSTON, APRIL 26. — Today brought the Washington club's most successful experience since the season's opener. They were rained out.

Thus was averted what neutral observers must reckon as the high possibility of the Nats' eighth straight defeat. So they are taking their seven-game losing streak back to Washington tomorrow for a joust with the league-leading Yankees.

Thompson was due to face the Red Sox today until rain put in its appearance just before game-time.

MEANWHILE THE NATS have shown no indications of shaking the horrendous batting slump that has cost them most of their seven straight defeats. They've been push-overs since the opening game, with only Gil Coan meeting the ball consistently.

In desperation, Kuhel benched First Baseman Eddie Robinson yesterday for non-hitting. Mark Christman got the first base job. But Kuhel was ready to put Robinson back in the lineup today. He explained that he hasn't given up on Robinson.

"I gave Robinson a full explanation, though," said the Nats' manager. "I told him I had to try something to break our slump, and that he was getting a day's rest. No player likes to be benched, but he took it in good style."

Kuhel obviously wasn't risking any friction with Robinson, in the Lou Boudreau manner. The big first baseman became disgruntled at Cleveland last season when Boudreau benched him, without notice.

THE NATS ARE glum about the whole business of the past week, which has seen them get only seven runs in their last seven games. Despite denials that they are not "down," it is easily obvious that they are not at all happy about their sorry showing.

"Ive seen it happen before," said Coach Mark Christman. "And then all of a sudden a club just doesn't end its losing streak with a one-run win. It usually comes out of these slumps by getting six runs in the first inning and winning 15 to 1, or something like that. But I wish it would happen quickly, say

AT HAVRE DE GRACE

DEAR FOLKS:

Ashley D. Adams, owner of Pine Tree, the mare who won Monday's eighth race, is a newcomer to racing from New England. A commander in the Navy, Adams picked up a string during the winter and is now campaigning three horses locally under Wallace J. Taylor. Adams builds boats and his luck in the racing game seems a bit better than that of one set of his customers. Adams recently sold the sloop Wing-Go to Dr. Marshall C. Sanford, Dr. Richard Keiffer and Hugh Y. Rienhoff of Baltimore. On its initial trip for this trio, the sloop went aground on Inner Mark Island in Casco Bay, during a sudden storm.

With Steve Brooks scheduled to go to New York Saturday to handle Coaltown for Calumet Farm in the Gallant Fox Handicap, it was anticipated that R. J. Martin would get the mount on Calumet's Faultless in the Havre de Grace Handicap here. Martin rode Pep Well to victory for that stable in the Philadelphia Handicap last Wednesday—BILL.

Griffs Play Yanks Tonight

there has been no complaint with the team's fielding. And the pitching has been on the sensational side, good enough to have them in the league lead if they had been hitting a little bit.

THE NATS' SITUATION recalls the comment in Florida by Buck Newsom, the old sage, who looked with suspicion on the Washington batting attack . . . "Those Washington pitchers won't be able to drive in enough runs," observed Newsom . . . At a time when the Nats need some hitting, the paradox is that Pitcher Joe Haynes is ready to take his first starting turn on Sunday . . . Haynes, unless he wins, may find it hard to break into a starting quintet now comprised of Scarborough, Hudson, Thompson, Calvert and Haefner . . . of what he has shown in his first two starts, Calvert has been the best pitcher on the club . . . he cost the Nats only $5000 after walking into their Florida training camp and asking for a job last month.

5-Year-Old Wins by 3, Pays $4.20

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., April 26—Favorite players renewed acquaintance with the cashiers today. King Ranch's Contest, carrying oodles of money in the featured Rock Purse, turned on the stretch heat and it was no contest, if you know what I mean.

The 5-year-old, making his second 1949 start, slid into home plate three lengths in front of the closest opposition in a field of six allowance and handicap performers. Mrs. E. H. Augustus' Seven League was second, a length in advance of the Palatine Stable's Dobodura.

Contest, foaled by the mare Skeet, was mighty fleet and hung up time of 1:43 2/5 for the mile and 70 yards. Backers of public choices who had some encouragement early in the day collected a $4.20 win mutuel.

The program not only provided winning favorites but brought the shortest price of the meeting and another minus show pool. Sam Moretti's Gigolo won as Jockey Joe Lynch chose in the third race and the colt paid a mere $2.60 to win.

Cost Track $2783

The customers who look for lock bets for third money took ten cents on each dollar invested to show on Gigolo with the track forced to put up $2783.20 to make the pay-offs come out even.

Second money in this test of four and a half furlongs for 2-year olds went to Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Suleiman with King Ranch's Kingsman third.

The winner was clocked at .53 for the abbreviated route over a fast track.

The day's most thrilling finish came in the sixth race when four horses in a field of nine figured in a photo for win position. The camera voted for the favorite, S. W. Labrot, jr.'s, Taran, a nominee for the Derby, Preakness and Belmont. S. A. Mason 2nd's Miss Dow was second with Rarco Stable's Bull third and Mrs. Jefford's Adile forced out of the money. The winner, sensationally ridden by Jockey Bobby Strange, paid $5.40.

Jockey Nick Jemas suffered a knee cut that required seven stitches to close. He fell from Bernadotte Stable's Marchan after the finish of the third race.

Colts Win on Error

Three walks and a Chamberlain error in the last inning gave Coolidge a 5-4 victory yesterday in an Interhigh baseball game at Anacostia. Chamberlain Shortstop Bob Dewdney booted Pinch Hitter Jimmy Graves' grounder with the bases loaded to let in the winning run.

Johnnies Win, 7-5

Pitcher Ben Duvall's three-run homer in the last inning wasn't quite enough and his Woodward Prep team dropped a 7-5 decision to St. John's yesterday on the Ellipse. It was St. John's fourth victory in six games.

When "Bill" Corl, of State College, Pa., goes out for deer he seldom returns empty-handed. "Three of us were hunting on a freezing day in December when we spied a big buck through the sleet. After one shot each, my friends' rifle actions froze, but my old Marlin kept firing until the buck went down, 175 yards away."

"And I find Marlin Blades just as dependable," adds Mr. Corl. "It's once over and a clean shave every time!" Single or Double Edge—12 for 25¢; Economy Packs 25 for 50¢, 60 for $1.

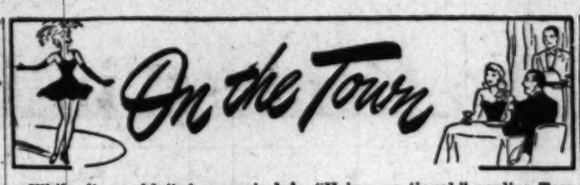
On the Town



While it wouldn't be precisely true to say that Laurence Tom, manager of the Casino Royal, has a onetrack mind, it decidedly is something of a chore to get him off his pet subject—the establishment's cuisine.

So it is that you find yourself inquiring into the terpsichorean backgrounds of the Cook Sisters, blonde June and brunette Vivian, currently dancing there, and you hear the affable Tom in reply spiritedly outlining the creation of a specialty known as Gai Kew.

June Cook

Gai Kew, you are informed, is a genuine Chinese entree. Not to be classed with a psuedo-Chinese dish such as chow mein. "It is composed of breaded breast of chicken, water chestnuts, celery, bamboo shoots, heart of Chinese vegetables and button mushrooms. It is. . ."

That's fine, you tell Mr. Tom. Now, about Fred and Ann Carroll, the comic dance duo whose work with masks makes theirs an unusual act. . .?

"We also have lobster Cantonese style," continues Tom, warming to his subject. "This consists of live Maine lobster chopped conveniently, to which is added garlic, meat and egg sauce."

At this point, realizing that to beard the lion in his den, one must also consider the den, you inquire the seating capacity of the spacious casino. After Tom beams that it holds more than 500 persons, you think you see an opening:

"Tell me something about Lou Daley," you blurt. Daley is the young comedian who, with the Cook Sisters and the Carrolls, opened at the cabaret-restaurant last night.

"He's sensational," replies Tom. And then he picks it up—"Do you know that we have two chefs? One for Chinese dishes, the other for American?"

Entertainers come in all sizes, shapes and whatnot, but for sheer energy, Maurice Rocco is hard to beat. Rocco has been packing the spacious Crossroads (at the Peace Cross in Bladensburg) for some time now with his stand-up, whirling piano delivery. He's in his last week.

To all appearances, Rocco is glued to his piano by his hands alone. His feet go their own way—here a bit of soft shoe, there a leap in the air, now an ecstatic foot pounding, then a complete whirl without missing a beat.

All this time, of course, he's playing and singing everything from boogie to ballads, and looking everywhere but at the piano. It's downright virtuosity. Good for encores every time.

JOTTINGS . . . Watch for the frolic to be tossed by the D. C. Federation of Musicians Sunday, May 1, in the Washington Hotel's Hall of Nations ballroom. On tap will be all your favorite local bandleaders and their men, to provide continuous dancing, and appearances by radio and television stars . . . "Pape" Muscovici, venerable cymbalom player at Michel's is rated one of the country's finest performers on the ancient instrument. Muscovici, now in his 70's, has a recipe for longevity: take taxis instead of exercise. Guess it comes to the same thing, eh, Pape?—Robert P. Jordan.

Shackle profits.. and you Invite National Suicide

IT'S A PRETTY SERIOUS INDICTMENT of something or other—these questionable influences at work to put a ball and chain on U. S. Business.

Take all this talk, for example, about dictating how much profit a business can earn—after taxes.

That road leads to one inevitable end—a wreckage pile of business, the like of which this nation has never witnessed.

There are today, in this country, three and a half million businesses. The largest number of businesses, small, medium, and large in the nation's history.

Against all the odds, despite all the resistance, business is the only major department in our entire American economy that is self-supporting.

And the simple, honest reason is that U. S. Businessmen have the brains and "know-how" and guts to start business, and keep business going at a profit, taking all the risks of loss that must be taken under our Profit and Loss System.

The only countries in the world who even come close to our wages and prices, do so with money and men borrowed from the U. S.

Why then, do you hear among businessmen, today, expressions of mounting discontent? Why the growing reluctance to start a business? Why so often the remark—"What's the use, the reward is no longer worth the risk"?

The answer to that is clear, and two-fold.

Every schoolboy knows that the incentive back of every business is profit. When that incentive is throttled—business dies. Those who are plotting this country's future by ignoring its past, may well take note.

Secondly—every one of the 18 million shareholders in U. S. Business, the real owners of business, bought those shares under the selfsame incentive—to receive a profit. Take away the ability to pay that profit—and there will be no investors in U. S. Business.

If you need further warning—take a look around the world. To England, where the only incentive is mere subsistence, where a man earns all his ration cards permit him to spend in four days of work. To Russia, where the State demands all the profit—and the only incentive is the threat of a forced-labor camp—starvation and death.

We'd better take more than a serious look at this one. Because just about every man, woman and child in our country is concerned with this problem of whether business lives or dies.

One fact is clear, unmistakably clear. If you throttle profits, the number one source out of which business provides itself with the means of progress—you invite national suicide. That's the most serious danger this nation has to face.

Senate Unit Prepares Immediate Action on Raises for 1,300,000

The Senate Civil Service Committee today is prepared to write its own bill to raise the salaries of the 1,300,000 postal and classified employes. Its members are debating three possible actions which are:

(1) To hold immediate and short hearings on the Johnston-Langer bills to give flat $650 pay raises to postal and classified employes; (2) To draft its own reclassification bills for both the classified and postal employes and to include substantial pay raises for both groups, or (3) to amend the executive pay-raise bill now on the Senate calendar to include the flat $650 raises.

At a meeting yesterday, the committee voted unanimously to send an ultimatum to the White House—that the Administration submit its recommendations on proposed pay-raise and reclassification problems to the committee by May 5 or the committee go ahead and draft its own bills.

Meantime, it was reported on good authority that the Administration will unveil its long-awaited reclassification plan for classified employes in a day or so. It's a foregone conclusion that its proposal will not be acceptable to the Senate committee since it would raise the average classified salary by about $50 a year. Postal employes aren't covered in it. It's clear from what happened yesterday that committee members are thinking in terms of a substantial increase for both classified and postal employes.

Also, the Administration is opposed to the $650 flat increase bill. So, it's obvious that the initiative for any substantial pay raise must be taken by the committee. Despite its ultimatum, committee members realize this and that's why they are debating strategy plans in their fight to win a substantial increase for rank-and-file employes.

Chairman Johnston revealed yesterday that he had written a letter to the President last Friday in which he urged the Administration to indorse a rank-and-file pay raise. In reply, the President again indorsed pay raises for Federal executives but he made no other commitments. He wrote the Civil Service leader:

"The people who are responsible for the operation of Government are entirely underpaid and I sincerely hope that the adjustment of their pay will be passed by the Senate and the House without undue delay.

"The general run of employes have had two special raises in the last two years and there are instances of where the heads of Government, who are responsible to the President, received less than their chief clerk. You can hardly expect to run an organization and keep up the morale when that is the case."

After the letter was read, Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) moved that the ultimatum be sent to the White House. His motion was supported by Senators Johnston, Long (D., La.), Neely (D., W. Va.), Humphrey (D., Minn.), Flanders (R., Vt.), Ecton (R., Mont.), and Thye (R., Minn.).

The Administration's opposition to the proposed flat $650 pay raise bills was outlined in a report sent to both the Senate and House committees. The report brought out that classified pay raises in 1945, 1946, and 1948 had created dislocations and inequities in the pay rates and that any further increase would do additional damage.

Also, that Federal salaries for most jobs compare favorably with those paid in both private industry and in other governments. However, the report didn't slam the door shut to any and all pay raise legislation. It did urge that any classified raise which the Congress feels is justified be made on top of the Administration's reclassification proposal.

BILLS: The Senate committee also approved these bills: (1) To allow the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics to pay salaries up to $15,000 each to 10 of its top-flight scientists; (2) To give those employes who retired before April 1, 1948, an increase in their pensions as well as survivorship benefits (the present law gave them their choice), and (3) to give former employes a year to file a claim for compensation for injuries sustained on Government jobs. The deadline is now six months. A Langer bill was tabled which would permit retired employes to recompute their annuities under the more liberal act which was passed a year ago.

Showdown On Sales Tax Is Expected Next Week

McGrath Arranges For Bill to Reach Floor of Senate Within Few Days

Senate signals were raised yesterday for an early showdown on the District revenue bill featuring the 2 per cent retail sales tax.

Senate District Committee Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) said he had obtained agreement from Senate leaders to call up the revenue bill within the next few days. Action early next week appeared likely. The sales tax bill is to be considered after the Senate completes three national bills, and before the reciprocal trade agreement bill.

4 Senators Fight Bill

At the same time, four Senate District Committee members called formally for defeat of the sales tax, and for raising necessary new revenue by other means, including:

1. A boost in Federal payments to the District from the present 12 million to 19 million a year.

2. Extending the District personal income tax with present exemptions to Federal employes whose official salaries are tax-free if they are domiciled elsewhere, and a sharp increase in the present income tax rates. They start now at 1 per cent and go up to 3 per cent on income over $20,000; the proposal is to start the rate at 2 per cent and go up to 5 per cent on incomes over $10,000.

3. A 25 cent increase in the District property tax rate of $2 per $100.

4. An approximate doubling of present liquor taxes.

Backers of Program

The plan was proposed by Senators Olin D. Johnston (D., S. Cr.), Robert C. Hendrickson (R., N. J.), Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), and J. Allen Frear, jr. (D., Del.).

Johnston has served notice he will make every effort to block the sales tax plan and that he expects the support of several Senators other than those who joined in backing the substitute program.

The program was presented to the Senate as a minority District committee report, attacking the bill approved by the District committee majority. The majority plan calls for the 2 per cent sales tax exempting food for home consumption, restaurant meals up to $1.50, medicines and some other items.

Majority Bill Items

Besides the sales tax, the majority bill recommends a 15-cent increase in the real estate tax rate, a 50 per cent boost in liquor fees and gallonage taxes, a $1 tax instead of the 50-cent tax now fixed on each barrel of beer; a 1-cent tax on each package of cigarettes. It also calls for reducing the unincorporated business income tax exemption from $10,000 to $5000, and for raising the basic personal income tax exemption from $1000 to $4000 on income received after December 31, 1949.

The program is designed to increase city revenue by some 18 million a year, and to erase a threatened budget deficit and finance retroactive pay increases for Federal employes.

Senator McGrath scanned the antisales tax report and commented "these arguments are as old as the District's deficits."

Senator Andrew F. Schoeppel (R., Kans.), a member of the subcommittee headed by Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.) which prepared the sales tax measure, also took issue with the minority report. He said the committee's review of previous studies of District finances had persuaded him that the sales tax would be the most equitable way of raising the necessary new revenue.

Public Hearing Denied on English Dismissal Move

District Commissioners yesterday denied a request for a public hearing on a move to dismiss Thomas R. English, Public Welfare Department social worker.

English, who resides at 3000 30th st. se., was informed by the city heads on April 14 that he would be discharged within 30 days because of complaints about his working relations with his superior, Mrs. Ruth Hubbard, superintendent of the board's interstate service section.

The employe was granted 10 days in which to reply to the charges because of his veteran's status.

Cockrell VFW Post To Install Officers

James K. Fry will be installed as commander of the Sergt. Charles Cockrell Post 8697 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at ceremonies in the George Mason Hotel, Alexandria, at 7:30 p. m. Saturday.

Other officers to be seated are Elbert H. Stone and Henry P. Schmidt, jr., vice commanders; David H. Via, quartermaster; Jack Golden, post advocate; J. Donald Coxen, chaplain; William A. Stallings, surgeon, and Charles K. Swank, trustee.

Publication Pay Issue Reaches Boil on Md. U. Campus Today

One of the hottest elections in University of Maryland history will take place on the College Park campus today, with one issue burning bright:

Should the Student Government Association's constitution be amended to outlaw—permanently—the payment of money to students engaged in getting out the institution's publications?

The student body, 10,000 strong and the source of the money, will answer that question in a referendum.

Of secondary interest is the annual election of SGA and class officers and heads of other school groups. Ballots will be cast from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. in the university dining hall.

Up in arms at the prospect of going without pay permanently are some staffers of the university's biweekly newspaper, the Diamondback. Funds earmarked for pay of staffers of the Diamondback and other publications were cut off by the SGA last winter.

Editor-in-chief Allen Bowers and Business Manager Clyde Houle were drawing $200 apiece for two semesters' work on the paper. Others, such as Managing Editors Mark Coplin and George Cheely, were getting $150 each for the year. Four news and copy editors received $50, and wire editor got $25.

Proponents of the no-pay amendment argue students should not be paid for extracurricular activity; that students working in publications receive sufficient prestige; and point out students working on publications receive journalism credit.

Meanwhile, in connection with the SGA individual offices elections, students last night swarmed over the campus to attend rallies for the individual contestants. Roads leading to the dining hall were expected to be cluttered today with election posters and students handing out sample ballots—with their candidates already marked.

Candidates for office in the SGA are: President — John Holter, Jefferson, Md., and Joseph D. Tydings, son of Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.); vice president — Ken Kefauver, Baltimore, and Herb Siegel, Baltimore; treasurer — Walter Cortese, Woodcliff Park, N. J., and Bob Mann, Baltimore; secretary — Miss Billie Hatcher, 6140 31st pl. nw., and Miss Bettye Smith, 90 Rittenhouse st. ne.

Ex-Wife Sues for Estate Left To Common-Law Successor

The divorced wife of a 48-year-old butcher who died last year sought yesterday to break his will, which left most of his $100,000 estate to a woman he designated as his common law wife.

Mrs. Theresa McMahon, of 1241 Shepherd st. nw., filed a petition in District Court asking revocation of probate of the will of Richard J. McMahon, who died last October after a three-story fall from the porch of his home at 4523 Nebraska ave.

The bulk of his estate was left to Mrs. Virginia Lee Williams McMahon, of the Nebraska ave. address, described by will papers as the person with whom McMahon lived "uninterruptedly" from 1943 until the time the will was filed March 9, 1948.

Mrs. Theresa McMahon said in her petition she was married to McMahon in 1923. She claimed they were domiciled as man and wife until the date of his death."

In 1941, the petition states, she went to Florida to recuperate from meningitis "at his insistence." While there, she filed suit for divorce, but abandoned the suit when her husband "reconsidered" and consented to their reunion.

Mrs. Theresa McMahon said an abolute divorce was granted in Florida, however, about the time they were living in Washington as man and wife at 1241 Shepherd st. nw. and at 1128 10th st. nw.

She contends she is either McMahon's lawful wife or his common-law wife, since they lived together "continuously" until December, 1945, and off and on thereafter until McMahon died, according to the petition.

The will was induced "by fraud and deceit and under influence" at a time when McMahon was suffering from acute alcoholism, with recurrent spells of delirium tremens, according to Mrs. McMahon's petition. She claims she is entitled to a statutory share of his estate.

Lewis Shapiro, attorney for executors of the McMahon estate, represents Mrs. Virginia McMahon. Raymond Gittelman and Nathan Rubey are attorneys for Mrs. Theresa McMahon.

Liquor Store Opposed in Michigan Pk.

Citizens' Group Reverses Original Stand, 77-28, in Heated Meeting

After nearly two hours of wrangling, the Michigan Park Citizens Association last night officially disapproved the establishment of a liquor store in the area by a vote of 77 to 28.

The vote came after a bitter exchange of comments between the association's president, Philip A. Dolan, and members. It reversed the position taken on March 7 when the group voted in favor of allowing the liquor store to be established at 1918 Allison st. ne.

Nearly 150 members packed a small classroom at the Bunker Hill School, 14th and Michigan ave. ne., to favor a resolution, made in the form of letter to be sent to the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, that stated the association was "unalterably opposed to the liquor store."

Membership Challenged

The votes were cast after Dolan challenged those present to show membership cards denoting good standing in the organization.

At this point Charles F. Fowler, who claimed to have been a member for seven years, said he had no card and told Dolan, "It's a waste of time to listen to you run this association."

Dolan replied "How many times have you been to a meeting in those seven years?" and Fowler answered, "I have been conspicuous by my absence."

Nearly 40 others who thought they were members in good standing but had no cards, protested to the chair. After a series of complaints and explanations S. Henry Hoddinott, a past president of the association, read the names of those eligible to vote from the official roster.

Tardy Action Criticized

Dolan criticized the group and told them that "had you been as interested in this matter when it was first raised and appeared at the ABC hearing, you would have been informed as to what is going on and wouldn't be making all the big stink you are trying to raise with me."

Despite accusations by members that Dolan favored the liquor store he protested that he had never expressed an opinion one way or the other.

The special meeting was held last night after 18 members had petitioned Dolan. At a prior meeting April 4, police finally ended three hours of turbulent argument over the problem that brought forth no agreement.

The ABC board granted the license for the liquor store shortly after the group favored such action at its March 7 meeting. Two policemen were present at last night's meeting but were not called on to maintain order.

4 Policemen Honored By Civic Association

Four Metropolitan policemen received certificates of recognition for outstanding achievement from the East Central Civic Association last night during the group's meeting at Bundy School, 429 O st. nw.

President Frank D. McKinney presented the awards to Detective Sergt. Harvey H. McGuinn, Detective Sergt. Edward P. Hallman, both of the Police Robbery Squad, and Pvt. Shelton H. Nuttall and Pvt. Jesse Johnson, both of the Second Precinct, for the capture of gunmen and robbers here during the past several years.

Sixty-nine persons attended the group's annual "Law and Order" meeting. Park Police Capt. Mark Raspberry spoke.

Hampshire Heights Votes to Join Picnic

The Hampshire Heights Citizens Association last night voted in favor of joining other member associations of the Northwest Council in a picnic. The idea had been proposed at the last council meeting and delegates had been asked to poll their memberships.

Meeting at the Barnard School, 4th and Decatur sts., nw., President O. E. Rue appointed a nominating committee to submit a slate of candidates for the annual elections next month.

Civic Betterment Unit Elects Robert H. Lee

Robert H. Lee, 4820 Bass pl. se., civilian employe of the Office of the Quartermaster-General, Department of the Army, last night was reelected president of the Civic Betterment Association.

Forty-two persons attended the meeting at the Smothers School, 44th and Washington pl. ne. Other officers elected included Charles Talbert, vice president; Harry M. Carey, recording secretary; Thomas F. Barnes, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Josephine Gregg, historian; John W. Hudson, chaplain, and George F. Riley, sergeant-at-arms.

Officials of the Capital Transit Co. explained the changeover in the Benning line May 1, when buses will replace streetcars.

Deanwood Group Asks Barrett for More Police

The Deanwood Civic Association last night asked Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett to assign more men to the Fourteenth Precinct.

The request came during a meeting at the Carver School, Lee and Whittingham pl. ne., after Fourteenth Precinct Lieut. Joseph T. Kerby told the 52 persons present that his unit though undermanned is providing the best protection possible under the circumstances.

The citizens have sought more protection particularly around Carver and Merrick Schools which have been the scenes of recent outbreaks of lawlessness.

Three Killed In Maryland Accidents

Unusual Truck Mishaps Result In Death For Laborers, Hiker

Unusual traffic accidents yesterday claimed the lives of three men in nearby Maryland.

Vincent Robinson, 23, of Upper Marlboro, was killed in one of the accidents when he attempted to jump on the end of a moving, crane-loaded trailer truck and was crushed beneath eight rear wheels.

The accident happened in Upper Marlboro at about 3 p. m. on Route 4, in front of the Edelen Brothers tobacco warehouse.

Police identified the driver of the truck as Arthur E. Davis, 34, of Davidsonville, Md., an employe of Eugene Chaney of Upper Marlboro.

The second victim was Buckley Ray Presley, 27, of Lincoln Park, Md., who fell from the side of a pickup truck at about 4:50 p. m. in Lincoln Park, just north of Rockville.

Charles H. Hilderbrand, 17, also of Lincoln Park, who was driving the truck, said Presley fell from the truck and struck his head on the pavement when the truck made a sharp right turn at Horner's la. and Beantown rd. in Lincoln Park.

In the third accident, Benjamin H. Wanamaker, 65, of Muskegon, Mich., identified by Waterloo, Md., State police as a hitch-hiker, was killed when the driver of a truck in which he was riding apparently fell asleep, ran off the road and struck a tree. The accident occurred on State Route 301 a mile north of the Pigeon House.

Harry Y. Cooper, 61, of Ridgeland, S. C., driver of the truck, was in a critical condition at Emergency Hospital, Annapolis, Md.

In Arlington, a 5-year-old boy was injured yesterday when he reportedly ran into the side of a car in the 2400 block of S. Glebe rd.

Injured was Ben Terry of 2444 S. Glebe rd. who was taken to Arlington Hospital

Car driver Francis W. Schoenbauer, 614 Seventh st. sw., a furniture refinisher, told police he was headed south on Glebe rd. when the child ran into his right front fender.

Three persons were injured, one seriously, when a dump truck caught fire after it knocked down a traffic light at North Capitol and K sts.

Napoleon Foreman, 26, of 4420 Eads st. ne, received 3d degree burns on his entire body and Leroy Ferguson, 42, of 85 Myrtle st. ne., was burned on the hands and face. Both were admitted to Casualty Hospital. Verniel Ridley, 28, the truck driver was treated for an injured shoulder. He was charged with driving on the wrong side of the street.

Broker Reports Theft Of $2200 and Safe

A Washington broker told police yesterday his home had been broken into and $2200 in cash and a safe valued at $50 had been stolen from a den on the second floor.

Theodore P. Smyrnas, who lives at 4325 47th st. nw., said his home was entered by jimmying a basement window.

'Hill' Expected To Act Soon on Juvenile Judge

Action on proposals to create a new Juvenile Court judgeship is likely in the Senate District Committee next week and in the House District Committee soon afterward.

Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), who heads a Judiciary Subcommittee of the Senate unit, yesterday ordered a poll of subcommittee members with full committee action likely to follow next Tuesday.

Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.) who heads a similar House subcommittee said his group will take up the problem in a week or two.

Two bills are before each committee, each designed to end the present situation brought about by the absence from the bench of Judge Fay Bentley. She is a voluntary patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital and is not expected to return to the bench before her term ends in 1952.

One bill, offered by the District Bar Association, would create a permanent second judgeship. This bill requires that the judges be named for 10 years. It required each judge to have been a member of the District bar for at least the past five years.

The second bill, prepared by the Justice Department, simply creates a new judgeship and then declares the position occupied by Judge Bentley "shall be abolished when a vacancy shall occur" or at the end of Judge Bentley's term, whichever is first. The Justice bill sets up no qualification of District bar membership.

Springarn School Building Urged By Education Aide

Erection of the proposed Spingarn High School must go ahead if the present Negro population in Northeast Washington is to be adequately served and existing overcrowding in Negro schools corrected.

Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools, so told a meeting of the Inter-Denominational Ministers' Alliance yesterday at the Goodwill Baptist Church. He also described the need for the reconstruction of Armstrong and Cardozo High Schools.

The Alliance adopted a resolution asking the Board of Education to make interracial schools of Central High School and other white schools not now being used to capacity pending the construction of Spingarn and other facilities for Negro youths.

Judge's Dog Returns Bruised, Exhausted

"Boofer," brown and white Collie pet belonging to Municipal Court Judge Aubrey Fennell, was reported back at home yesterday after an unexplained two-day absence, but was suffering a severe case of "nervous exhaustion."

The dog returned Monday night about 12:30 p. m., Mrs. Fennell said, minus his collar, and tag, and with quite a few bruises about the face.

"Boofer," who bears an old nickname of the judge, disappeared in the direction of Rock Creek Park Saturday.

2 Meetings Slated Today On District Slum Action

'Clean-up' Program Coordination to Be Topic at Session Of Commissioners

Action on Washington slum conditions will be planned at meetings today in the District Building and on Capitol Hill.

The Commissioners will confer with local planning, slum clearance and public housing officials at 10 a. m. in an effort to coordinate their long-delayed "clean up" program.

After the downtown housing huddle, representatives of the city heads will go before a Senate District Subcommittee to explain what they are doing about an admittedly minor phase of the over-all slum clearance problem — enforcement of health regulations in the substandard dwelling areas.

Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.), chairman of the District Health, Welfare and Recreation Subcommittee, will preside over the "exploratory" meeting, which will look into the specific question whether local health laws give officials enough authority to enforce sanitation in blighted areas.

Small Factor in Picture?

Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) of the full District Committee, said "we know the final answer to wiping out slum conditions here is more funds for more public housing and slum clearance. Health enforcement is only a small factor in this whole picture."

Senate committee sources said Assistant Engineer Commissioner Thomas J. Hayes 3rd and Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West will probably represent the city heads at the 2:30 p.m. meeting. Others invited to Senator Smith's conference were William H. Cary, Jr., director of health engineering; Health Director Dr. George H. Ruhland and Building Inspector Robert H. Davis.

The Commissioners' morning meeting is expected to center on a number of "policy" questions, including:

1. The relationship of the District Redevelopment Land Agency, charged with slum clearance, and NCHA, the local public housing authority, in light of Senate action last week in restoring site acquisition authority to the latter.

2. Whether the land agency, thus far given no money by Congress for actual redevelopment work, should or could seek funds under provisions of the national housing measure.

3. How to tighten health regulation enforcement, leading to condemning substandard dwellings, in preparation for the Senator Smith conference.

Meeting with the city heads will be Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission; Mark Lansburgh, land agency chairman; John Ihlder, executive officer of NCHA; West, Ruhland and Cary.

Other Developments

In other developments yesterday:

1. Representative Brent Spence (D., Ky.), chairman of the House Banking Committee, predicted that his committee would add the Senate-approved NCHA land acquisition amendment to its national housing bill. He said he hoped the measure would be reported to the House floor next week.

2. Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) conferred with Leonard A. Scheele, Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service, on Nationwide sanitation codes. He said he would meet today with a group of local home builders as part of his effort to "get a complete picture of Washington slum conditions."

3. Representative Charles D. Deane (D., N. C.) issued a statement declaring that families on military bases are the "forgotten people" as far as housing goes. He introduced a bill Monday that would authorize the Government to insure mortgages for housing near military bases as an incentive to more home construction in these areas.

Apple Festival to Have Plenty of Blossoms

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., April 26—The Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival, to open here Thursday, will have one vital ingredient which was missing for the last five years—plenty of apple blossoms.

Mother Nature and the festival committee apparently collaborated on an appropriate time for the two-day event. The temperature this afternoon was in the upper 60's, with a gentle breeze.

Morning showers are forecast for tomorrow, but they are expected to add to the profusion of blooms.

For the last five years, officials recalled, the festival has been held just after a killing frost disposed of most of the blooms or just before they were in full flower.

Queen Shenandoah XXII, Margaret Thors, arrived here today to make final arrangements for a whirl of parties, her coronation Thursday and the parade Friday.

A brunette, she is the daughter of Iceland's Minister to the United States and Canada, Thor Thors.

Miss Thors and her court will hold a press conference at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow as a prelude to official events the next day.

She will hold a reception tomorrow at the George Washington Hotel in honor of persons who participated in plans for the festival. This is the first time such a function has been arranged during the festival's 22-year history.

The queen will set the pace for thousands of visitors expected here when she makes a tour of apple orchards at 9:30 a. m. Thursday.

The climax of festivities for that day will be her coronation at 3 p. m. at Handley School bowl. Immediately after, there will be an outdoor "Pageant of Springtime."

Princesses in the queen's court will be guests of honor at a dance at the city Armory at 10 p. m., Johnny Long's orchestra will play. The queen's ball will be held Friday night, same time and same place.

Miss Thors will welcome comedian Bob Hope to her realm at 11 a. m. Friday. They will attend a luncheon for the queen and her court at noon and Hope will be grand marshal in a parade of floats, bands, marching units and pretty girls at 12:40 p. m.

Winchester, about 70 miles from Washington, may be reached either via U. S. Route 50 or State Route 7.

Area News in Brief

Suffrage Parade Proposed for July 4

Plans for a possible Fourth of July torchlight parade to boost District suffrage will be considered today at a meeting of Democratic Central Committee and Truman-Barkley Club officials, according to Arthur Clarendon Smith, an official of both groups.

Smith, who heads the club and is vice chairman of the committee, said he hopes for a big parade in which all local civil and other organizations favoring suffrage will take part.

Date of the proposed torchlight parade is not definite, Smith said, but he hopes it can be held on Independence Day without interfering with the normal July 4 festivities and fireworks.

D. C. Figures

Crime Facts Alert U. S. for Propaganda

By John London
Post Reporter

The State Department has mapped a counter-offensive of words, just in case Russia forges into a propaganda weapon recent figures showing a 1948 crime spurt in Washington.

State information experts have anticipated possible Russian propaganda charges that the report of the Washington Criminal Justice Association indicates America's Capital seethes with crime.

The association reported serious offenses increased from 8002 in 1947 to 13,029 in 1948—an increase last year of 62 per cent.

The International Press and Publications Division of the State Department has prepared material for the Voice of America, and information officers throughout the world on the report. Dissemination of the material hinges on whether Russia takes up verbal cudgels.

State Department arguments point out:

In this country, unlike Russia, we publish statistics about crime and welcome critiques by non-government groups like the association which seeks to improve law enforcement.

The reported spurt in serious crimes results from improved police reporting procedures inaugurated in July, 1947.

Associations like CJA exist in a democracy to inform citizens of the true state of affairs and through free information, to seek to correct faults.

Meanwhile, in the local arena, it was learned the association has asked United States Attorney George Morris Fay to explain a "considerable discrepancy" between the number of arrests for aggravated assaults last year and the number of cases presented to the grand jury. The association expects to release a report on this problem next week.

Fay pointed out many aggravated assault cases are referred to Municipal Court rather than to a grand jury. Municipal Court can impose sentences up to a year.

One important advantage, he said, is that court referral eliminates a minimum lapse of four weeks time involved in grand jury indictment.

'I Am An American Day'

May 15 was proclaimed as "I Am an American Day" yesterday by the Commissioners. They urged residents to display their flags and to participate in exercises marking the celebration.

Col. Waldron E. Leonard, director of the Veterans Service Center, is general chairman of the observance. An "I Am an American Day" program will be held on the east steps of the Capitol at 2 p. m. on May 15.

Bill on Bridge Names

Historical flavor will be added to the new twin highway bridges spanning the Potomac at 14th st. sw. if a bill introduced yesterday by Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) becomes law.

Smith wants the southbound span named the "George Washington Memorial Bridge," and the northbound one the "Thomas Jefferson Memorial Bridge."

Secretary Reappointed

Mrs. Alice C. Hunter was reappointed yesterday by the Commissioners as secretary of the District Recreation Board. Her new four-year term will begin May 29.

Chancery Tax-Exempt

The Hungarian Legation won't have to pay District taxes on the three-story residence at 2118 Leroy pl. nw., now being used as a chancery.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West told the Commissioners the legation has used the premises since May 1, 1948. He suggested the tax exemption be made retroactive to July 1, 1948. The Commissioners approved.

Sleuths Impress Gossett

Yes sir, Representative Ed Gossett (D., Tex.) was impressed. Yesterday, he discovered his car stolen from in front of his house at 2335 Skyland pl. se. He notified police and they recovered it within five minutes.

The car had been abandoned at Eastern and Southern aves. ne. Thieves had crossed the ignition wires. On the front seat was a blackjack.

Circle Gets New Lights

At Dupont Circle, 24 round-the-clock traffic signals and pedestrian blinkers will be operating in the near future. The Commissioners yesterday approved a $19,811 contract for their installation. The installatinos will be made by the Potomac Electric Power Co. The new underpass made the signals necessary.

ADA Puts Off Action On D. C. Commissioner

A meeting of the executive committee of Americans for Democratic Action, District chapter, was postponed yesterday until later in the week. The meeting is expected to discuss possible candidates for District Commissioner. Inability of members to attend yesterday was the reason for the delay.

Dr. Tuve Gets Science Prize For Research

Dr. Merle Anthony Tuve, 135 Hesketh st., Chevy Chase, Md., last night was awarded the Cyrus B. Comstock prize for his pioneering work in nuclear physics, development of the proximity fuse and his studies pertaining to the upper atmosphere.

The award was made at a dinner of the National Academy of Sciences at the Washington Hotel. Dr. Tuve is director of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Other awards for outstanding scientific work went to Samuel A. Mitchell, observatory director at the University of Virginia, for astronomy; Frank McLearn of the Geological Survey of Canada, for geologic science; and George Harrison Shull, retired Princeton University professor, for work in public welfare.

Earlier, members of the academy had elected Edwin B. Wilson, retired professor at the Harvard School of Public Health, as their vice president for a four-year term beginning July 1.

Named to the academy council for three-year terms were Joel H. Hildebrand of the University of California and Ernest W. Goodpasture, dean of Vanderbilt University's School of Medicine.

Washington area residents named as academy members included Ralph W. G. Wyckoff, 3760 39th st. nw., of the National Institute of Health in Bethesda; Thomas S. Lovering, of the U. S. Geological Survey; and Walter D. Lambert, now retired from the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey.

In all, 28 new members were added to the academy.

Space Shifts Of D. C. Units Are Approved

Twenty-three reassignments of office space in the District Building and the Municipal Center were tentatively approved yesterday by the District Commissioners to provide space for expansions resulting from passage of the proposed sales tax.

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, and Commissioner Guy Mason approved the switches, while John Russell Young, chairman of the board, refrained from voting.

The principal changes authorized were for removal of the auditor, disbursing officer and the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency from the District Building to the Municipal Center; removal of the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board and part of the Health Department from the Municipal Center to the second floor of the Central Public Library Building, 499 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

The city heads also authorized establishment of a shuttle service between the District Building and Municipal Center to transport personnel, mail and papers between the two buildings.

Morris P. Moore

Brownsville, Tex., April 26 (AP).—Morris P. Moore, 44, editor and general manager of the Brownsville Herald, died last night of a heart attack. He came to Brownsville a year ago after being with the Daily Oklahoman and Oklahoma City Times 20 years.

Mrs. Charles S. Early, Sr.

Funeral services for Mrs. Charles S. Early, sr., 72, wife of the chairman of the Prince Georges County Democratic State Central Committee, were held yesterday at the Church of the Incarnation in Brandywine, Md. Burial was in St. Paul's Cemetery, Baden, Md.

Mrs. Early, a resident of Brandywine, died at her home Saturday, after an illness of 6 weeks.

A native of Washington, she was the former Cora Lee Lewis. She moved to Prince Georges County as a girl, before her marriage 42 years ago.

Besides her husband, she leaves three children: Lewis M. Early and Charles S. Early, jr., both of Brandywine, and Mrs. F. L. Carpenter, of Morganstown, W. Va.

Streptomycin Held Helpful in Tuberculosis

Streptomycin was labeled "the greatest advance since the discovery of the tuberculosis bacillus itself" in the field of TB treatment, and credited with a "signal triumph" over three rare types of TB yesterday.

Dr. Walter L. Nalls, Veterans' Administration consultant, made the statement in an address before the annual meeting of the District Tuberculosis Association yesterday, YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw.

Effects of the new drug have been observed in more than 7000 TB patients at 64 veterans hospitals, Dr. Nall said.

Less Effective in Lung TB

It is most effective in TB of the mouth and vocal chords, of the intestines, and in soft body tissues like the sinus, with painful symptoms of the first two types promptly relieved, Dr. Nall stated.

He called streptomycin a "useful adjunct, not a definitive treatment" for other forms of TB, including the most common TB of the lung.

3000 Undetected Cases

According to the Tuberculosis Association's annual report, there are 8955 known cases of tuberculosis in the District, plus an estimated 3000 more undetected cases.

There are 554 known cases here which are not receiving medical care, the report said, including 140 persons on the waiting list for hospital treatment.

The following persons were elected to the association's board of directors for the term expiring in 1952: Carter T. Barron, Dr. James J. Feffer, Richard J. Gray, Mrs. Alice Hunter, Dr. Hugh H. Hussey, Dr. Robert Jason, Mrs. Julian Loewus, Norman J. Nelson, Frank O. Norton and Edward B. Persons.

Elected for a two-year term was Joseph H. B. Evans. Three persons were elected for one-year terms: Bernard L. Amiss, Lawrence M. Blumenfeld and Andrew L. Lindsay.

Pvt. Gabrys Is Promoted To Detective

Pvt. Joseph A. Gabrys, who helped capture Henry R. (Big Boy) Milton, a member of the old Tri-State Gang, last fall, was yesterday promoted to probational detective by the District Commissioners.

Gabry's promotion was one of 11 authorized on the recommendation of Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett. The others were:

Temporary Sergt. Charles A. Parker to permanent sergeant, Temporary Corpl. John S. Hughes to permanent corporal, Precinct Detective Roy C. Schwab to the Detective Bureau, Probational Detective William J. McGrath to precinct detective.

Also, Probational Detective Robert V. Gary to precinct detective, Pvt. William R. Shelton to precinct detective, Corpl. Howard B. Quantrille to temporary sergeant, Corpl. Walter L. Morris to temporary sergeant, Pvt. Beryl E. Darr to temporary corporal and Pvt. Percy C. Duvall to temporary corporal.

Mrs. Keleher Seeks Larger Share of Husband's Income

Mrs. Anna T. Keleher yesterday asked District Court to give her more of the $30,000-a-month income she credits to her estranged husband, John B. (Sport) Keleher, once convicted gambler.

Recently, Judge Edward A. Tamm, in dismissing her District Court divorce suit against her husband, granted her $100-a-week maintenance. Since then, Mrs. Keleher has filed another divorce action. Keleher also has a counter suit pending.

In yesterday's suit, Mrs. Keleher declared she was unable to get along on $100 a week. She needs additional money for medical and dental care and to pay debts, she said. When she lived with her husband, the suit said, he allowed her between $3000 and $3500 a month.

Henry S. Chick, 60, Retiring; 43 Years With Government

Henry S. Chick, 60-year-old District native in his 43d year of Government service, will retire Saturday from his post as executive assistant to the Assistant Administrator for Claims in the Veterans' Administration Central Office.

Educated in public schools here and at Georgetown University, where he took a law degree, Chick started as a plate printer apprentice in the Bureau of Engraving in 1906.

He joined the Bureau of War Risk in 1920 and has served in that agency and its successors, the Veterans' Bureau and Veterans' Administration, continuously.

Chick and his wife live at 706 Van Buren st. nw. They have a son and a daughter.

Harry Caton, Ex-Federal Official, Dies

Mr. Caton

Harry B. Caton, retired chief of the correspondence section of the Justice Department's Alien Property Custodian division, died following a heart attack yesterday at his home, 205 W. Monroe st., Alexandria.

Mr. Caton, who was in his 70's, was a native of Alexandria and a founder of the town's "Little Theater" group.

A graduate of Alexandria's public schools, and the old Potomac Academy there, he received his B.A. in 1899 from Western Maryland College, and his law degree in 1901 from the University of Virginia.

First City Police Judge

Mr. Caton practiced for a time with his father, the late James R. Caton, and later sat as first judge of Alexandria's Civil and Police Court.

From 1917 to 1921 he worked as an attorney for the Alien Property Custodian's Office, then went into private practice in the District with offices in the Tower Building.

In 1935 he returned to the Alien Property Custodian's Office, when it merged with the Justice Department. He retired in 1946.

A past president of the Little Theater, he was also a member of the Sharps and Flats, music group founded about 1901 and now extinct.

Helped in Bicentennial

A historian by avocation, he helped with research for the Alexandria Bicentennial celebration.

Mr. Caton belonged to the George Washington Birthday Association, the American Philatelic Society, the Andrew Jackson Lodge of Masons, and the Washington Street Methodist Episcopal Church. He was a past president of the Alexandria Kiwanis Club.

Besides his wife, the former Adele Ogden, whom he married in 1908, he leaves a son, Harry Burdge Caton of Suffolk, Va., and a daughter, Barbara Caton Walcott of San Francisca, Calif. Four grandchildren also survive.

Mrs Carrie M. Fader

Mrs. Carrie M. Fader, a resident of Washington area for the last 30 years, died Monday evening.

A native of Sullivan, Me., she was the widow of Alexander G. Fader, a floor manager at Jelleff's for 15 years. Mrs. Fader was a member of the Third Church of Christ Scientist of Washington.

Survivors include three children, Mrs. Pauline F. Donohoe, of Arlington, Va.; Calvin A. Fader, of Silver Spring, Md.; Mrs. Helen F. Poulton, of Washington; and five grandchildren.

Funeral services and interment will be private.

Frank C. Stratton

Frank C. Stratton, 72, retired chief of the docket division of the Interstate Commerce Commission, died yesterday at Casualty Hospital after a three-week illness.

Mr. Stratton went to the ICC five years after the commission was established in 1887 as a messenger. He retired in 1944 after 52 years of service.

He lived at 1305 East Capitol st. after coming to Washington from Kansas. He attended the Abbott School here and for many years he and his wife were active members of the Carroll Institute, which sponsored amateur theatricals in the District during the early 1900's.

Mr. Stratton was a member of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, 4th and B sts. se., and was superintendent of the Sunday School there for several years.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Edna Bell Stratton.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. Thursday at the Zirkle funeral home, 510 C st. ne. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Nesbit Dies; Acceptance Firm Head

Mr. Nesbit

Fred Thorpe Nesbit, president of the Federal Acceptance Corporation, died in Emergency Hospital yesterday after an illness of more than six months.

A resident of Washington for the past 30 years, Mr. Nesbit was a native of Lewisburg, Pa. He spent his youth in College Park, Md., and returned to Lewisburg to attend Bucknell University.

Mr. Nesbit entered the contracting business in New York and from his offices there, contracted for the construction of buildings all over the country including the Woodward Building, the Little Theater, and the expansion of the Woodward and Lothrop department store.

He moved to Washington during the first World War and organized the Federal Acceptance Corporation, an insurance and loan business whose offices are at present at 1010 Vermont ave. nw.

A member of the Washington Golf and Country Club of which he was a past president and past treasurer, Mr. Nesbit also was associated with the University and Racquet Clubs and with Cathedral Lodge No. 40, F.A.A.M.

He is survived by his wife, the former Louise Foxwell of England, who lives at their home at 2800 Ontario rd. nw; a son, Thorpe D. Nesbit, Philadelphia, and a sister, Mrs. W. D. Bigelow, 3902 Ingomar st. nw.

Funeral services will be held at Gawler's Funeral Home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw., at 2 p.m. Thursday. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Bertram E. Silver

Funeral services for Bertram E. Silver, 62, former War Production Board employe, who died Monday, will be held at 11 a. m. today in the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be private.

Mr. Silver died at the Bethesda Naval Hospital after a short illness.

Mr. Silver, who lived with his family at 3224 Martha Custis dr., Alexandria, was a native of Boston and was educated at the University of New Hampshire.

He was a member of the sales division of the Goodrich Rubber Co. in Indianapolis for 20 years before coming to Washington in 1942. He served with the Office of the Rubber Bureau with the War Production Board until ill health forced him to resign in 1945.

He was a founder of the New Hampshire Alumni Club here, a member of the National Capital Orchid Society, a 32d degree Mason and a Shriner. Mr. Silver, who was an Army pilot during World War I, was active in Kiwanis International in Indianapolis and a member of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ruth Trice Silver, of Alexandria, and a son, Robert M. Silver, Miami, Fla.

Harvey Samuel Willey

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 26.—Funeral services will be held here Thursday for Harvey Samuel Willey, 83, who died at his home in Strasburg, Va., this morning after a long illness.

Mrs. Willey had at one time been an elder of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and had also served congregations in Virginia and West Virginia.

In early life he had been associated with the M. P. Moller Company of Hagerstown and later with the Limeton Lime Co. in Front Royal, Va.

Surviving are his wife, the former Ida Blue of Martinsburg County, a daughter, Ruth B. Willey, Martinsburg, a son, Robert F. Willey, manager of the Washington office of the Bethlehem Steel Corp., a sister, Mrs. E. S. Ludwig, Middletown, Va., and two brothers, S. R. Willey, Winchester, Va., and Herbert Willey, Silver Spring, Md.

First Lady's Schedule Heavy

Mrs. Truman Honor Guest At Senate Ladies' Party

By Elizabeth Maguire

MRS. TRUMAN and wives of Cabinet members yesterday attended the annual luncheon given in their honor by the Senate Ladies' Luncheon Club. Magnolia blossoms and red and white carnations centered the tables in the Caucus Room where the luncheon was held and at each place was a corsage of gardenias.

There were 106 guests. All the Cabinet wives attended with the exception of Mrs. Maurice J. Tobin, who is out of town. Former Senate wives Mrs. Hugo L. Black and Mrs. Harold H. Burton were guests, as well as Mrs. Cordell Hull, Mrs. Dolly Gann and Mrs. Max O'Rell Truitt, daughter of the Vice President. Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, former president of the Senate Wives Club, was also present, stopping by for a short while.

The luncheon followed the weekly Red Cross meeting of the Senate wives, and food was prepared by club members at their own homes. Baked hams, delicious salads, hot rolls and homemade cakes were served.

President of the Senate Ladies' Luncheon Club is Mrs. Allen J. Ellender. Mrs. Styles Bridges is first vice president; Mrs. Spessard Lindsay Holland, second vice president; Mrs. John J. Williams, third vice president; Mrs. John Cornelius Stennis, recording secretary; Mrs. James P. Kem, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Ernest W. McFarland, treasurer.

Serving on the executive board of the club are Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Mrs. John L. McClellan, Mrs. John W. Bricker and Mrs. Guy M. Gillette.

THE Veterans' garden party, which is held every spring at the White House, will not be held this year because of the reconstruction work going on. At a White House conference held yesterday by Mrs. Truman's secretary, Mrs. James Meredith Helm, it was explained that parties require a kitchen as well as a garden, and a kitchen at present is non-existent.

Mrs. Truman's many engagements for the coming two weeks were announced at yesterday's conference. The First Lady will attend the Congressional Club breakfast to be given in her honor tomorrow in the Terrace Room of the Shoreham Hotel. On Friday she will receive members of the Silver Spring branch of the American Association of University Women. Later the same day Mrs. Truman and Margaret will attend a reception given by the White House aides at Anderson House.

On Saturday Mrs. Truman will be the guest of honor at a musical luncheon to be given by the Democratic Women's National Council at the Mayflower Hotel, and she will also attend the benefit tea for the Goodwill Guild to be held at Mrs. Martin Vogel's house, 2601 30th st., from 4 to 6 p. m.

Mrs. Truman will attend a tea opening the Pan American White House Spanish class at the Pan American Union on Monday, May 2, at 4 p. m. Tuesday at noon she will shake hands with approximately 25 home demonstration ladies from Milton, Vt., and she will also attend the women's luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce at the Shoreham Hotel.

On Thursday Mrs. Truman will go to a luncheon which the 74th Club will give at the Mayflower Hotel. The following day she will open the Annual Flower Mart on the Pilgrim Steps at the Washington Cathedral. Monday, May 9, Mrs. Truman will attend the annual Thrift Shop White Elephant sale, to be held at the Statler Hotel from 4 to 6 o'clock, and she will also receive the Society of Sponsors of the U. S. Navy, approximately 100, at 5 o'clock.

Spanish Classes Meet at Fiesta

MRS. JOHN TABER, wife of the Representative from New York; Mrs. William M. Whittington, wife of the Representative from Mississippi, and Mrs. W. Frederick Weigester were joint hostesses at luncheon yesterday at Mrs. Weigester's apartment at the Kennedy-Warren in compliment to their costudents of the Congressional Club Spanish classes tutored by Mrs. Leon Tashof.

Only Spanish was spoken during the afternoon.

Special guests were wives of Latin-American diplomats. They included Senora de Esquivel, Senora de Gonzalez-Arevalo, Senora de la Colina, Senora de Lequerica, Senora de Rovira, Senora de Baraibar, Senora de Salazar, Senora de Meyer, Senora de Acosta, Senora de Ro vira, Senora de Garcia, Senora de Benitez, Senora Anibal Diaz. Daughters of 1812 Council Opposes World Government

By Genevieve Reynolds

DELEGATES to the fifty-seventh associate council, National Society United States Daughters of 1812, yesterday adopted resolutions opposing world government and changes in present immigration laws.

In another resolution, the Daughters called upon Congress to appriate adequate funds for the House Un-American Activities Committee to continue and broaden its scope of work. Copies of the resolution will be sent to President Truman, the presiding officer of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The resolution commended the House Un-American Activities Committee for exposing communism.

Emphatic disapproval of compulsory health insurance was expressed in a resolution, which had been returned to the resolutions committee for rewording at the Monday session.

Preamble of the resolution opposing the compulsory health plan termed "socialized medicine," maintained that Government control of health and medical care would kill initiative of the medical profession and "could result in direct socialization."

Congress was urged that no immigration over and above the present quota system, established by law in 1924, "shall be permitted into the United States either by special legislation, unused quota or executive order."

Officers Installed

At the concluding afternoon session of the society's four-day conclave Mrs. Frederick B. Ingram of Dallas, Tex., was elected and installed president of the organization. Mrs. Lucius Willingham McConnell of Atlanta, Ga., retiring president, was made a life honorary president national by a unanimous vote of council delegates. Due to illness, Mrs. McConnell could not attend and the four vice presidents national—Mrs. William L. Bond of N. Y., Mrs. Wayne Francis Shaw of Kans., Mrs. Alvin M. Sowers of W. Va., and Mrs. Ingram took turns presiding at the council meetings.

Other new officers elected and installed yesterday include Mrs. Frederick C. Pew of Calif., first vice president national; Mrs. Leonard C. Mook, second vice president national; Mrs. Marvin L. Hoagland, third vice president national, and Mrs. Charles Henry Plotner of this city, fourth vice president national.

Still others were Mrs. Grace Hetzel, chaplain national; Mrs. I. B. McFarland, recording secretary national; Mrs. Laura Yates Finehout, correspodnent secretary national; Mrs. R. Omer Edwards, registrar national; Mrs. Walter Carroll Anderson, historian national; Mrs. Charles William Crankshaw, librarian national; Miss Jennie M. Booth, curator national.

Elected honorary vice presidents national were Mrs. William L. Manchester of Rhode Island and Miss Helen Estes of Georgia.

Women's Clubs Urge Uniform Divorce Law

Hollywood, Fla., April 26 (AP). The General Federation of Women's Clubs today adopted a resolution urging Congress to enact uniform divorce laws.

In the opening business session of the federation's fifty-eighth convention, the 2000 clubwomen attending also adopted resolutions asking the abolition of the Electoral College and approved the work of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

The divorce law resolution contended that lack of uniform laws often has resulted in illegal divorces. In turn, this causes illegal marriages and illegitimacy of children with consequent breakdown of moral standards and confusion of property rights, the resolution said.

The resolution seeks a constitutional amendment giving Congress power to enact uniform marriage and divorce legislation.

A constitutional amendment which would abolish the Electoral College in presidential and vice presidential elections also was asked. The resolution called for the division of the electoral vote in each State in proportion to the popular vote. Such a change, the resolution said, would more nearly reflect the will of the people.

After Charming Capitalites, Reynaud Off to Visit Mexico, Lecture in New York, Lisbon

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

PAUL REYNAUD, once an internationally controversial figure, was Washington's weekend lion and guest of honor at a reception given by the French Charge d'Affaires and Mme. Armand Berard. M. Reynaud, Premier of France during the 1940 Nazi triumph, made his political comeback last summer, holding briefly the Minister of Finance portfolio.

At present, the short, ruddy-cheeked statesman is Deputy (representative) from Northern France. Here on International Chamber of Commerce invitation, M. Reynaud will lecture in New York on multi-lateral trade agreements. This chore accomplished, he'll fly to Mexico and visit nephews who own a prosperous department store. The nephews hail from a French Alpine town called Barcelonette, where, for generations, the more energetic young bucks take off at early age to make fortunes down Mexico way. M. Reynaud will return home via Lisbon, stopping off for a spot of lecturing.

The former Premier survived his harrowing wartime experiences with surprising hardihood. He still looks an alert 50 though he was imprisoned in a Pyrenees fortress, then in a German concentration camp, where he remained until approaching American troops scared away the guards. Actually M. Reynaud is 70 and the secret of his success in retaining "la line" is undoubtedly due to a stringent set of physical exercises executed each morning. Despite a biblical age, the former Premier still retains undiminished his reputation as a ladies' man. The fair sex are enchanted with his trim figure, stylish clothes and, of course, sharp brain. Again M. Reynaud, we're told, is happily enshrouded in romantic haze.

About Keeping Curtains Crisp

I have white cotton marquisette curtains at my windows. No matter how much starch I put in them, and I do starch them till they're almost impossible to iron, they stay stiff for just about three days and then go limp as dishrags. Is there any treatment you know of that will keep curtains crisp and starched between washings?
P. B. S.

Have you been using a boiled starch seems to keep fabrics crisp starch on the curtains? Boiled longer than the noncooked starches. If boiled starch is used in the concentration recommended on the box and prepared according to directions, it should keep the curtains crisp for much longer than three days. The only exception to this is if the curtains are in a room where there is steam occasionally, such as the kitchen and bathroom. Since curtains absorb moisture from the air readily and become limp, try to reduce the moisture in the air by good ventilation and lowering the heat under the boiling foods as soon as they start to boil. Another suggestion would be to try the new permanent starch which is on the market. This can be purchased at the housewares departments of department stores and places where household supplies are sold.

My girl friend and I are planning an informal double wedding and since I am a widow and she has never been married and we don't have entirely the same friends, would it be permissable for her to have engraved invitations and mine separate? We are both in our middle 20s. We plan on white taffeta and pink taffeta, street length dresses and would like suggestions as to flowers, etc. Is it proper for me to give her a shower? How should I (the widow) have my silver engraved if I use only one initial? P. S.

Yes, since the brides are not related, it would be less complicated for you to issue separate invitations.

With street length dresses you could choose corsages or very simple arm bouquets. Since your dresses are not alike in color, you might like to choose flowers which are identical in color and kind to make your costumes more similar. White flowers would be lovely. Discuss the bouquets with your florist to choose just what kind of flowers to use.

It is perfectly proper for you to give her a shower.

Your silver should be marked with the first initial of your future husband's last name.

I have a large tele tray which I wish to decorate. Can you advise me where I might be able to purchase border stencils suitable and also the proper black paint or lacquer for the body of the tray and possibly stencil designs for the center of the tray. The metal tray is new, no paint on it. Does it require a first coat or filler of some type? I have had quite a bit of experience in painting, but have never attempted anything like this before. H. E. C.

Stencils,—some of which would be suitable for decorating trays may be purchased at paint stores which sell artists' supplies. Since you are an experienced painter, you should have no trouble adapting these to your use. Also, The American Home Magazine and the paint stores have design patterns which can be traced and painted with artists paints onto the trays. To use artists' paints for this, a small amount of paint is squeezed out of the tube onto a flat surface such as a sheet of glass or aluminum foil and mixed with high-grade varnish as you use it. Before you paint the tray, wipe it with turpentine to remove any oil and grease, sand lightly with sandpaper to remove any shine, and then give it one coat of a good quality flat black paint. When thoroughly dried, this is the foundation upon which you paint. When you have your design stenciled or painted, allow it to dry very thoroughly and then give the tray several coats of clear spar varnish, allowing each coat time to dry thoroughly before applying the next. This will give the tray a finish which is highly resistent. When the varnish is thoroughly dry, you can rub it down with powdered pumice and light oil to cut the shine and give it a soft gleam which is lovely. Also, if you wish a soft, slightly darker antique appearance to the tray, add a little burnt umber to the varnish.

In Washington Club Speech

Rep. Kearns Asks Investigation Of All Political Science Teachers

REPRESENTATIVE CARROLL D. KEARNS (R., Pa.) yesterday called for an investigation of all political science teachers in the colleges, universities and high schools of the country. He issued his challenge in a speech before members of the Washington Club.

Contending that many political science professors are teaching "ideologies foreign to the United State Constitution," the speaker declared, "It behooves each public school superintendent and college president to sit in on the social science classes to see what the teachers are telling the students."

A former school teacher, school supervisor and currently member of the House Education and Labor Committee, Representative Kearns opposed Federal aid to education on the grounds that it could lead to central control of textbooks, teaching and thoughts of the younger generation.

"If we have Federal aid to education," explained Representative Kearns, "it won't be long before the United States Commissioner of Education will be telling pupils and teachers what, when and why they should study."

The speaker blamed the towns and communities for the educational plight of the Nation. "Towns and communities have run away from their responsibility," he averred. "There's not a town, community or State that couldn't have better schools and pay teachers more if they wanted to."

Expressing concern over the shortage and low salaries of teachers, the Pennsylvania Representative said that young people must be given greater inducements or soon there would be no teachers. "If it weren't for the married teachers who volunteered to return to the classroom," he said, "many schools would be forced to close."

Representative Kearns said that he wanted an increase in teachers' salaries but without Federal control.

Morris Tells Junior League Of Washington Boys Club Aims

Edward Karrick Morris, president of the Washington Boys Club, spoke informally yesterday to the alumnae of the Junior League at a luncheon meeting at the club.

Mr. Morris said the Boys Club of America will hold a convention in Chicago next week at which former President Herbert Hoover will preside and James Farley will be the speaker. Next year, the speaker said, he hopes the convention will be here in Washington.

In giving a brief description of the Boys Club here, Mr. Morris said it is composed of 4000 boys, it is managed by 153 trustees, and it operates on a budget of $150,000. The club, he added, is supported in part by the United Community Service and supplemented by a number of civic clubs and women's organizations.

The speaker emphasized that the Boys Club has no connection with the Police Boys Club. In tracing the history of the Boys Club, Mr. Morris said it was organized in 1920 with Frank Jelleff as first president. Mr. Morris is the seventh president, and Mr. Jelleff is now president emeritus. There are two clubhouses—one at 17th and Massachusetts ave. se. and one in Georgetown at 2726 N st. The Georgetown house has been outgrown and property has been purchased at Wisconsin ave. and S st. There are also two summer camps.

Projects of the club listed by Mr. Morris include music, woodwork, finger and oil painting. The club, he said, has two libraries, a print shop, a canteen and little theater where dramatics are taught. The club also teaches radio and television and all forms of athletics. They have 35 football teams, 60 basketball teams, and the Boys Club of Washington was one of the originators of the Golden Gloves tournament.

The purpose of the Boys Club, Mr. Morris said, is to develop boys into healthy and useful citizens.

American Approach to Charities Impress Visiting Siamese Editor

By Sonia Stein

"FRIENDSHIP HOUSE" is the Washington social welfare organization Miss Propasi Siriworasara would most like to take back to Siam with her.

The young editor in chief of the Nakorn Sarn Daily News of Bangkok, Siam, visited Washington social agencies yesterday as part of the study she is making of the United States.

Miss Propasi (Siamese people use their short first names in preference to their long last names) was very much impressed with the Georgetown Hospital, the YWCA and the other adult agencies she visited, but "Friendship House," which takes care of children, impressed her most of all.

"In Siam most women do not go out to work," she said, "but those who do must leave their children with maids." Looking around at the youngsters at Friendship House who were receiving the attention of trained workers she said, "It is so much better to let educated people take care of the children."

The opportunities to teach children democracy in such a situation seem very important to Miss Propasi. "Here many children come together and learn how to get along with others from their very early days," she said. "This must help make America a great country because everything must start from the children."

Children in this country seem more sure of themselves, Miss Propasi found, and believes it is partly the foundation of the great "self-confidence all American women have" and which she greatly admires. Although she is the editor-in-chief of a newspaper which is run entirely by women except for one male reporter to cover bars and police news, she feels that the work of women is respected more in this country than it is in Siam. "I had to work and work for my job," she said. "I have no time for recreation; I have seen only two movies in two years."

Miss Propasi has been in the United States for five months and leaves next month for a tour of England and France. Then home to Siam for a short while. But she expects to come back here because she does not want to write the book she plans on the United States without more knowledge of the country she hasn't found a bit disappointing, except for Hollywood, which "really is not splendid." Washington she finds "clean and not as rushed as New York."

She has been impressed on the whole with "the self-confidence American women have" and wants to learn how they acquire it and "how the American woman teaches her daughters to have it."

In addition to the stories she writes and sends back to the paper now, Miss Propasi will write other articles on America when she gets home. "All American customs would not fit in my country," she said, but she would like to tell the people of her country about most of them.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Deeply Attached to Husband After 10 Years' Marriage, Wife Is Troubled by His Married Sister's Rival Play for His Love-Patronage

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Tom and I have been married 10 years and are much in love, but there is a fly in the ointment—his sister, Elinor, also married. Her husband is as prosperous, her children as healthy, and her home as nice as mine; but she seems to be vying with me for "first claim" on Tom. They were reared in an average-size family, well-provided-for by a good father.

The other evening Tom and I were visiting friends three blocks from Elinor's home, and at 10 p. m. Elinor rang up and asked Tom to come over. He left worriedly, as their mother has been ill and Elinor is the one most likely to get word from the family home. After 11, when he hadn't returned, I made apologies and took my departure, too.

I found him at Elinor's, where six guests besides Tom were having waffles and coffee in a party atmosphere. They explained that two of the guests were newcomers to town and desperate for an apartment. Elinor had summoned Tom to discuss their problem, for housing is his business.

Rival Mocks Wife's Sensitive Attitude

I FELT that Tom and Elinor had rudely slighted me and our friends' hospitality, and apparently Elinor read this in my glance as I entered; yet I tried to behave with some grace when Tom introduced me (guiltily) as his "lovely wife" and immediately seated me.

Elinor said, "Yes, this is our sweet Joan, but most probably feeling anything but sweet towards all of us at this moment! You see, she sometimes forgets that her husband is still my brother!" This sally was greeted with appreciative laughter and she added, "After 10 years the child still clings to her beautiful big bridegroom—." I felt like a fool, of course.

She tries to sponge loans from Tom; and when he gives me something special she usually coos, "How about one for Elinor?"—to which he always replies, "I can afford only one wife, Elly," but denials don't discourage her. Now Tom and I are at odds about the other evening. He says I should have gone home instead of breaking into Elinor's home in search of him. I say he was disloyal to me. What do you think? Am I foolish to resent Elinor's ways so deeply? J. J.

Anger Is Human; Face, Manage It

DEAR J. J.: Elinor's attacks invite resentment. She is deliberately trying to provoke bad feeling in you, as the only way she knows of having revenge upon you for being her brother's dearest intimate.

She has a selfish, jealous, possessive, exploitative attachment to him—and unconsciously resents his having married anybody. And she would despoil this marriage, or any marriage he might make, if she could—in childish "punishment" of both parties to it.

Thus, since you are merely human, with average lack of deep tranquil insight into human feeling-processes, it is perfectly natural—not "foolish"—that you would be angered by her hostile trespassing. The problem, then, is how to manage your anger, not how to circumvent Elinor, primarily; although knowledgeable self management equates spontaneous victory over spite-attacks.

Elinor deliberately makes you uncomfortable, then puts you on the defensive about your irritation (also your rights)—as in her malicious chatter to guests the other evening—so that you "assume" a presumably face-saving obligation to pretend you don't mind her needling; and in effect she leaves you smarting, flustered and frustrated, a house divided against itself, in uncertainty, timidity and essential hypocrisy (in re self).

Dismiss false piety of attitude, inner or outer. As Elinor creates incidents, face each clearly on its own merits, without reference to bygone thrusts. When she provokes your anger, have the honesty to know, without apology to the self, that you are angry. But remember also that her game is to confuse and stymie, as well as badger. In short, be fully aware of what goes on, get neither "guilty" nor alarmed about the matter, and you'll be on the way to psychological ascendancy in dealing with her. M. H.

Dior Started a New Life Then Created New Look

By Florence Mills

PARIS, France (AP). — Christian Dior, the man who put oomph into women's clothes in 1947, has become king of French designers because he changed his mind 20 years ago.

Dior now ranks right up there with such French idols as Maurice Chevalier and Georges Carpentier. His talent and spectacular success has made him a renowned personage in a country where respect is always hard-earned and agreement on any given subject is a rarity.

The chubby 40-year-old man who gave women back their curves and enticed them into long skirts with his new look dresses, is enjoying a success which outstrips his wildest dreams and still seems vaguely surprised about it.

He has expanded his fashion house at a rate unparalleled in the long history of French fashion. Right now he is responsible for roughly 75 per cent of all model purchases by foreign buyers.

Dior's success story started just two years ago in the bitterly cold February of 1947. He opened a small fashion house with three workrooms, 60 workers and a lot of brand new ideas. He hit the jackpot right away with his first collection when he introduced his new look.

It caused a revolution in the fashion business. Buyers of all nationalities flooded him with orders. In the two years since he has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that success was no flash in the pan. He is still hitting the jackpot.

Today Dior has swallowed up the building adjoining the original site of his small fashion house on the exclusive Avenue Montaigne. The establishment looks like a palace, resplendent with dove gray carpets, satin drapes and ornate crystal chandeliers. It houses 15 workrooms equipped with everything to make a seamstress happy in her work and employs 800 people.

Besides his exclusive salon, Dior has four separate departments for hats, furs, readymades and knicknacks. He designs for them all. In the knicknack department you can buy everything from black lace panties to a piece of costume jewelry. Dior even has his own perfume which pervades the whole six-story building. He calls it "Miss Dior" and sells it at $12 an ounce.

His staff enjoys such privileges as a cheap canteen and fares paid to and from work. Some qualify for a free hairdo once a week at a famous hairdresser, and one dress made to measure every six months.

It's only because he changed his mind when he was 20 years old that Dior isn't busy trying to put some oomph into French politics instead of dresses. He was intent then on a diplomatic career and had spent much time traveling in Spain, Italy, Germany and Scandinavia when he up and changed his mind. He opened an art gallery instead.

Three years later he trekked through Russia, studying architecture. In 1934 he fell gravely ill and spent a year's convalescence traveling in Spain.

He returned to Paris flat broke and became a fashion illustrator for a magazine. Later he sold sketches of hats and dresses and finally, in 1938, became assistant to designer Robert Piquet.

In 1939 he joined the army as a private and when the armistice came in 1940 he worked on his father's farm in the south of France. A year later he returned to Nazi-occupied Paris and joined Lucien Lelong as a designer. When he left Lelong to launch his own fashion house in 1947 he was quite obscure to the workaday Frenchman.

That's all changed now. Dior is really a somebody.

Dior works with a pencil first, sketching his dress. He is an economical designer who toys with mull (thin, soft muslin) before chopping up any expensive material.

He is very superstitious, very religious, likes Mozart and Ravel and adores Wagner. He's a gourmet, too, as his portly figure might suggest.

I See Your Soul

Your love means more to me than just . . . The lovely lips
I kiss . . . And more than your complete embrace . . . In moments made for bliss . . . Because I see your gentle soul
. . . When I behold your eyes . . .
And there is nothing left for you . . . To cover or disguise
. . . I see the sympathy you feel . . . And when I hold your hand . . . I know how much you love me and . . . How well you understand . . . Your face is not the picture fair . . . My eyes are looking at . . . And I am not concerned about . . .
The color of your hat . . . It is the beauty of your soul . . .
And character I see . . . That tells my overflowing heart . . .
How much you mean to me.

What's the Verdict

SURGEON'S DUTY

Q. After operating, the busy surgeon instructed a hospital intern to inject a saline solution. This the intern did, after the surgeon had left the hospital. The needle broke, and the intern could not remove it. Because of the patient's condition the surgeon waited for some days before operating to remove the broken portion. The patient sues the surgeon, alleging malpractice for permitting the intern to negligently handle the needle and for the delay in operating to remove it What result?

A. The intern is the hospital's employe, rather than the surgeon's. Even though the hospital employe was careless (which the breaking of the needle doesn't necessarily prove), the surgeon isn't liable unless he was careless in giving instructions or in choosing the person to carry them out. It is the hospital's duty to carry out the surgeon's instructions as to post-operative care. As to the delay in removing the needle, the test is whether to do so was in accordance with the standard of physicians practicing in that city. On facts almost identical with these, the surgeon won a directed verdict.—F. L. D.

Cases discussed illustrate general principles. They should not be construed as legal advice in particular cases. Take your legal problems to your lawyer.

Program Advances

A House Mining subcommittee yesterday approved a five-year, 500-million-dollar program of incentive payments to stimulate domestic production of strategic metals and minerals for the national stockpile.

The measure calls for Government premium payments in excess of market price for metals delivered to the stockpile

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Old Adage Gets Slight Modern Revision

John Powell of 4218 70th ave., Landover Hills, Md., was giving his 7-year-old son some sage advice the other day anent a fight which had been thrust upon the lad by a much bigger boy.

"He who fights and runs away, lives to fight another day," quoted John. The kid thought it over for a while, and said:

"Oh, yeah? It oughtta be: 'He who fights and runs away will get a hole in his back some day.'"

Pop is still trying to figure out an answer.

GET A HORSE:

The other day a District Liner observed that since most traffic accidents are the result of speeding, all cars should be equipped with governors.

Roshan W. Dyar of Glenn Dale, Md., doesn't care much for that suggestion. He points out that a car with a governor has no pep on hills or get-aways, or reserve power for tight squeezes when seconds count.

"Besides," he says, "speed isn't the only cause of accidents. I once had to pay more than $300 for damage done by a car that was going 15 miles per hour."

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Parents who wonder why they're always broke will be interested in the results of a survey which shows that the Nation's teen-agers have a potential annual buying power of eight billion dollars.

DISTRICT LINERS OPEN WITH ONE CLUB

I'm informed that everybody whose name has ever appeared in this column is being invited to join a proposed new organization to be called "The District Liners."

The first organizing meeting will be held at 7:30 tonight in the Northeastern Library, 7th st. and Maryland ave. ne.

The idea for the club originated with several regular contributors who think it would be a fine thing to have "a social group with a mutual human interest," for anybody who has "civic pride, and a little printer's ink in his blood."

The organizers have contacted everybody they could reach individually, and now they write:

"We know we must have missed many District Liners who would like to help us form this club, so will you please tell them that they're all invited to come to tonight's meeting."

Okay, I'll tell them. But when you guys begin to have refreshments at these meetings, I want an invitation, too.

BOB BARRETT'S BET

Ever since Police Superintendent Barrett offered to bet three to one that Commissioner J. Russell Young would be reappointed, there have been a great many rumors to the effect that he was making a bad bet.

Latest from the wise money around town is that Lawyer Renah F. Camalier has the inside track for Commissioner Young's post, and that Ent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell is a good dark horse prospect.

The way I hear the story, Camalier was offered Guy Mason's job the last time Commissioner Mason's term expired, but he turned it down.

Now that Mr. Truman is about to appoint (or reappoint) a "President of the Board of Commissioners," Lawyer Camalier might change his mind and accept.

In any event, the political depesters say that Major Barrett's odds are what the boys at Havre would call "an overlay."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Female puppies, part Spitz." (Woodley 4969.)

"Two female fox terrier puppies, 5 months old; affectionate and healthy." (Adams 0324.)

SPRING IS HERE

Harry S. Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board, thinks that his 10-year-old daughter, Marilyn, is about ready to become a full-fledged District Liner.

Harry bases his appraisal on a poem to "Spring" which Marilyn wrote last year. It goes something like this:

Listen to the robin sing;
All the birds are on the wing.
And the little daffodils
Are now blooming in the hills.
Bluebirds sing, and then, no doubt,
We'll see flowers, coming out;
Gentle breezes, trees in bud,
Little children throwing mud.

CRUEL, CRUEL WORLD

BARNABY

Well now, how are you progressing with the biography of your fairy godfather?
We haven't started on "The O'Malley Story." That lady always asks me lots of questions.
That talkative type of secretary, eh? What a nuisance! Questions like what?
She asked me if I was a little boy, or a little girl!
Extraordinary that she doesn't know. And at her age! Let's see, might be best to use the "bees and flowers" approach in this case, Barnaby--

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Bridges Assails Policy on China

By Drew Pearson

It wasn't officially recorded, but New Hampshire's Senator Styles Bridges recently struck a sharp blow at the bipartisan foreign policy by demanding that the GOP take its own stand on foreign affairs—particularly in China.

Bridges

He shot the challenge squarely at Michigan's Senator Arthur Vandenberg, the Mr. Big of the bipartisan foreign policy, during a secret meeting of the Republican policy committee.

The debate got so heated that at one point Vandenberg snorted: "Now this is within these four walls. There aren't many here, and if this appears in Drew Pearson's column I won't have too many to check with."

However, here is the story of what happened at the secret meeting.

Bridges called upon the Republicans to stop echoing "me, too" to everything the Administration does and to focus a "little sunlight on the mistakes and questionable policies" of the Democrats.

He charged that China was being forfeited to the Communists and he urged Vandenberg to take a stand on this and demand a review of our China policy. When America realizes its mistake, Bridges argued, then the Republicans could pin the blame upon the Democrats.

Vandenberg retorted sharply that it was easier for Bridges to snipe against our foreign policy because he didn't have the responsibility as GOP foreign-policy spokesman. Vandenberg admitted that the picture is dark for the Chinese anti-Communists, but argued that it was too late to interfere without jeopardizing the chances of salvaging what is left. By intervening now, the United States wouldn't save China but might endanger future relations, Vandenberg argued. He also pointed out that the corrupt governing clique that runs the central government soaks up most United States aid.

Pro-Red Diplomats

Bridges snapped back that members of the State Department were sabotaging our foreign policy and demanded that the pro-Communists be flushed out of the service.

At this, Massachusetts' lean Leverett Saltonstall raised a cautioning hand, suggested it was unfair to question the motives of diplomatic personnel.

"If you had a general who commanded an army and lost a battle through incompetence, you would remove him," crackled Bridges. "If he lost by conspiring with the enemy, you would court-martial and probably shoot him. But the State Department loses country after country and all you do is promote them."

Vandenberg said he didn't know of any pro-Communists in the State Department. Ohio's Senator Robert Taft suggested, however, that the people underneath are often biased and don't give the people on top a true picture.

Bricker for Negro?

Ohio's statuesque Senator John Bricker has been posing as the great champion of the Negro by demanding that segregation be outlawed in all public housing projects.

But what the public didn't realize is that Bricker toned down his own antisegregation amendment the minute it conflicted with the real estate lobby.

Bricker's original antisegregation amendment would have cut off Federal funds, including FHA loans, for any segregated housing project. But when the real-estate boys saw this, they realized Bricker would cut off one of their most lucrative sources of money—loans from the Federal Housing Administration. So they hot-footed it to Bricker's office and had him change his amendment so that it abolished segregation for public housing, but not FHA-financed housing.

Note—Bricker's real motive was to inject civil rights into the housing debate so it would turn the Southern vote against public housing.

Israel Irks Truman

President Truman, who frequently blows hot and cold over Palestine, has given a private spanking to the new Republic of Israel. He is boiling mad at the Israeli government for what he considers an insult to the American Ambassador to Israel, James G. McDonald.

McDonald reported to the President that during a recent interview with the Israeli Foreign Minister, Moshe Sharrett, the minister spoke disparagingly of American aid to Israel. This made Truman so mad he ordered the United States representative to the United Nations, Warren Austin, not to object when the United Nations pigeonholed Israel's application for U. N. membership.

Warren's silence shocked the Israeli because they were counting on wholehearted American support for their cause. As a result, President Weizmann is trying to patch things up during personal conference with President Truman.
